

S'ide Chapter IODE Welcome New Members

The September meeting of the Abigail Chapter I.O.D.E. was held on Thursday evening, Sept. 10, at the home of the recent, Miss Wanda Yvett.

The secretary's minutes of the June meeting were approved, and the treasurer's report on regular and flower show receipts.

Six new members were welcomed into the chapter namely: Mrs. John Cameron, Mrs. W. C. Jenkins, Mrs. Davis Lidstone, Mrs. Bruce MacDougald, Mrs. Orylle Phillips, and Mrs. D. O. Stewart.

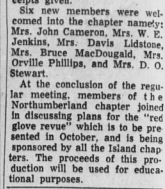

At the conclusion of the regular meeting members of the Northumberland chapter joined in discussing plans for the "red glove" which is to be presented in October, and is being sponsored by all the Island chapters. The proceeds of this production will be used for educational purposes.

law who are in Lachine, Quebec.

In the evening a buffet supper and dance for 200 guests was held. Joseph MacPhee, Jerry O'Leary and George Johnston provided the dance music with Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick leading the wedding reel. They were accompanied by Mrs. Helen Westbrook of Mass., and Morrison's Beach, Georgetown, who danced the wedding reel with them 50 years ago.

Many lovely gifts were showered upon this wonderful couple, including a check of $500 from their family.

The celebrating couple have lived 46 years of their married life in Woodville Mills; Fitzpatrick was employed in the shipbuilding industry. He is at present with the Ferguson Shipyard, Victoria, B.C.

law who are in Lachine, Quebec. In the evening a buffet supper and dance for 200 guests was held. Joseph MacPhee, Jerry O'Leary and George Johnston provided the dance music with Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick leading the wedding reel. They were accompanied by Mrs. Helen Westbrook of Mass., and Morrison's Beach, Georgetown, who danced the wedding reel with them 50 years ago.

Many lovely gifts were showered upon this wonderful couple, including a check of $500 from their family.

The celebrating couple have lived 46 years of their married life in Woodville Mills; Fitzpatrick was employed in the shipbuilding industry. He is at present with the Ferguson Shipyard, Victoria, B.C.

BACKACHE and RHEUMATIC Pain

are made miserable by common urinary stones caused by an acid, indigestible diet. To enable common sufferers to get relief, a new, scientific method has been discovered. It is a simple, safe, and effective method of dissolving stones in the bladder and kidneys. It is a new, scientific method of dissolving stones in the bladder and kidneys. It is a new, scientific method of dissolving stones in the bladder and kidneys.

MR. AND MRS. ANDREW FITZPATRICK
Four Generations Attend 50th Wedding Anniversary

A jubilee mass on the occasion of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick, Woodville Mills, was celebrated by Rev. Bennett MacDonell, pastor of St. George's Church on August 5.

Attendees at the renewal of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick's vows were the groom's sister, Mrs. William Christian and John A. Campbell, the original "best man".

At the dinner for 85 guests which was held in the parish hall, the head table was beautifully decorated with flowers and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick have eleven children: ten of whom attended the celebration. They are: Mrs. Andrew MacLean, Mrs. Hazel Riley, Mrs. Percy Muir, Walter Campbell and Elwood Paynter attended the ceremony.

HAPPENINGS

6 The Guardian, Charlottetown, Tues., Sept. 10, 1963

Mr. and Mrs. Hamp MacLean left Saturday by car for a holiday in Newfoundland where they will visit their son Billie and his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Boswell, formerly of Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana, where Mr. Boswell will continue his studies in Economics Research. Mr. Boswell graduated from McDonald College, McGill in 1958 and has been employed with the Federal Dept. of Agriculture, Nova Scotia. They were accompanied by Justin MacEachern, a third year science student at Purdue.

Cpl. Peter Austin, of the RCMP and Mrs. Austin (the former Audrey Horne) have returned to their home in Ottawa, after vacationing in St. Stephen, Moncton and Charlottetown.

