

The Indian Deficit.

English papers received by the last mail express great indignation at the lately discovered deficit in the Indian exchequer; and it is well for the late Ministry that they have cleared their skirts of Professor Fawcett's charge that they knew of it previous to the elections. It appears that the Indian Government calculated the cost of the Afghan war at half the actual figure. In defence it is urged that the cost of transport, of the maintenance of the army, the increase in the price of provisions and the pay of camp followers on foreign service, and the expense attending the construction of defensive works to enable the troops to hold the positions they had won, had thrown out the astute financiers of Calcutta. On the other hand it is urged that there was all the experience of the previous campaign to teach them. A commission of enquiry is talked of; and it is predicted that the delinquents will receive harsh treatment.

Arctic Exploration.

AND still there are men to explore the mysteries of the North. Captain Hooper, of the United States Steamer Cornic, with his gallant crew are the latest we hear of. The Cornic is to leave San Francisco tomorrow. She is to make the best of her way to the neighborhood of Behring Strait, so as to be ready to enter the Arctic seas as soon as she can. Within the Arctic seas, Captain Hooper is to make every endeavor to find and relieve the whalers "Virgulant" and "Mount Woolston," which were caught in the ice last year; he is to endeavor to communicate with the "Jeannette" or obtain intelligence of where and how she wintered, and of her present probable whereabouts; and he is to do some exploration on his own account, as he is especially directed to study the tides, currents and soundings of any part of the Arctic seas in which he may sail. Finally, he is to investigate the reports of the wholesale starving of the people of St. Lawrence Island.

Cattle Shipments to England.

(From the St. John Telegraph.)

The shipping of beef cattle from America to the British markets is just becoming a very large and profitable branch of trade, and of this business Canada is already doing a very considerable share. Australia, in consequence of its great distance from England, is, of course, unable to send live cattle to that country, and the frozen meat which it sends has to be sold immediately on its arrival and cannot be kept until a market offers as in the case with live cattle. For this reason, if for no other, it is believed that Australia will never be a dangerous competitor with America in this trade; and even in dead meat, this continent has every advantage over Australia, and must have for many years to come. A project has been mooted for the sending of American cattle to England for the purpose of being fed and fattened there, but this finds little favor from such intelligent newspapers as the "Live Stock Journal," which predicts that it would not pay. Indeed this must be evident to all who remember that the main reason why cattle can be raised in America more cheaply than in England is because their food is cheaper. It is found in practice by shippers both in the United States and Canada, that the most profitable cattle to ship to England are those of the best grades. The Durham cattle bring the highest price for beef in England, butchers preferring them on account of the large quantity of first class meat they can cut from the carcass. Common native cattle are estimated to have fully one-third less meat than Durhams, and are therefore so much the less profitable. The impression which prevails among many farmers that it requires better food to fatten thorough-bred cattle than common stock appears to be an erroneous one, the very reverse being the case. The Canadian export of cattle, which is already large, is likely to increase greatly this year, cattle from the Dominion having the important advantage over those from the United States, for cattle from the latter country have to be slaughtered on their arrival at the port of debarkation, while Canada cattle can be kept at pasture until they are required. This is owing to the absence of disease from Canadian herds, and it is to be hoped that this immunity from disease will continue to operate in our favor. The shipment of Canadian sheep to England is also becoming a large trade. Last year 75,000 were sent from Ontario alone and this year that number will probably be more than doubled. The breeds most fancied are the Cotswold and Leicester, because they produce the heaviest weights and mature most rapidly.

Intense Heat in the United States.

OVER 100 DEGREES IN THE SHADE.

A Boston despatch of the 26th inst. says:—A despatch from various points of New Hampshire indicate that to-day has been the hottest ever experienced. The thermometer ranged from 96 to 101 degrees, the latter at Manchester, 100 being registered in a number of places. At Lowell, Mass., the mercury reached 102 in the shade.

There are between 12,000 and 15,000 Canadians living in Chicago.

ROWER RILEY ROUTED.

RILEY CHIEF MOURNER FROM THE START AT HIS OWN AQUATIC FUNERAL.—AMERICANS PREPARED TO BACK HANLAN AGAINST THE WORLD.

WASHINGTON, May 26.

