GENERAL OBSERVATIONS:

Prince Edward Island was represented in Judging competitions held at the Maritime Winter Fair, this year, by a group of outstanding Judging Teams which consisted of five Livestock Judging Teams; one Seeds and Crops Judging Team and one Poultry Judging Team.

In strong competition, not only did the Island teams capture high laurels in Livestock Judging but also brought back highest laurels in Poultry Judging Competition.

Livestock contestants were required to judge two classes of beef cattle; two classes of sheep; one class of swine and one class of hog carcasses.

Prizes were given on one class of Jerseys; Beef Shorthorns; North County Cheviots; Breeding class of Yorkshire and on a class of market hogs.

Each individual was scored separately and an Islander won the distinction, this year, of having the highest individual score.

Team placings were determined by computing the aggregate score of the two individuals comprising a team. The highly coveted honour of placing first as a team was won by an Island team who were awarded the Maritime Federal Shield.

First place in the Poultry Judging competition fell to the Island entry who were scored as a team.

Island teams placed first in judging cattle, swine, and hog carcasses.

A gift was offered at the Maritime Winter Fair as a prize for the contestant winning the highest individual score and an Islander (Sterling MacRae) brought home the bacon.

In a new competition, Horse Fitting and Showmanship, an Islander (Wayne Cameron) placed second to an entry who has been associated with Horse Fitting and Showmanship for nine years.

Both Island entries in the Public Speaking contest made a creditable showing but conceded honours to more experienced contestants.

Twelve public speaking contests having won eight.

The parents of all 4-H Club members on the Island have reason to be exceptionally proud of their sons and daughters in club work this year for their outstanding success in the livestock judging competitions at the Amherst Winter Fair.

The Island 4-H teams led the Maritime for top honours and deserve much credit for their efforts and diligence in 4-H club work.

The following is a list of the results in the 4-H livestock judging competitions at the Amherst Winter Fair on the individual livestock classes:

DAIRY CATTLE
1st — Malpeque Club (George Rley and Nelson Morrison).
2nd (tied) Brookfield Club (Sterling MacRae and Jackie Barrett).

SHEEP
1st — Sherbrooke Club (Kathleen Dekker and Junior Colwill).

IWINE
1st — Brookfield Club (Sterling MacRae and Jackie Barrett).
2nd (tied) Bedouque Club (Arthur Craig and Garth Toombs).

HOG CARCASSES
1st — Head of Hillsboro Club (Joyce Jardine and Wayne Cameron).
2nd (tied) Brookfield Club (Sterling MacRae and Jackie Barrett).

Fitting Horses for the Show Ring
2nd — Head of Hillsboro Club (Wayne Cameron).
On a team basis, the highest aggregate score in livestock judging for the Maritimes was obtained by the Brookfield 4-H Calf Club represented by Sterling MacRae and Jackie Barrett.

On an individual basis from a group of fifty contestants, the highest aggregate score for the Maritimes was as follows:
1st Sterling MacRae.
2nd Junior Colwill.
4th Wayne Cameron.

POULTRY PROJECT:
An East Baltic Poultry Team, in the personage of Ian McGregor and Bradley Fay, represented the Island this year in the Poultry Judging Competitions held at the Maritime Winter Fair at Amherst.

Teams were required to judge the class of Barred-Rock females, one class of Light-Sussex females, and two classes of dressed poultry.

A panel of four judges required competitors to give reasons on all classes. In addition, an oral examination was given on Poultry Husbandry.

Competitors were scored on a team basis this year in the Poultry Judging Competitions.

The East Baltic Poultry Judging Team placed first and held a very substantial margin over their nearest competitor.

Ian McGregor and Bradley Fay are to be highly commended on their achievement.

SEEDS AND CROPS PROJECT:
Only one team, St. Georges, represented P. E. I. in the Seeds and Crops Competition. The two boys from the St. Georges Grain Club were Charles Somers and J. M. Campbell.

On Friday morning each contestant of the 11 teams was required to judge two classes of seed potatoes, one class each of seed, barley, timothy seed, and clover seed. Reasons for the placings were given on one class of potatoes, oats, and red clover, in addition the contestants were given ten common weeds to identify and name.

In the afternoon the three judges asked each club member competing a number of oral questions on cultivation, management, fertilization, etc., of potatoes, grain, and forage crops.

Prizes were awarded on the basis of the average score of the two members of each team for all judging classes. Our team did not place on total score but in weed identification the St. Georges team tied for second. M. J. Campbell tied for first place in potato judging and Charles Somers came fourth in forage seed judging.

Both boys made a commendable showing in oral questions as well as in the over all judging competition.