While in Charlottetown they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sidling Road, Highland Ave., and attended the Alabo-Warren convention at the Hotel Windsor when Mr. Austin was her cousin's matron-of-honor.

Members of the 1959 graduates of the P.E.I. Hospital School of Nursing met on Monday and week in the banquet room of the "Rendezvous". Three out-of-town nurses were attendees. They were: Mrs. Barry Wetmore, Prince Rupert, B.C. (former Mrs. MacEachern); Mrs. Alison Plamondon, St. John's, Nfld.; Mrs. Ron Waldron, Auburn, Alabama, the former Heather Rodd, Harristown, N.S.

Lieut.-Colonel Mrs. L.M. Unsworth, retired officer of the Salvation Army, Toronto, Ont., accompanied by her sister, Mrs. A.H. Bonanza, Kingston, Ont., are visiting their sister, Mrs. L.L. H.D. Foster, Marshfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Whitehead, Graham's Road, Matier, are returning to their home in Bangor, Mass., and in Bangor, Maine.

Mr. Alonzo Murphy, formerly of the P.E.I. Hospital School of Nursing, visited in his hometown, vacationed with his mother, Mrs. James Murphy and his sister, Mrs. Alfred Phalen, Moncton.

Work Judged At Millcove

Achievement Day for Millcove Beef Queens was held in August at the farm of Ray Hughes. A total of 35 guests attended the program along with regular members.

The work of the boys was judged and results as follows:

The years work: 1. Eugene Hughes; 2. Cyril Hughes; 3. Wayne Hooper; 4. George McQuaid; 2. Raymond Sheeran; 3. Ivan Sheeran; 4. Cyril Hughes; 2. Eugene Hughes; 3. Raymond Sheeran; 4. Wayne Hooper.

Judging class: 1. Wayne Hooper; 2. Danu Hughes; 3. Eugene Hughes; 4. George McQuaid.

The calves and their calves were judged by Wayne Dickson, Harold McQuaid, their club leader, spoke briefly about the members and their calves.

The president of the W.M.A. presented a letter to the members. Lunch was served by Mrs. Ray Hughes.

Couple Feded At Kensington

KENSINGTON—Cut flowers in baskets and vases decorated the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Pickering, Kensington for a gathering of relatives and friends celebrating the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Heffel, see Elva Campbell.

With William a Blakesley as chairman, an address was read by Vernon Paynter, and a presentation of a certificate of appreciation was made to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bonness and Mrs. Frank MacPhee. Gifts were a floor lamp, an electric foil polisher, and personal gifts for each.

On behalf of the Chappell family, Mrs. Kenneth Duggan and Mrs. John Chappell presented a gift of the groom, a gold watch, and on behalf of the Heffel family, Mrs. W. J. Heffel, mother-in-law, presented a purse of money.

A beautifully decorated anniversary cake was a gift of their only son and daughter-in-law, William Jr. and Marilyn. Assisting the hostess in serving lunch were Mrs. William Blakely, Mrs. Roy Ramsey, Mrs. Frank MacEwen and Mrs. John Chappell.

After the party at Shore Acres Farm, presenting her with a gift of Wedwood. A community shower for the bride was held in the M'Givern hall previous to her marriage. On Friday evening following their marriage a community shower was held in their honor in the Westerdale Hall, St. John's. Gifts were presented at a rehearsal tea in their honor.

The young couple will reside in Kilmuir.

(Photo by C.D. MacKay)

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

Work Judged At Millcove

Achievement Day for Millcove Beef Queens was held in August at the farm of Ray Hughes. A total of 35 guests attended the program along with regular members.

The work of the boys was judged and results as follows:

The years work: 1. Eugene Hughes; 2. Cyril Hughes; 3. Wayne Hooper; 4. George McQuaid; 2. Raymond Sheeran; 3. Ivan Sheeran; 4. Cyril Hughes; 2. Eugene Hughes; 3. Raymond Sheeran; 4. Wayne Hooper.