The five mile scull race between Ed. Hanlan, of Toronto, and James H. Riley, of Saratoga, for the citizens' purse of $2,000 came off this evening, and resulted, after a sharp brush of a mile, in a walk-over for Hanlan. Americans now believe that Judge Elliott's stories about Hanlan buying his victories in his races against Ross, Courtney, Elliott, Hawdon, and the other scullers against whom he pulled, had no foundation in fact, and that the Canadian is indeed, the champion sculler of the world, and that he will find no trouble in defeating Trickett. Hundreds of them are prepared to back him for almost any amount against the Australian. The opinion is freely expressed that Hanlan should row Trickett in "Australia," where barrels of money would be wagered on Trickett by his friends, instead of having the race take place in England.

THE RACE.

Owing to the extreme heat the race was postponed, by mutual consent, till six o'clock this evening. A minute or two before the hour the Canadian was seen to row towards the starting point. Riley was not slow in following suit, and at five minutes past six o'clock both men had backed into line and were waiting for the word. Riley won the toss and chose the Virginia shore. At 6.07½ was effected, Hanlan obtaining a clear lead of half a length. He went away with a stroke of 34 to the minute, Riley pulling 36. Both splashed a little at the start, but when they settled down to their work the stroke of each was as near perfection as possible. It was evident that Hanlan wanted to be avenged for the Barrie cheat, and that he intended beating his opponent to a standstill in the first mile. Before more than a quarter of a mile was covered Hanlan was leading by fully three lengths. This lead he increased to five lengths at the half mile, and when the mile point was reached

THE START

RILEY WAS A EADLY USED-UP AND BEATEN SCULLER.

The Canadian now slackened his pace and allowed Riley to come pretty close to him several times, only to laugh at and pull away from him as he pleased.

HALF WAY.

Riley tried to gain ground several times by spurring, but it was no use. Hanlan had him where he pleased. The Canadian passed the two and a half mile post fully eight lengths in advance of his opponent, and was still leading as he pleased at the three-mile post. In vain did Riley try to gain ground. At the four mile post Hanlan seemed to be leading by nearly a third of a mile. The Canadian pulled a moderate practice stroke to the finish, winning by over two minutes. There was a dispute about time. Personal friends of Courtney, who seemed anxious to have it appear that Riley rowed Hanlan no better race than Courtney, gave Hanlan's time forty minutes, Riley's two minutes more. The correct time is believed to be 37.12, though some give it as low as 36.03. Hanlan could have rowed the five miles fully two minutes faster than he did row it. He had no occasion, however, to do so. At the finish he was perfectly fresh looking, while Riley was used up.

Mr. Vennor Again.

Mr. Henry G. Vennor comes forward again with his direful predictions of storms, heat, cold, etc. His letter is dated Montreal, and in it he says: "I believe that June will be an intensely hot month on the whole, but the end of the present month, and probably the 1st of June, will be fall-like with frosts again. July will be a terrible month for storms, with terms of intense heat, but another fall-like relapse, with frosts, will, in all probability, occur a few days before the 20th. I fear the storms of thunder and hail will be of unusual severity during July. I must claim the verification of my predictions relative to a cold wave, with frosts, over a large portion of the United States, between the 10th and 15th of May. The relapse towards the close of the present month will be more severe than that just passed."

Lord Granville's Ghost.

The Granville ghost has puzzled Professor Tyndall. During the session that terminated so abruptly last month, Lord Granville was often observed to be gazing in an abstracted manner at the wall opposite his seat in the House of Lords; and on more than one occasion while he was speaking he came to a dead stop for a moment or two and looked earnestly at the point in question before resuming. It has gradually leaked out that the cause of this was the apparition of a casement in the wall with a shadow form, as of a lady, sitting at the window with her elbow on the sill and her head resting on her hand. The arm and face were always very distinct, the former being adorned with a bracelet, in which a magnificent diamond star flashed brightly, and the latter, a singularly beautiful countenance, being characterized by an expression of unutterable sadness. All hypotheses of disordered vision or "unconscious cerebration" have failed to explain the phenomenon; for, as Lord Granville is perfectly free from aspirations outside the House of Lords, it is evident the "ghost," has to do with the locality rather than with the person. Professor Tyndall has been applied to and has avowed his determination to clear up the mystery, but hitherto all investigations have proved unavailing.
