Purpose
 I marked with calculating eye
 The distance to desire,
 And noted, too, the furious Fates:
 Fierce wind and Flood and Fire.

I bade adieu to Doubt and Dread
 And armed me for the fray.
 Then slept, and, waking at the dawn,
 Desire beside me lay!

The Arab's Lesson.
 'My son,' said an arab, 'hasten to the spring and bring me a net of water.' The lad hastened, and worked long and diligently to fill the net, but before he could return to the tent the water leaked out. At length he returned to his father and said, 'Although I repeated-filled the net, the water would not stay.' Then his father said, 'My son what you say is true. The water would not stay, but see how clean the net is.' So it will be with your heart. You may not be able to remember all the precepts you hear, but keep trying trying to treasure them, they will make your heart pure and fit for heavenly uses.—Sign of The Cross.

A Double Standard.
 Now and then we meet a person who boasts that he never changes his mind but it is difficult to see just his reason for self congratulation. There is nothing attractive about a nature which never yields. The one who holds obstinately to his own way, who cannot be reasoned out of an opinion once formed, who cannot be persuaded to follow any different path from that laid down by his own likings, will never be rich in friends. The art of yielding gracefully is one of the secrets of charm.

On the other hand, we need to guard against too easily yielding. The one who has no fixed principals, but veers around with every change of associations, wins neither regard nor respect. As a rule we do not desire friends who are not even true to their own thought of right. Steadfastness in essentials, readiness to yield in trifles, is the ideal standard which young people should strive to reach.—Canadian Churchman.

Sympathy unaccompanied by tact is almost valueless. It may still be golden but a man knocked down by a mass of the precious metal is quite as likely to be injured as if the missile had been lead or iron.

Nothing is more enfeebling to anyone than to be assured of his weakness, nothing more injurious to his character than to be constantly reminded of its defects. It is that which we desire rightly to perpetuate on which we should dwell; that which is the most deserving of honor should receive the emphasis.

Violence ever defeats its own ends. Where you cannot drive you can almost always persuade. A gentle word, a kind look, a good-natured smile, can work wonders and accomplish miracles. There is a secret pride in every human heart that revolts at tyranny. You may order and drive an individual, but you cannot make him respect you.—Canadian Home Journal.

A MISTAKEN IMPRESSION CORRECTED.

Dyspeptics are not Naturally Irritable Cranks.

But People of Culture and Intelligence—Hence Their Avoidance of Quack Medicines, and their Use of DODD'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

The general impression that dyspeptic persons are un sociable, "grumpy," cranks is far from correct. As a rule people who are afflicted by Dyspepsia, are persons of the most genial and sunny temperament. More than that, they are, in nine cases out of every ten, intellectual, and intelligent to an unusually great extent. That is one reason why they cannot be imposed upon by quack medicines, and "cure-alls." They know what is wrong with them. They know that there is only one way of curing it—by removing its cause.

good management in practical affairs. —Indecision and indefiniteness are as fatal to the Christian life as restlessness and impatience. We are a restless people. Have we any definite purpose except to have a good time.

Friendship is the noblest, purest, relation that can exist between two human beings, and to be able to make a friend is one of the most glorious distinctions between man and the creatures beneath him.—George Dawson.

The useful man in any congregation of Christians is the man who is willing to do that which others are unwilling to do; who can rejoice as much in the successful efforts of other Christians as he can in his own successful efforts.

The purest lives I have known have not been those carefully screened from the world, but which coming up in it have kept themselves unspotted. The sweetest and truest have grown and ripened under conditions, you would say, most hostile, but which have been wrought into the means of a grandly elevated faith and life.—J. F. W. Ware.

A Happy New Year Indeed

To those who believe there is no cure for catarrh and to whom the constant use of ointments, snuff and washes was a weariness to the flesh, a delightful and sure cure has been found. No need for fetid breath and broken voice. Send for a free sample outfit and be convinced. The name of this sure cure is Catarrhazone. Catarrhazone penetrates to the diseased parts in the form of a pine-scented gas. Write at once to N. C. POLSON & Co., Kingston, Ont.

GOOD WORDS FOR THE EXAMINER

Sir,—I notice a correspondent in the Guardian of 31st ult., extols that paper for the interests it manifests in our local industries, but it seems to me that the Guardian is too late in the field for laurels of this nature. THE EXAMINER newspaper has for years denoted its space and energies to the best interests of our local manufacturers, and has closely identified itself with the progress of every new industry started here.

