Donkey Ball Game Success At Kensington

The "donkey ball game" played in Kensington last evening between the Kensington Athletic Association and the Summerside Legion was a distinct success from a hilarious standpoint, and resulted in a win for the Kensington muls manipulators by a score of 1 to 0. Reg. Holman managed to pull push and ride (not too much of the last item) L'I' Abner around all the bases to make port to a thunderous accompaniment of cheers. The donkeys adopted a devil-may-care attitude towards the whole affair and didn't seem to care who won the ball game, just so long as they were left free to wander around unencumbered with human freight. No player stayed astride one of those cantankerous critters for much longer than you can snap a finger. Sometimes they slid their rider over their necks, but if the base runners sat far back on the mules they really got tossed in a very spectacular fashion. "No riders" was plainly their code of existence as if the words had been painted on their backs. After the game an animal which was half donkey and half Shetland pony performed some clever tricks to the delight of the large crowd that had come to watch the game.—S

Kay were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McDougall. They also attended the Masonic service held in Lot 14 Presbyterian Church in the evening.

Electric Plant Well Supplied With Fuel Oil
Rumors current in Summerside yesterday that the municipal electric light plant there had only enough fuel oil for two or three days' operation are without any foundation, Mayor Wedge informed a Guardian representative yesterday. Actually, there is sufficient oil on hand and available for from three weeks to a month, the Mayor stated.

Sport Echoes From Prince County

Bob St. Pierre is vindicating all the good things we said about him. His no-hitter in Harmon Field, Newfoundland, was a superb performance and some of the American sluggers looked as if they were swinging Indian clubs. The big fellow didn't seem to be particularly elated over his feat. Round about the sixth inning he began to realize that the dream game was a possibility for him, but it didn't unnerve him a bit apparently. He just went right on whipping them in there and making the opposition look silly. The team backed him up pretty well too. Frankie Oatway made a rather spectacular catch in right field that, if Frankie had been a bit less energetic, might have gone for a hit.
Since that game we've learned that this was St. Pierre's fourth no-hitter, and that explains his nonchalance after the great deed was performed. Old stuff to him, you understand.
Johnny Finn deserved a better fate in the game he pitched. His performance was only slightly below the great performance of his fellow Bostonian. Finn gave up two hits, both to Johnny Lockwood, but lost the ball game chiefly because his mates decided that this was the time to put on the greatest stumblebum exhibition of their careers. Three easy rollers went through the fielders and every one of the miscues was costly.
Finally, after watching these disheartening displays of marginal fingers, (we hope the dairy industry doesn't get after us for changing this time-honored phrase)

Johnny contributed to his own downfall by committing the climactic error of the ball game. He failed to hold a throw to the plate which, if held, would have wiped out the winning run and sent the game into extra innings. In spite of this, we think Finn was more sinned against than sinning. Finn struck out fifteen batters, four more than Bob St. Pierre whiffed in his masterpiece.
Today, (at least, we hope "today" is the word, but with the rains not running, we can't be sure of it), is the big day of sport in Summerside when the donkeys carry the male in a comedy ball game which should have some of the more excitable ball fans falling off the grandstands. Don't ask us how the donkeys are going to get over to Prince Edward Island. Mule train, perhaps. But if they are here, and you will probably be informed of this in plenty of time, you will see the spectacle of the twentieth century.

Our weekly bouquet:
Bob St. Pierre's our man this time.
We told you he had promise; That no-hit game has shown the truth
To every doubting Thomas.
Our weekly brickbat:
To the players who bobbed the ball behind Finn,
We'll forgive you this time, but don't do it agin.

Appreciation Of Members' Assistance

Wing Commander R. F. Gross, who recently relinquished the post of Commanding Officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force Station at Summerside, wrote the Premier J. Walter Jones before leaving expressing appreciation and thanks for the excellent co-operation and assistance which I have received at all times from you, the members of your Legislature and the Government staffs.
Wing Commander Gross went on to say, "Your appreciation of the problems which are inherent in the reopening and renovation of a station are most commendable and the help we have received, large or small, has made it a pleasure to work with you and your staff. He singled out two members of the Legislature, Lorne MacFarlane and Carl Delaney, for a special word of appreciation. They have he said, at all times "been of real assistance to the Station. Both these gentlemen take a keen interest in all our activities and have put themselves out many times in order to improve our position." "I regret very much leaving your fair Island but hope to return to it again when I shall be able to enjoy the hospitality of your friendly residents," the letter concluded.