CLOTHING CLUBS
For the first time in the 4-H Club Program at the Maritime Winter Fair the Clothing Clubs of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were featured. The public often has but a vague idea of any phase of club work and a demonstration is given; the demonstration at Amherst was in the form of a fashion show. As all of the provinces have a slightly different work program in the clothing project there was a good variety of garments shown from pyjamas and housecoat to a tailored suit.

Prince Edward Island was represented by Norma MacQuarrie of Hebron, P. E. I., who wore a fourth year project — a gay red and white dress with a white bolero; Miss Hazel MacIsaac of Hebron, who wore second and third year projects, a plaid gingham dirndl skirt and white tailored blouse; and Misses Audrey Mayhew and Evelyn MacEwen of New London, who wore wool skirt and white blouse and blue and grey which were made at a 4-H Senior Girls' Short Course in July. The Hebron team came second to the Kings County team in the Provincial competition in September and a Queens County team was chosen on the basis of age and achievement in order that all parts of the Island might be represented. A green wool cardigan the fifth year project of Kathleen Gillis of Grandview and a blouse made by Bonnie MacKie of Southport were also shown.

4-H Club work is on the increase in the Maritimes and the 4-H Club features at the Winter Fair are becoming more interesting to both club members and the general public each year. From five years ago when a straggling parade around the ring was the only part of the clubs played in the opening, the smart formation of 4-H's in each corner of the arena, by the 1954 members with colorful standard and banners was a credit to the 4-H club members of the three provinces.

The 1954 club program at the Maritime Winter Fair has passed into history and I am sure that the boys and girls who were privileged to participate have benefited greatly by their experiences. The participation in the different contests and the mingling with boys and girls from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia will tend to broaden the outlook of our own young people.

The sixteen young people who took part in the contests this year were representing the 1957 members who are enrolled in the 4-H club movement in this province.

The results of the contests show the keen interest taken by those who represented the province and I am sure all our rural people will want to congratulate the contestants on their excellent showing at the Maritime Winter Fair.

In the very near future, 4-H calf clubs will be re-organized once again and any district wishing to organize or re-organize a 4-H club should write the Provincial Department of Agriculture in Charlottetown. In order to qualify, each club must have a minimum of ten members composed of both boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 years of age. A minimum of five calves of the same breed (grade or purebred) is essential or if two breeds are desired then there must be five of each breed in the club but in order for a member to derive maximum benefits from club work, each and every boy or girl should have and own his or her own calf.

CLOVER SEED PROSPECTS
Preliminary estimates of clover and alfalfa seed production in Canada for 1954 make a gloomy picture indeed. Briefly this is the situation: Red Clover and Alsike — down 25 per cent; Alfalfa — down 70 per cent; Sweet Clover — down 50 per cent. (All based on the ten-year average, 1944 - 1953). Although Red Clover and Alsike, our two most important clovers, are down only 25 per cent, the supply of seed will be greatly affected by other factors. The U. S. seed production of these two clovers is estimated to be only 60 per cent of the average crop. Wet weather in Europe has also greatly lowered their seed production resulting in big demand there for North American seed.

These facts all point to a much increased cost of clover seed for Island farmers next spring.

What can be done to ease the situation? At the present time there are hundreds of acres of red clover aftermath in the province which should be well worth-while harvesting. The seed set appears to be good and if only 40 or 50 pounds per acre is harvested in all probability the cost would be amply justified. Swathing, and combining on a dry, sunny afternoon is probably the best method now available.

A small reduction in the clover portion of the grass seed mixture could be made provided the rate of grain seeding is reduced to not more than three bushels per acre. The majority of farmers are seeding 8-9 pounds of timothy and 2 pounds each of red clover and alsike. With careful seed bed preparation, using some fertilizer and or manure, and early seeding and harvesting, equally good results should be possible if the cover rates are each reduced to 1/2 pound. Farmers might also be well advised to experiment with Ladino clover for silage and pasture. Although the seed has in the past cost more than either red or alsike clover only 1/2 to 1 pound per acre is required. A large reduction of the other clovers in the mixture should be made when Ladino is used to permit establishment of this valuable clover.

POTATO GROWERS

Prince Edward Island grows about 2% of the North American Potato Production.

How can anyone with only 2% of the merchandise hope to control or stabilize the market?

Last year's selling agency's records will prove that from April 1st on, any change in the price in New Brunswick was followed by a similar change here. The selling agency did not determine the price of P. E. I. Potatoes; New Brunswick did!

We and Our Neighbors

GIVING AND TAKING

Last week's column seem to find more than the average reader-response. Perhaps a few added thoughts arising from the matter of borrowing and lending, giving and taking may prove of interest.

If I will Shakespeare were alive I'd like to discuss with him his line, "For loan of loses both itself and friend."

"Will," I'd ask, "do you really consider such a one-a friend? Isn't getting rid of him worth the loss?"