Judging class: 1. Wayne Hooper; 2. Danu Hughes; 3. Eugene Hughes; 4. George McQuaid.

The calves and their calves were judged by Wayne Dickson, Harold McQuaid, their club leader, spoke briefly about the members and their calves.

The president of the W.M.A. presented a letter to the members. Lunch was served by Mrs. Ray Hughes.

Couple Feded At Kensington

KENSINGTON—Cut flowers in baskets and vases decorated the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Pickering, Kensington for a gathering of relatives and friends celebrating the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Heffel, see Elva Campbell.

With William a Blakesley as chairman, an address was read by Vernon Paynter, and a presentation of a certificate of appreciation was made to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bonness and Mrs. Frank MacPhee. Gifts were a floor lamp, an electric foil polisher, and personal gifts for each.

On behalf of the Chappell family, Mrs. Kenneth Duggan and Mrs. John Chappell presented a gift of the groom, a gold watch, and on behalf of the Heffel family, Mrs. W. J. Heffel, mother-in-law, presented a purse of money.

A beautifully decorated anniversary cake was a gift of their only son and daughter-in-law, William Jr. and Marilyn. Assisting the hostess in serving lunch were Mrs. William Blakely, Mrs. Roy Ramsey, Mrs. Frank MacEwen and Mrs. John Chappell.

After the party at Shore Acres Farm, presenting her with a gift of Wedwood. A community shower for the bride was held in the M'Givern hall previous to her marriage. On Friday evening following their marriage a community shower was held in their honor in the Westerdale Hall, St. John's. Gifts were presented at a rehearsal tea in their honor.

The young couple will reside in Kilmuir.

(Photo by C.D. MacKay)

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MARY HAWORTH

Doctors Must Recommend Aid For Young Mothers

Dear Mary Haworth: Recently you answered an appeal from a worn young mother of two babies under two years of age. She worries about her rasping infant who is unable to sleep. You suggested that she may be psychologically ill at present, due to a long siege of unrelieved physical fatigue and nervous stress; thus may be a logical candidate for emergency help from the Homemaker Service.

You identify the Homemaker Service as an organization of national scope, with local units in various cities, that provides short-term household help as needed, when a family's service is threatened by a mother's illness.

So much for preface. It happens that I am a board member of the existing Homemaker Service, Inc., in a certain county in a New England state.

Spurred by a letter in the file of the day after your column appeared, I had telephone calls from a young mother of two children who thought they were eligible for help at a price they could afford. Unfortunately this isn't the case.

Our agency, one of the first of the kind, is set up under the state department of health, with an advisory board of physicians. According to our constitution and by-laws, an applicant must have a doctor's authorization that homemaker help is needed before we can respond. And we attempt to respond to such requests.

Such as we would like to have no funds worthwhile to help persons who are not in Various agencies such as Wel-

MR. AND MRS. CURTIS D. LOVALL, MR. AND MRS. LOUIS R. BAGNALL MEET IN CHARLOTTETOWN

The immediate past president of Lions International, Curtis D. Lovall, and Mrs. Lovall of Gardner, Me., chat with Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Bagnall at the Charlottetown Hotel where the Lions district council meeting was held this weekend. Mr. Bagnall was the Host District Governor of the council meeting.

MR. AND MRS. SINCLAIR A. MACPHEE
Baskets Of Gladioli Adorn Vernon River United Church

Vernon River United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding when Margaret Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Richards, Albert Plains, became the bride of Sinclair A. MacPhee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm J. MacPhee, Kilmuir. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. T.R. Goudie. Baskets of gladioli and mixed flowers decorated the church, by her father, wore a floor

ELLEN'S DIARY

Dry Firewood Is Stored In Newly Tided Cellar

It was toward the last weekend, a belated chore came to James' mind as we breakfasted. Summer was hanging over the farmlands mistily that morning, giving no promise of fieldwork. "What's the matter, Ellen?" he asked, "I'll hitch a horse in the cart and clean up that cellar to day. There's a layer of clay on the steps and the floor that should be cleaned away before the snow comes in."

