THE CLAIMS WERE PAID.

Two Individuals who Benefited by Change in Government.
MONROE, August 27.—A parish of Monroeville man, Stewart Trites by name, is richer by a thousand dollars as the result of the change of government. Some eight or ten years ago his buildings were destroyed by a forest fire in the vicinity, and he claimed indemnity, alleging that the fire, which started some distance from his place, had been set by sparks from an I. C. R. locomotive. He was not able to make out a very good case, however, and the late government refused to sustain the claim. As a result, Mr. Trites became a strong liberal partizan, and it is said prominent liberals promised to use their "influence" in the event of a change of government to secure the payment of the claim. The change came, the influence was used and the claim has been paid. Mr. A. E. Killam, ex M. P., P. who got Mr. T. C. Hillson's place, as inspector of buildings on the I. C. R. has also benefited by the change of government in more ways than one. A private overhead bridge, crossing the I. C. R. from one part of Mr. Killam's farm to another, fell one day, some years ago, while Mr. Killam's cattle were on it and Mr. Killam claimed remuneration on the ground that, as the government had allowed the bridge to remain there, they were in some way responsible for its maintenance in a safe condition. The government claimed that the bridge was a private one, for Mr. Killam's exclusive use, he should have it in repair, and not only refused to allow the claim, but refused to allow it to be rebuilt. Since the change of government the claim has been paid.

THE SEPTEMBER NATIONAL.

"A Dash for the North Pole," by Walter Wellman, the well known Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times-Herald, is the leading illustrated article in the National Magazine for September. "In the Klondyke Country," is the article, however, that leads in interest. The illustration and the text make it quite the most satisfactory sketch we have yet had on this present absorbing subject. The material is furnished by a Yukoner who took up a claim in the region just previous to the discovery of its great value. "How Greely was Rescued," by Johanna R. Nicolle, illustrated from photographs taken by Captain, now Commodore, Schley, is a graphic sketch of an episode, the reading of which still thrills the blood. Dr. Edward Everett Hale concludes in the September National his entertaining reminiscences. The last paper is on "Old Churches and Ministers." The eleventh chapter of the attractive religious serial, "Christ and His Time," by Dallas Lore Sharp is included also in the table of contents. The remaining illustrated article is "The Yellowstone National Park," by W. D. Van Blarcom, which is the second in a series entitled "The Seven Wonders of the New World." Tom Hall, Ellis Parker Butler, Hayden Carruth and Winthrop Packard have several cleverly written little humorous sketches in the department "Twixt Smiles and Tears." The fiction of the September issue consists in several very readable short stories: "The Order of the Yellow Robe," by Helen F. Huntington; "Pietro," by Francis Lynde; "The Understudy's Opportunity," by Robert Stodart; "Down the Cimeroon," by Egbert W. Fowler, and "Chronicles of a Country Church Choir," by Louise Crockett Henderson. The number is completed by the regular departments the most notable of which is "Club Women and their work."

For sale at all news-stands. The W.W. Potter Co., 83 Newbury St., Boston, Mass.

Strathcona and Mount Royal is the title chosen by Sir Donald Smith on his elevation to the peerage. The second is local to his Canadian home; the first belongs to his new Scottish seat. The Cona is the mountain stream that gives Glencoe its name, and the widened glen is the strath. Glencoe House is a place of sufficient importance to be set down on the atlas, so that the name is not new. That it may belong and honorably associated with the new deer will be the wish of all who know and admire him in Canada, and their name is legion.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

Harper's for September contains the following articles: "Around London by bicycle," by Elizabeth Robins Pennell, illustrated by Joseph Pennell; "The Milkweed," the last unpublished work of William Hamilton Gibson, illustrated by the author; "A Twentieth-Century Outlook," by A. T. Mahan; "George du Maurier," by Henry James; "The Beginnings of the American Navy," by James Barnes, illustrated from old prints and documents; and "The Lotus Land of the Pacific," by John Harrison Wagner, illustrated by J. Macfarlane. The short stories of the number are "The Great Medicine-Horse," an Indian Myth of the Thunder," by Frederic Remington, with illustrations, including the frontispiece of the number, by the author; "The Lost Ball," a humorous romance of the golf links, by W. G. van T. Sutphen, illustrated by W. H. Hyde; "The Look in a Man's Face," by M. Urquhart, illustrated by Gustave Verbeek. "Without Incumbrance," by Emerson Gifford Taylor; "Her Majesty," by Marion Manville Pope; and "The Various Tempers of Grandmother Gregg," by Ruth Emery Stuart, which opens the "Editor's Drawer." The serials are "The Great Stone of Sardinia," by Frank R. Stockton, illustrated by Peter Newell; and "The Kentuckians," by John Fox, Jr., illustrated by W. T. Smedley. The poems are contributed by Sir Lewis Morris, Fiona McLeod, Margaret E. Sangster, Griswald Dichter, and John Vauce Cheney. The "Editor's Study," by Charles Dudley Warner, discusses changes in personality, chewing-gum and educational methods.

