

LOCAL ROAD BUILDERS SHOW THE WAY

LBJ Said Pushing To Abyss

By Reuters
Three African leaders and Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri expressed concern Friday night over the war in Viet Nam while in Russia a weekly political magazine said President Johnson is pushing the United States to "the abyss."

In Cairo, Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Guinea President Sekou Toure expressed concern over what they called the deterioration in the situation in Viet Nam.

A communique released by the two called for an end to U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam.

In New Delhi, Shastri and Uganda President Milton Obote called for an end to hostilities in Viet Nam in order to create a climate for a Geneva-type conference.

The call, issued in a joint communique following a state visit by Obote, said a conference on Viet Nam should be held as soon as possible.

ASK BOMB HALT
"The stoppage of hostilities, including stoppage of the bombing of (North) Viet Nam, would create a peaceful climate for the holding of this conference," it said.

In Moscow, the political weekly magazine Za Rubezhom (Abroad) said the Viet Nam conflict is developing into a "big American war in Asia."

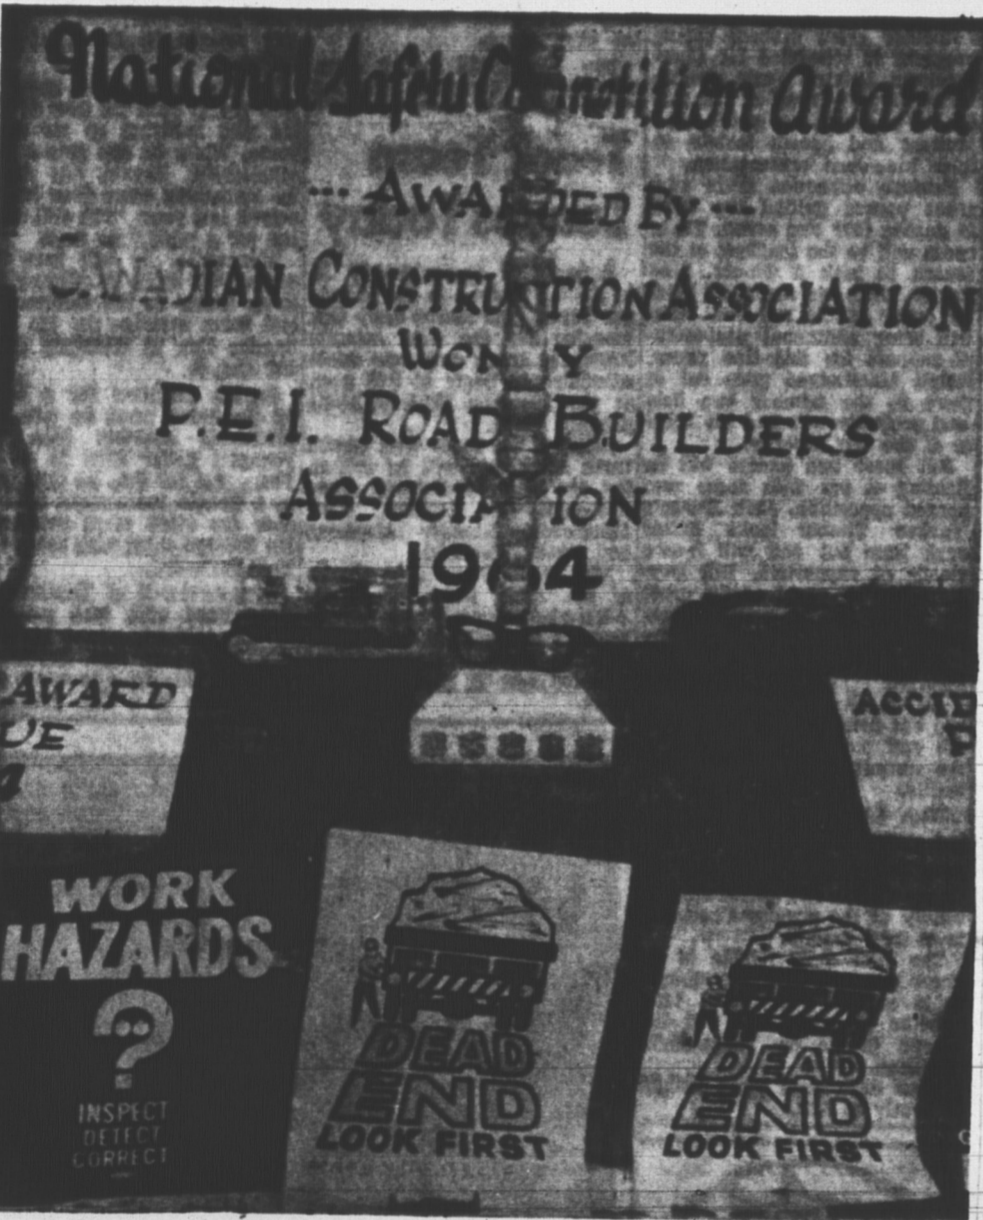

A harshly-worded article by Danil Kraminov, the magazine's editor, said the war is a purely American affair.

Except for puppet regimes like the South Korean, not a single country has decided to send even token forces to South Viet Nam," it declared.

There was no mention by name of Australian or New Zealand forces assisting the American but the reference to "puppet regimes" was clearly intended to refer to them as well.

