Beef Producers Association Meets

THE IDEA of procuring or constructing a suitable building for the series of weekly cattle auctions which have been proving successful here, was discussed last night, as directors of the Beef Producers Association met with George Lacey, Manager of Island Livestock Sales, and Frank Berhelaar, auctioneer, both of Truro. Left to right are Mr. Lacey, Mr. Berhelaar, Beef Fieldman Glen Cotton and Leo P. McIsaac, Mermaid who is the beef producers president.

By NEIL MATHESON

Directors of the P.E.I. Beef Producers' Association decided last night to encourage farmers to send finished beef cattle to the weekly auctions, conducted by Island Livestock Sales.

To date, standard cattle has been the best beef cattle offering. The idea is to have more top standards and some blue and red brand cattle.

DIRECTORS

The directors decided also to meet Agriculture Minister Daniel MacDonald, to recommend legislation that will properly regulate the establishment of cattle auction sale groups in future. Similar legislation has been passed in some other provinces, a spokesman said.

MEETING

Meeting with the directors were George Lacey, manager, and Frank Berhelaar, for the weekly sales series. Their operation has had the blessing of the beef producers directors since it started here, in late summer — the 1th sale was held last week.

Also discussed last night, briefly, was the possibility of procuring, or constructing a building suitable for the auction sale series. It would provide more room for would-be buyers, and be comfortable for both consignors and buyers through the cold winter months ahead, it was suggested.

ANNUAL MEETING

The directors plan to hold the association's annual meeting perhaps in mid-February. The general idea is to bring in a top speaker and possibly have an afternoon meeting, followed by a roast beef dinner in the evening.

President Leo McIsaac, Mermaid, presided.

Stewart Wright Addresses Rotary

"We are the only province in the Atlantic area that produces more meat products than we consume", said Rotarian Stewart Wright, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who was giving a classification talk to the Rotary Club luncheon, held on Monday at 12:30 in the Charlottetown Hotel, under the chairmanship of Bill Hayward. Co-chairman was Jim Hornby.

Mr. Wright and Dr. Stewart MacDonald, senior pension medical advisor for D.V.A. made classification talks on their vocations.

DEPARTMENT FOUNDING

Mr. Wright told of the founding of the Department of Agriculture and the growth of the organization. He said, "It is interesting to note that the financial statement for the Department for 1901 was $2,820.61. During the early years of the Department, emphasis was placed on experimental work with grain varieties, and these were carried out on Falconwood Farm. After the Federal Experimental Farm was established in 1901, much of this work was then conducted on this farm."

He then spoke on farm production, on Prince Edward Island and stated many favorable statistics, but said that Island farmers could produce more chicken and fowl.

EXPLAINS WORK

Dr. MacDonald explained his work and said that he is employed by three separate departments; the Pension Commission, the Treatment Services under the minister of Veterans Affairs, and the Department of Health and Welfare. He said, "One of my principal roles is that of senior pension medical examiner. I have an office staffed with an administrator and a secretary. Here, we examine people each morning for the purpose of deciding the degree of disability a pensioner has, and submit our findings to the commissioner for his approval. I can assure you we do not always agree."

He is also Senior Treatment Medical Officer and Regional Director of the Emergency Health Services.

Guest of the Rotary at the meeting were, Dale Mader and Donald Sampson, both of Charlottetown. Visiting Rotarians were Cam MacDonald, Summerside, and Major V. Marsland, Saint John, N.B.

On a motion by Charles MacQuaid, seconded by Jim Cerry, and unanimously passed, the club will donate $4,000 to the Genchoff Rehabilitation Camp.

MI-G Pilots Flee To China

SAIGON (AP)—A high-ranking U.S. Navy officer said today some North Vietnamese MiG pilots duck across the Chinese border to avoid pursuit by U.S. warplanes.

However, he told reporters "I have no information" that the North Vietnamese air force is using bases in China either to launch missions or as a sanctuary.

Presumably the MiGs fly back into North Vietnam when the coast is clear.

The officer said "so far as I know, the planes are flown by North Vietnamese pilots."