Many of the North American Indians were magnificent specimens of physical manhood. This was due, largely, to their active out-door life. Nevertheless, they had the wisdom to know that an active life in the open air alone, would not keep a man healthy. They had their medicines, men, who gathered herbs from field and forest and brewed decoctions to assist the natural processes of the various vital organs.

Modern civilized men do not as a usual thing recognize the same necessity until it is too late. They ignore medicine until they are within the grasp of some serious or fatal disease. The time for a man to begin taking medicine is when he begins to feel out of sorts. If a man is thoroughly well and healthy he does not feel that way. If he does feel that way he may be pretty sure that he is half sick. When he is half sick it does not take long before he is "whole-sick." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine for a man when he is sick or getting sick. It puts him all right all round. It puts his stomach right to begin with, and that is the most important point. It puts his liver right, and that is the second most important point. It purifies his blood and fills it with the life-giving elements of the food he eats, and that is the third important point. It drives out all disease germs and impurities of every description. It makes the appetite keen and hearty. It is the greatest blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, weak lungs, spitting of blood, obstinate coughs and kindred ailments. Thousands who were given up to die have testified to their recovery under this marvelous medicine. An honest dealer will not urge a substitute for the sake of a little extra profit. He gives you what you ask for.

FADS OF FASHION.

Sashes are in very general demand, and as they are becoming to almost all figures are likely to continue in popularity.

A stylish and popular cape extends about as low as the elbows. It is quite full, the fullness being usually of straight widths gathered into a yoke.

Among the pretty models for dresses is a narrow yoke with a sharp point back and front. Below the yoke in front is a loose vest, which is tucked into a belt.

A fashion which sometimes seems to become quite popular is that of pippings or cords. This is a short lived style and is by no means suitable for elegant materials.

Elaborateness is being displayed in the make up of sleeves. Many of them are composed entirely of lace and insertion, others are tucked round and round and others are covered with rows of trimming.

One of the handsomest waists of the season is made of white china crape. It has vest, collar and cuffs of white satin and a stock collar and bows of white satin ribbon. It is worn with a skirt of black satin made plainly.

A novelty cape has a yoke of brocaded velvet. This yoke has long tabs of the same material that fall over ruffles of accordion plaited Japanese crape. The shoulders have sleeve shaped sections outlined with bands of velvet.

It seems to make less difference this year just what you wear than how you wear it. In fact, some of the 6 cent lawns and dimities make as pretty and stylish dresses as one could wish for. It is the way they are made and the fashion of wearing them.

Dresses of muslin, organdie and batiste have the ruffles edged with narrow lace. There may be but one or several ruffles on the skirts, and they are set either in clusters at the foot or at regular intervals, covering about half the length of the skirt.—New York Ledger.

Montreal Gazette: By the latest customs decision goods from France coming into Canada via the United States are entitled to preferential tariff treatment, but goods from France coming via Great Britain are not. It is not known whether this shows the Liberal Government's love for France or Great Britain or the United States; but it is known that it shows the Laurier-Fielding tariff to be a fearful and wonderful thing.

KLONDYKE!

The Land of Golden nuggets

JOSEPH LADUE, the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke, dike Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights" BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered last August, 1896. He located one rich claim, and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets beyond the dreams of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots, 150x50, are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuyler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the West, going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific Coast, and finally located in Alaska and the North West, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer; strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpaired at the age of about forty-three. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all his time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country—the Yukon Valley—which has so suddenly become one of the great centres upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space), people began to wonder, and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well informed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man alive to day who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desolatory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries.

In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled is a brief description of the new gold regions, and anyone desiring authentic information should not fail to avail themselves of our