In Cairo, the communique, issued by Nasser and Toure, said the leaders had discussed the existing international situation which they said is dominated by growing tension, due to the use of force to realize political objectives and the insistence of imperialist forces on pursuing a policy to extend dominion over people and attack their sovereignty and independence.

In New Delhi, the communique from Shastri and Obote saw the Vietnamese war as a threat to world peace and called for a political rather than military solution within the framework of the 1954 Geneva agreements.

Safety Meets Are Planned

The P.E.I. Workmen's Compensation Board will hold industrial safety meetings in five Island communities next week.

Board safety supervisor M.E. Campbell said the meetings will be held with management, including superintendents, safety supervisors, foremen and chairmen of active safety committees.

"We plan," said Mr. Campbell, "to hold these informal meetings probably in the form of panel discussions with questions and participation on the part of those attending which we feel is the best method of developing the principles and attitudes in connection with accident prevention and safety work." Assisting during the week will be J. B. McLaughlin, western division manager of Industrial Accident Prevention Association of Ontario.

Meeting agendas include safety films, panel discussions, industrial safety problems, compensation administration and related problems.

Times and places of the meetings are: Basilica Recreation Centre, Charlottetown, Aug. 10, morning and afternoon; Gulf Garden Foods, Georgetown, Aug. 11, morning; Souris Curling Club, Aug. 11, afternoon; Summerside, Canadian Legion, Aug. 12, morning; Alberton Fire Hall, Aug. 13, morning.

Morning meetings begin at 9 a.m. and afternoon meetings at 2 p.m.

Seaway Traffic Setting Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Traffic continued to move through the St. Lawrence Seaway at a record clip during July.

The seaway authority has reported that the seaway's key Montreal-Lake Ontario section handled 5,450,000 tons of cargo in July, up three per cent from July of last year.

Welland canal traffic for the month was 6,978,000 cargo tons, a gain of nearly five per cent.

Iron ore continues to be the dominant commodity in seaway traffic.

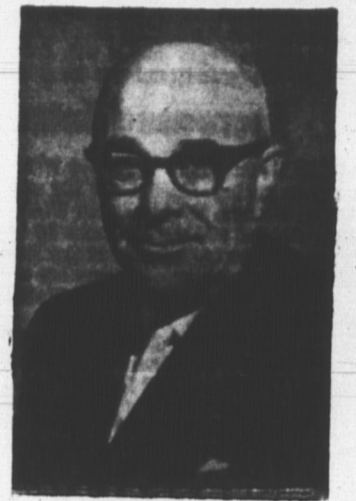

Wheat movements are down sharply from last year's record pace but this has been more commodities.

ENDORSEMENT MESSAGE from MINISTER of HIGHWAYS

Hon. J. Philip Matheson

It is my great pleasure this year to congratulate the 1964 National Safety Competition winners, the P.E.I. Road Builders Association.

Again this year Aug. 9 - Aug. 20—our Island Road Builders will be putting their safety skills on the line, and pitting their work know-how against all the rest of Canada. I have great confidence in all our member firms—and wish them well in their efforts to retain their National Trophy.

I now heartily endorse the current competition—the very nature of which should bring out the best in safe work habits and produce good safe highways for our motoring public, our industrial and tourist development and benefit the Province as a whole.

J. PHILIP MATHESON,
Minister of Highways.

P. E. I. COMPENSATION BOARD ENDORSES 1965 ROADBUILDERS NATIONAL COMPETITION

M. E. CAMPBELL

National Safety Award Winners, 1964, we salute you, this accomplishment reflects a sincere and effective concern for the Safety of your employers and the motoring public.

The achievement resulted from a thorough knowledge of the hazards of the employment and the effective use of safe work Practices, plus proper Protective equipment, to overcome and eliminate these hazards.

The low accident frequency rate, is indicative that there is throughout the Roadbuilders Association an awareness of the value of safe work practices, plus safe equipment.

Safety achieved, means Safety to be sought after. A goal ahead is of more value than a goal behind you.

Road Builders of P.E.I. keep up your good work; remain top man on the Safety Totem Pole.

Workmen's Compensation Board
M. E. CAMPBELL,
Safety Supervisor.

Experiments Being Tried In Transplanting Memory

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Experiments in transplanting memory from one brain to another by injections was disclosed here by a group of psychologists at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The experiment was made with rats but Dr. Allan L. Jacobson said "we can certainly imagine that benefits might result for humans in the long run."

Jacobson, assistant professor of psychology, said the transplanted substance was ribonucleic acid (RNA), long suspected to be involved in the memory process.

The RNA molecule is similar to that of deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA), the molecule that carries hereditary blueprints from one generation to the next. Current theory is that RNA may encode memory much as DNA encodes genetic information.

Jacobson and his associates trained rats to go to a food cup when a certain click was sounded. They extracted RNA from the brains of the trained rats and injected it into the bodies of untrained rats. The injected rats showed a "significant tendency"—seven times out of 25—to go to the cup when a clock sounded, without previous training.

Jacobson said a control group of untrained rats responded in this manner only one time in 25 tries, he said.

Similar responses resulted when a flashing light was used instead of a click.

Jacobson in an interview said: "I don't want to make any wild speculation about the possibility of using this to facilitate learning in humans. But it does seem reasonable that the memory process is the same in a variety of organisms, including man. It would certainly seem desirable to try it next on monkeys."

If it works in humans eventually, would this mean that future generations can get their
