THE BANQUET.

Yesterday, at a quarter to three o'clock, the visiting prelates, clergy and a number of leading citizens were conveyed by special train to St. Dunstan's College, where a grand banquet was given by His Lordship, Bishop McIntyre. The banquet was held in the spacious hall of the College which was decorated for the occasion. On the western side of the hall—the head of the festive board—was a beautiful white satin banner trimmed with gold, bearing the insignia of the Episcopacy, and the motto, "Tot Anni; Tot Coronae." To the right and left of the banner were banners bearing the arms of their Lordships of Charlottetown and Chatham. Above, in semi-circular scroll, were the words "Welcome," "Welcome," while the whole was surmounted by a large "XXV," neatly worked in evergreens. The sides of the hall were tastefully trimmed with evergreen and flowers, and bore scrolls with dates of the interesting events in the lives of the Mgrs. McIntyre and Rogers, as well as the words "Health," "Happiness" and "Prosperity." In the centre of the eastern wall of the hall was a beautiful worked scroll, "Silver Jubilee." To the right and left were portraits of Bishop McIntyre and Rogers, and in each corner were banners: (1) having the inscriptions, "The Honor of the people," (2) "God Bless their Pastorate." The tables were magnificently laid and cheerfully relieved with flowers, and when the guests—a list of whom we give below—took their seats at three o'clock the festival hall presented an enlivened and beautiful appearance:—

The menu was varied, extensive, and most excellent, reflecting great credit on Mr. Croker, of Halifax, who superintended the arrangements of the banquet.

When it had been discussed to the satisfaction of all present, His Honor Lieutenant Governor Macdonald arose, and after congratulating their Lordships Bishops McIntyre and Rogers on attaining the 25th anniversary of their consecration, and paying a high tribute to the character of Bishop McIntyre, proposed the health of their Lordships. It is needless to say it was enthusiastically honored.

His Lordship Bishop McIntyre was received with prolonged applause. In responding, he said he felt grateful for the cheerful and hearty manner in which they drank his health. When he looked around and saw so many who have come thousands of miles to assist at the celebration, he felt most grateful. Some of these were his professors, some his schoolmates, some his companions, but all his friends. He could not find words to express his gratitude to all. There are, he said, certain times that one becomes embarrassed and unable to find words to express his ideas. This, with him, was such an occasion. Words failed him to express the deep sense of gratitude he felt for the honor bestowed on him by the visiting prelates and people. With reference to the works he had performed during his term of the episcopacy he said he could only say that had he not the co-operation of the people who dearly loved the Church he would not have been so successful. The people have generously co-operated with him, and when he looked back and saw how heartily and generously they responded to his requests, he could not wonder at the work performed. His Lordship concluded by thanking them heartily for the toast to his health, and wishing them health, happiness and prosperity. His Lordship Bishop Rogers returned thanks for the toast, and expressed his heartfelt thanks to His Lordship Bishop McIntyre for his kindness in permitting him to take part in this grand celebration. He referred to the many visits he made to Prince Edward Island since he was consecrated Bishop. These visits, he said, were most beneficial to him, and he always returned home with renewed energy to continue the work of his diocese. The improvements made in Chatham were, he said, in a great measure owing to the kind advice of His Lordship the Bishop of Charlottetown, whose example in every respect he (Bishop Rogers) always endeavored to emulate. After referring to Bishop McIntyre's successful administration, the growth of St. Dunstan's College, and expressing his delight at seeing so many distinguished prelates present, he concluded by proposing the health of "Our Guests."

Hon. W. W. Sullivan responded in a brief speech. After referring to the many noble works of His Lordship, and to the honor conferred by the visit of so many distinguished prelates, he said he would be delighted to see them not every twenty-five years, for that was a long period of time, but every year, in the summer season. We had, he said, as fertile and beautiful a country as in any part of the Dominion. He closed by hoping that their Lordships would enjoy health and happiness and live long enough to celebrate their Golden Jubilee.

