The Creamer-Murray Marriage. [From the New York Daily News.] The marriage of Mr. Frank Creamer, son of Dr. Joseph Creamer, one of the most eminent physicians of the Eastern District of Brooklyn, to Miss Lulu M. Murray, daughter of the late Peter Murray, which took place on Wednesday evening last, was one of the most notable of similar events this season. The ceremony was performed in a quiet manner at the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul on Second street, the Rev. Father Malone officiating.

The bride's costume was of white embroidered plush and Ottoman silk, with plaited back and front and ornamental sides, with a garniture of diamond ornaments. Miss M. Creamer, the groom's charming sister, attired in white satin brocade, officiated as bridesmaid, and Mr. Hubert G. Creamer as groomsmen.

The bridal party entered Mrs. Murray's residence, No. 200 South Ninth street, after leaving the church, Schneider's orchestra played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," which introduced the reception, which commenced at 8 o'clock.

The house had been decorated with charming effect. The parlors, fairly bloomed with bright greens and radiant blossoms, while half a dozen canaries hung amid the foliage, insisted upon joining in the merriment of the occasion. A large hall, made up principally of rich roses, hung over the main entrance to the parlors. Before the main mantel mirror stood two ruddy pyramids entwined with green. The woodwork was almost hidden in smiles.

The bride and groom took up a position in the south parlor, beneath a massive horseshoe of camellias and poinsettias, which rested upon the floor and framed them in its arch. It was surrounded by a monogram formed of the letters "C" and "M" in red and white carnations. In the background were looped curtains of red satin damask, which displayed a shady recess and an aquarium glittering with gold-fish.

The guests were very numerous and the supper was admirably served by Mr. Weeks, and the merrymaking was kept up without interruption until two o'clock in the morning, when the bride and groom departed on their wedding tour. Their trip will include Washington and Philadelphia. They were overwhelmed with gifts and congratulations and were stowed with good-byes and good wishes as they hurried away.

Respecting the basis of credit, the New York Shipping List has this to say: "It is estimated that there is about $7,000 of credit to $1.00 of money on which business is done. Those who have the money have much of making interest really with the same money as a common basis. It also illustrates the value of a reputation for honesty and ability, without which a man is not fit to be the agent of those who have a surplus of money or credit. It is further significant of the need of caution, lest unsafe trading should bring down good and bad business together through the collapse of the credit wall, which is no stronger than its weakest part."

MARRIED. At the residence of the bride's parents, January 11th, by the Rev. J. M. Tredrea, Mr. George Coles, of Rustico, Road, to Sarah June, eldest daughter of R. Wise, Esq., of New Glasgow Road.