We smiled, recalling the remark of a former back in the years.

"Do you know, Ellen, I've come to the conclusion that every farm needs a grandfather, and an old mare and cart" he said. "Yes, And it's amazing what such a combination will do in keeping ends of the farming done up And" he grinned, "in amusing themselves - giving each other busy, happy days."

James however still keeps a well-practised leaf hand in the seasons' work of the farm, being pretty well "in the boys' shoes" for at the same time, he must prefer to be the boss-power at his work, rather than as any of the machines the years have brought to these farms.

News of the horse spread, and soon followed with him, the lads from the house across the lane.

Voices drifted up to the kitchen, and that once familiar sound of a horse and cart entering by way of "the run", the cellar.

"Nowadays this place is left pretty empty," Mack said. "Pretty empty," James agreed. "But not so long ago, when the Fall was she was full to the doors!"

"I see there's preserve on the shelves," Alex said. "I understand

ELLEN'S DIARY

Dry Firewood Is Stored In Newly Tided Cellar

It was toward the last weekend, a belated chore came to James' mind as we breakfasted. Summer was hanging over the farmlands mistily that morning, giving no promise of fieldwork. "What's the matter, Ellen?" he asked, "I'll hitch a horse in the cart and clean up that cellar to day. There's a layer of clay on the steps and the floor that should be cleaned away before the snow comes in."

We smiled, recalling the remark of a former back in the years.

"Do you know, Ellen, I've come to the conclusion that every farm needs a grandfather, and an old mare and cart" he said. "Yes, And it's amazing what such a combination will do in keeping ends of the farming done up And" he grinned, "in amusing themselves - giving each other busy, happy days."

James however still keeps a well-practised leaf hand in the seasons' work of the farm, being pretty well "in the boys' shoes" for at the same time, he must prefer to be the boss-power at his work, rather than as any of the machines the years have brought to these farms.

News of the horse spread, and soon followed with him, the lads from the house across the lane.

Voices drifted up to the kitchen, and that once familiar sound of a horse and cart entering by way of "the run", the cellar.

"Nowadays this place is left pretty empty," Mack said. "Pretty empty," James agreed. "But not so long ago, when the Fall was she was full to the doors!"

"I see there's preserve on the shelves," Alex said. "I understand

ELLEN'S DIARY

Dry Firewood Is Stored In Newly Tided Cellar

It was toward the last weekend, a belated chore came to James' mind as we breakfasted. Summer was hanging over the farmlands mistily that morning, giving no promise of fieldwork. "What's the matter, Ellen?" he asked, "I'll hitch a horse in the cart and clean up that cellar to day. There's a layer of clay on the steps and the floor that should be cleaned away before the snow comes in."

We smiled, recalling the remark of a former back in the years.

"Do you know, Ellen, I've come to the conclusion that every farm needs a grandfather, and an old mare and cart" he said. "Yes, And it's amazing what such a combination will do in keeping ends of the farming done up And" he grinned, "in amusing themselves - giving each other busy, happy days."

James however still keeps a well-practised leaf hand in the seasons' work of the farm, being pretty well "in the boys' shoes" for at the same time, he must prefer to be the boss-power at his work, rather than as any of the machines the years have brought to these farms.

News of the horse spread, and soon followed with him, the lads from the house across the lane.

Voices drifted up to the kitchen, and that once familiar sound of a horse and cart entering by way of "the run", the cellar.

"Nowadays this place is left pretty empty," Mack said. "Pretty empty," James agreed. "But not so long ago, when the Fall was she was full to the doors!"