His Grace Archbishop Tachereau spoke in French. He said, as a representative of the Mother Church of Canada, he had great pleasure in being present at the celebration. At one time Quebec extended her sway, not only up and down the Mississippi, but also away down the Mississippi, and now, when Bishops have sprung up all around, he came as it were from the Mother to hail the success of a worthy daughter of the Mother Church. He tendered his hearty congratulations to their Lordships Bishop McIntyre and Rogers, and wished them health and prosperity.

His Grace Archbishop Lynch, after a few good humored and witty remarks, spoke of the beauty and fertility of the Island. Don't ask for emigration, he said, keep all your lands for your posterity. Then your institutions will be your own; you will, as at present, have your own Governor born on the Island, and your own Bishop. His Grace said he was going away with a splendid opinion of the Island. He often heard of it, but never thought it was so beautiful. You, he said, a splendid country, and a most hospitable people. A gentleman at one time was describing Heaven. He was from Kentucky, and after exhausting his descriptive powers, he concluded by saying it was a "Kentucky of a Heaven." Prince Edward Island was as much like Ireland, His Grace said, as any part of the world he ever saw, and he would therefore content himself with calling it an "Ireland of an Island."

His Grace the Archbishop of Halifax rejoiced to see the celebration so successful, and expressed his happiness at seeing the hearty manner in which the clergy and laity joined to do honor to His Lordship. His Lordship Bishop Power, of St. John's, Newfoundland, after a few good-natured remarks, in which he expressed his desire to see the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland confederated, expressed his happiness at being present at the celebration, and congratulated their Lordships on attaining the 25th anniversary of the Episcopate. His Lordship then referred to the beauty and verdure of the Island, comparing it with Ireland, and concluded by hoping he would live and enjoy health to attend the Golden Jubilee of their Lordships, twenty-five years hence.

The dinner was concluded at 7 o'clock, and the guests of His Lordship returned to the city at 7.30 o'clock by special train. THE TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION. The members of the Benevolent Irish Society and the young men of the Catholic Literary Union met at 7 o'clock, in St. Patrick's Hall, in regalia, and headed by the City Cornet Band, marched in procession to Hillsborough Square, where they were joined by the members of St. Dunstan's congregation, headed by the Band of the 82nd Battalion. The procession started from Hillsborough Square at 8 o'clock, and marched up Hillsborough street to Kent street, down Kent street to Pownall street, down Pownall street to Water street, up Water street to Queen street, up Queen street to Richmond street, down Richmond street to Weymouth street, down Weymouth street to Water street, up Water street to Great George street, to the Bishop's Palace.

On arrival of the procession at the palace the scene was one of unrivalled brilliancy. The Episcopal residence and the Cathedral were illuminated. The Papal Standard floated above the cap, and on its every available point, dormer windows, and roof of the palace were flags of various nations. Surrounding the centre of the palace was a string of picturesque Chinese lanterns, while colored lights hung from the corners of the edifice to the ground. A grand display of fireworks was in progress, and as the procession drew up and halted in front of the Episcopal residence, and the venerable Bishop and visiting prelates came forward to greet them, the scene beggared description.

The illuminations of the Convents were magnificent, and attracted the attention of thousands of spectators, while a number of buildings on Queen Square, and private residences in the city were illuminated in a most artistic manner;

Government House, looking from the Hillsborough, was most picturesque.

THE EXCURSION. At 10 o'clock this morning the visiting prelates and clergy, accompanied by His Lordship and a large number of our Island priests and several gentlemen of the congregation enjoyed a beautiful excursion up the Hillsborough and West Rivers, and out the harbor as far as the Bell Buoy off Point Prim. The weather was most favorable, and the strangers were lavish in their praises of the beauties of our Island. At 1.30 p. m. the Heather Belle returned to Charlottetown when all repaired to the Palace for luncheon.

HIS LORDSHIP'S PRESENTS. His Lordship was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, among which was a silver missile-stand, presented by the Society of the Holy Family, and a silver chaplet and engraved case from that of St. Joseph's, were very much admired. A beautiful present was also the silver urn of the Mother General of the Congregation de Notre Dame.