It is very gratifying to learn, however, from the Guardian's correspondent that the Charlottetown Soap works is doing a flourishing business and that the dealers throughout the Province are loyally standing by their own factory. It appears that the two travelling salesmen now on the road taking orders for the Soap Factory are receiving large orders from every dealer they call upon. Everything being equal dealers freely give their orders for soap made at their own factory. This is very pleasing news and cannot but be of great benefit to the entire Province. The money that was formerly sent off the Island for soap will hereafter circulate among our people, and we will be all the richer for it. The time is not far distant when we trust the now famous Klondike Bar will be eagerly sought after by every housekeeper with any pretensions to economy and that great solid bar, Royal Oak, the very perfection of laundry soap, will be as familiar as the almanac to everyone. We must not omit "Jubilee," it is manufactured from the most expensive oils, lathers freely, and delicately perfumed, is exquisite for the toilet and luxurious in the bath. These are great names in soap that must become familiar to every housekeeper. No, Mr. Guadon, you cannot take first place as an advocate of our local industries. That has been and will continue to be held by THE EXAMINER. Go measure your strength with the Patriot.

Kidney Disease Permanently Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr Samuel Locke, of Jordan Bay, N. S., Tells the Story—He Suffered for Years Without Relief—Then he Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and was Cured.

JORDAN BAY, N. S., Feb 4—If ever there was a clear case of Kidney Disease being utterly and absolutely wiped out of the human system, that case was Mr Samuel Locke's.

Mr Locke lives at Jordan Bay, and the citizens of that place all know him well and favorably. They all know that he endured the greatest agony from diseased Kidneys.

The newspapers published accounts of his case; different physicians undertook to cure him, but they all failed.

Day by day his condition grew worse, and his sufferings increased. He used various remedies, each of which was said by its manufacturers, to be a sure cure. Yet these failed as the doctors had failed.

Finally, when it seemed as if every effort had been exhausted in vain, Mr Locke was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Soon after he had taken his first dose of this medicine he felt a slight change for the better. Every day this change grew more noticeable to both himself and his family, and at length, Mr Locke was well again in sound health, and robust strength able to work, to eat, to sleep, to enjoy life, as well and as heartily as he ever did.

There cannot be a particle of doubt that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only effective Kidney Medicine known today. It has been proved thousand of times. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Diseases of Women, and all other Kidney Complaints yield to them.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists; fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50 or sent, on receipt of price, by the Dodd's Medicine Co, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

They Call it Derangement.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The Star says that one of the cashiers of Parrs bank which was recently robbed of bank notes to the amount of about £60,000, in a mysterious manner, all the notes of the large denominations being returned later by mail, has confessed to taking the money. The paper adds that it is supposed the man is deranged. All the notes have now been recovered.

FEBRUARY MAGAZINES.

HARPER'S.

In Harper's Magazine for February Senator Henry Cabot Lodge begins a history of the Spanish-American war, illustrated by Carlton T. Chapman and from portraits. Dr. John A. Wyeth contributes an article on a famous incident of the civil war, "Lieutenant-Colonel Forrest at Fort Donelson," profusely illustrated by T. de Thulestrap, A. C. Redwood, Max F. Klepper, and W. A. Rogers. Among other features are "A Trekking Trip in South Africa," by A. C. Humbert, illustrated with views of South African life and sport; "Anglo-Saxon Affinities," by Julian Ralph; and "The United States as a World Power," a chapter of national experience, by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart. Professor C. A. Young discusses "The Astronomical Outlook," and C. C. Abbott contributes a beautiful nature study under the title "Facing the North Star."

This issue is also especially rich in short stories. A. C. Wheeler ("Nym Crinkle") contributes "Ghosts in Jerusalem," illustrated by F. V. Du Mond. The romance which is the motive of this story is thoroughly characteristic of American life, and the influences under which it develops are characteristic of the Orient. Other short stories of surpassing interest are "Baldy," by Sarah Barnwell Elliott; "The Sick Child," a sketch of Indian life, by Henook-Makhewe-Klenaka, (Angel de Cora) illustrated by the author, who is a pupil of Mr. Howard Pyle, from drawings made under his tuition; "His Nomination," by Margaret Sutton Briscoe, illustrated by F. C. Yohr. "The Span of Life," the serial by William McLennan and J. N. McIlwraith, is continued in this number, and William Dean Howells contributes the second instalment of "Their Silver Wedding Journey," illustrated by W. T. Smedley.

SCRIBNER'S.

Scribner's for February contains two contributions of exceptional literary value. One is the letters of Robert Louis Stevenson, the other an article on William Makepeace Thackeray. All lovers of Stevenson will read the letters with interest, for they contain many gleams of the genuine Stevenson style. Students of Thackeray will find the great novelist exhaustively discussed and will come across many new and interesting facts. The other contributions comprise an article of the Rough Riders by Colonel Roosevelt, some good short stories and the second part of George W. Cable's story. The entomologist. Special ment on should be made of the illustrations—especially the etchings accompanying the Stevenson Letter.