Only once have I met an individual who adopted Shakespeare's advice about borrowing and lending as life principle. It was many years ago when I was a substitute teacher in New York City. I received a hurry call one day and ran off to the school with an empty purse. Fortunately the school was within walking distance and I planned to go back for money during the lunch hour. But it was important that I cancel a luncheon engagement. During the morning recess I laughingly explained the situation to the teacher next door and asked her to lend me a nickel for a telephone call. She looked at me grimly and said, "I never borrow and never lend."

When I told the story to some of the other teachers they simply shrugged and said, "That's the way, she is. We don't bother with her." What a world it would be with more like her!

It isn't borrowing and lending but ordinary giving and taking that complicates our every day relationships. I am not speaking of public life with its own system of giving and taking; in borrowing and lending there is a promise to pay back to kind, but in giving and taking the giving is supposed to be a gift. Then why are the words, "ingratitude, lack of appreciation," so often heard? They certainly imply an unpaid obligation, or debt.

Supposedly we gave freely of our time, our efforts, our hospitality, even our money. Why then do most of us feel cheated when there isn't some acknowledgement of our kindness?

Modern parents do not say it so often, but in many homes children are still reproached for not showing their gratitude for all their parents have given them. "After all the sacrifices we have made for you," they say, "you refuse to—"

And wives with their complaint, "I have sacrificed the best years of my life, and what have I gotten for it?" are common in real life as well as in funny stories.

Even between friends, or at least in associations approaching real friendship in an imperfect world,

Card Of Thanks

I wish to thank Dr. Murchison of Hunter River, Dr. Hooper and Dr. Brown who attended me while I was sick. Also Dr. Caskey, Doctors and Nurses and Staff of St. John General Hospital who were so kind to me while I was a patient there. Also Rev. Mr. Fraser for his visits and kind words of prayer. Thanks to those who visited me and sent cards, letters, flowers and treats.

THIS IS SPIRIT OF CHRISTIANITY

What has the word of God to say to us in times of disaster? We cannot but ask ultimate questions when a calamity such as has just fallen on our city overtakes us. We felt so secure. Hurricanes might wreck places along the coast, but could not reach the interior. Then suddenly the blow fell.

Pictures of devastation and death appal the imagination, but it is when we come in touch with the people stricken — homes broken up, families swept away, the little children carried down to death, that our hearts break. In such circumstances the word of a God of love has much for His people.

Jesus' answers to questions that suffering suggests were always practical. When His disciples raised abstract questions, He pointed to immediate duties. Once they asked: "Lord, will those who are saved be few?" He answered: "Strive to enter by the narrow door." What you should do is plain: now do it.

When the Twelve saw a man born blind, they asked: "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" Jesus answered, "Neither" but "I must work the works of Him who sent Me while it is day; night comes when no one can work." Then He gave the blind his sight.

This is the spirit of Christianity: some day all questions will be answered, but in the meantime, the necessities of the people must be met. It was this that lifted up our hearts when we were taken to the United Church in Woodbridge the Sunday morning after the catastrophe.

The church's fine, new equipment had been opened to the Red Cross for its services to the stricken people. The women of the congregation were preparing and serving food. They told us that ample supplies of food, bedding and clothing had been provided by the Red Cross for all who needed.

ONE EXAMPLE

This was but one example of what was and is being done by these and similar organizations wherever the floods struck. It is the answer of the Christian spirit to calamity by whomsoever suffered.

But there is more than this in the word of God for the sufferer. There is a great deal about floods in the Bible. The Hebrew was a landsman, and when he speaks of floods he is rarely thinking of the sea. Usually he has in mind what happens in the "wadis" or ravines with which he was familiar.

These stream-beds were dry in summer, but raging torrents rushed through them in the rainy season. Then when a cloud-burst came, such as we have experienced, the flood swept everything before it.

It was this that Jesus had in mind when He closed His Sermon on the Mount with the warning that only the house built on the rocks could stand when such floods arose.

Now God does not guarantee that such floods will never fall upon His people. They are never exempt from the calamities common to the race. The assurance He does give is that He will be with them through it all.

This to Israel in exile the divine word came: "When you pass through the waters, I will be with you; and through the rivers, they shall not overwhelm you; when you walk through fire you shall not be burned, and the flame shall not consume you. For I am the Lord, your God, the Holy One of Israel, your Saviour."

To the believing mind, God is in control of every upsurge of earth's forces. So a psalmist could write: "The Lord sits enthroned as King forever." Somehow — although we cannot see how — a God of love is in command and makes the flood serve His purposes.

In so many cases this calamity has fallen upon the people least able to bear it. Their suffering will stir the nation to see that none of our people will ever again be exposed to such perils. And the love that shares the sorrows of the victims of today will be the link of the more perfect life of the future.