"I see there's preserve on the shelves," Alex said. "I understand

ELLEN'S DIARY

Dry Firewood Is Stored In Newly Tided Cellar

It was toward the last weekend, a belated chore came to James' mind as we breakfasted. Summer was hanging over the farmlands mistily that morning, giving no promise of fieldwork. "What's the matter, Ellen?" he asked, "I'll hitch a horse in the cart and clean up that cellar to day. There's a layer of clay on the steps and the floor that should be cleaned away before the snow comes in."

We smiled, recalling the remark of a former back in the years.

"Do you know, Ellen, I've come to the conclusion that every farm needs a grandfather, and an old mare and cart" he said. "Yes, And it's amazing what such a combination will do in keeping ends of the farming done up And" he grinned, "in amusing themselves - giving each other busy, happy days."

James however still keeps a well-practised leaf hand in the seasons' work of the farm, being pretty well "in the boys' shoes" for at the same time, he must prefer to be the boss-power at his work, rather than as any of the machines the years have brought to these farms.

News of the horse spread, and soon followed with him, the lads from the house across the lane.

Voices drifted up to the kitchen, and that once familiar sound of a horse and cart entering by way of "the run", the cellar.

"Nowadays this place is left pretty empty," Mack said. "Pretty empty," James agreed. "But not so long ago, when the Fall was she was full to the doors!"

"I see there's preserve on the shelves," Alex said. "I understand

ELLEN'S DIARY

Dry Firewood Is Stored In Newly Tided Cellar

It was toward the last weekend, a belated chore came to James' mind as we breakfasted. Summer was hanging over the farmlands mistily that morning, giving no promise of fieldwork. "What's the matter, Ellen?" he asked, "I'll hitch a horse in the cart and clean up that cellar to day. There's a layer of clay on the steps and the floor that should be cleaned away before the snow comes in."

We smiled, recalling the remark of a former back in the years.

"Do you know, Ellen, I've come to the conclusion that every farm needs a grandfather, and an old mare and cart" he said. "Yes, And it's amazing what such a combination will do in keeping ends of the farming done up And" he grinned, "in amusing themselves - giving each other busy, happy days."

James however still keeps a well-practised leaf hand in the seasons' work of the farm, being pretty well "in the boys' shoes" for at the same time, he must prefer to be the boss-power at his work, rather than as any of the machines the years have brought to these farms.

News of the horse spread, and soon followed with him, the lads from the house across the lane.

Voices drifted up to the kitchen, and that once familiar sound of a horse and cart entering by way of "the run", the cellar.

"Nowadays this place is left pretty empty," Mack said. "Pretty empty," James agreed. "But not so long ago, when the Fall was she was full to the doors!"

"I see there's preserve on the shelves," Alex said. "I understand

ELLEN'S DIARY

Dry Firewood Is Stored In Newly Tided Cellar

It was toward the last weekend, a belated chore came to James' mind as we breakfasted. Summer was hanging over the farmlands mistily that morning, giving no promise of fieldwork. "What's the matter, Ellen?" he asked, "I'll hitch a horse in the cart and clean up that cellar to day. There's a layer of clay on the steps and the floor that should be cleaned away before the snow comes in."

We smiled, recalling the remark of a former back in the years.

"Do you know, Ellen, I've come to the conclusion that every farm needs a grandfather, and an old mare and cart" he said. "Yes, And it's amazing what such a combination will do in keeping ends of the farming done up And" he grinned, "in amusing themselves - giving each other busy, happy days."

James however still keeps a well-practised leaf hand in the seasons' work of the farm, being pretty well "in the boys' shoes" for at the same time, he must prefer to be the boss-power at his work, rather than as any of the machines the years have brought to these farms.

News of the horse spread, and soon followed with him, the lads from the house across the lane.

Voices drifted up to the kitchen, and that once familiar sound of a horse and cart entering by way of "the run", the cellar.

"Nowadays this place is left pretty empty," Mack said. "Pretty empty," James agreed. "But not so long ago, when the Fall was she was full to the doors!"

"I see there's preserve on the shelves," Alex said. "I understand