retired contractor of Vancouver, who left his Island home about the same time as Mr. Henry. Another old friend and neighbor is Mr. Charles Robertson, formerly of Marshfield, who is engaged, like Mr. Henry, in dairy farming at Chilliwack.

Mr. Henry reports a fairly good farming and lumbering season in British Columbia. The intense heat in the prairie provinces has caused severe hardship which was noticeable as he passed through that section about two weeks ago, and which has since been intensified.

The great market for Chilliwack farmers is Vancouver, which absorbs all the dairy produce with the exception of canned milk, in which a large export business has been built up by the Fraser Valley Milk Association, a co-operative enterprise, with which Mr. Henry is associated.

He plans remaining here for another fortnight before motoring back to British Columbia.

The entire caravan was captured intact, the broadcast said.

committee comprised Senator John Sinclair of Springfield, Hon. B. W. LePage of Charlottetown and Mr. J. W. Boulter, manager of the Association. They will discuss the association's shipping problem with Minister of Railways Hon. C. D. Howe when he visits this province shortly.

On motion of Mr. Robert Connolly the meeting decided to give the management the power of appointing the men in charge of loading and handling other Association business at local stations. It was felt that the change would make for greater efficiency and result in a larger volume of business for the organization.

Other officers elected by the meeting were:

Vice-President, Horace Wright, M.L.A., Bedeque; Manager, J. W. Boulter, Charlottetown (re-elected); Assistant Manager, Lt. Col. C. C. Thompson, Charlottetown (re-elected); Directors—Kings, W. H. Townsend, Rollo Bay; Queens, W. W. Crosby, Cornwall; Prince, J. MacIntosh, Tignish.

The following are extracts from the auditor's report:

"General—It would seem as if the Association was well on the way of the climb back to a sound financial position. This year's operating profit for a co-operative organization is quite substantial and a very few years of similar profits with close attention to collections, will wipe out the deficit. The Manager, Assistant Manager, and Accounting Staff have given me every assistance and co-operation during the audit, making it a pleasure to carry on the work.

"In my opinion the balance sheet, showing a net deficit at June 30, 1936, of $47,934.71, is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the Association's affairs as at June 30th, 1936, according to the best of my information, the explanations given to me and as shown by the books of the Association."

W. A. MORRELL,
Chartered Accountant.

The financial statement was published in Thursday's Guardian.

The meeting Saturday was not as largely attended as on some former years. A number of the members telephoned or sent word that they were unable to attend as they had hay to look after and could not leave.

The following letter was read by the president:

July 18th,

Mr. E. B. McLaren,
President,
P. E. I. Potato Growers' Ass'n.
Dear Sir:

Kindly allow me to express my sincere appreciation to you, sir, and your Board of Directors as well as to your manager, Mr. Boulter and Lt.-Col. Thompson, assistant manager; indeed I might very well include the whole staff, for the excellent showing you have made for the past year.

We need you, and with the present uptrend in prices, deficits and hard times will soon be but a memory.

Again thanking you,
Yours very truly,
ALBERT S. ROBERTSON.

MANAGER'S REPORT

The following was the report of manager J. W. Boulter.

Mr. President and Gentlemen:

We are here at this our annual meeting to discuss the work of the past year which, on account of the late closing of our books in 1936, covers a period of only eleven months. It is impossible for us to have all our accounts on fertilizer paid by the 30th of June but we are satisfied that it was better to close our books in June and bring on our annual meeting before a later date in the summer. As a matter of fact, any amount outstanding is represented in bills receivable, and already considerable has been collected giving us sufficient to pay for our spray material and our operating expenses.

We have mailed a copy of the financial statement for 1936 to those who constituted our membership in 1934; as the membership at that time, when our liabilities were incurred, are still responsible we feel they should have all the information we can give, and the statement this year must be encouraging to them as it is to us. An analysis of the financial statement will enhance its value rather than reduce it, and I would like, in making this statement, to explain to you a few matters which we can later discuss but to give you the explanations now ma ysave a good deal of repetion later.

General Overhead Expenses

The first item I would like to explain is the general overhead expenses found on Page 3 of the report. This is given as $19,598.91 but it includes an item of $2,658.10 representing an adjustment on crop agreements which leaves less than $17,000. as an overhead expense. We therefore operated at less than 3 per cent of our turn over. Another item I would like you to notice is the interest, which is $4,880.63. We are paying a high rate of interest during the first part of our year which, with some items of interest on old accounts, makes our cost very high. We estimate a reduction of about $2,000.00 interest for the ensuing year. Coupled with this, is the amount deducted from what would otherwise be a profit on the year's business the amount of $12,256.26. In the deficit account you will notice the item set out "By Compromise Old Accounts," but this amount is offset by adjustments and interests to an amount of almost $3,000. With reference to Contingent Liability—$4,057.00, this sum represented drafts that were due on shipments to the West Indies, and not received by the bank, but which the banker advised we included in our receipts. They were therefore discounted. These drafts have since been paid in full. It has not been our custom during the year to discount any paper.

Liabilities Reduced $23,665

Taking all those items under consideration, we feel that in reducing our liabilities from $107,129.83 in 1935 to $83,464.31 this year, we have accomplished something worthwhile, and if given two more years business we believe we will show a clean sheet. Should the same percentage of increase of business over that of last year continue in the two succeeding years, we shall have a very nice reserve set up.

Having once accomplished this desired position we think a re-organization of the association with necessary changes in the Act of Incorporation should be brought about. Personally, I did not feel that this should be attempted at the present time. We have conducted the business during the past year on a straight commercial basis. At times we have advanced the price on the products, but we, as well as everyone in business, needed money with which to offset losses of previous years and we felt that as an organization, the farmer, too, was in the same position and we could not take what might appear as an undue profit on our sales. I shall leave the financial statement for the present, and when we come to deal with that, we will explain it more fully if necessary.

Volume of Business Increased

I am pleased with the very great support and cooperation we received from the membership and everyone interested in the welfare of our Association. Our volume of business, despite the fact that the potato crop was much smaller than average, increased very materially, and particularly is this true regarding turnips. We have a wonderful outlet for this product, handling during the past year over 25 per cent of the total amount shipped from the Province. We expect to further enlarge our market this year, and judging from the acreage sown to turnips we shall need a very much increased market if we are to dispose of the stock, and at the same time keep a market that is not overloaded. The overloading of a market is a most difficult matter to prevent, and it is, we know, most serious in its consequences. Up to the present time we have not been able to determine any way by which the supply reaching the market can be properly regulated, and the turnip market is more likely to become glutted than is the potato market because for the latter there is a wider distribution while the sale of turnips is confind almost entirely to Boston and New York.

Looking back over the past, I can candidly state that shippers co-operated more during the past year in regulating the market than has ever been done heretofore, and with profitable results.

Greater Output of Seed

The output of seed from the 1935 crease over that of the previous crop showed a considerable inyear and it was well for the potato industry of Prince Edward Island that it did The prices of both seed and tablestock were good throughout the year but during May and the first part of June advanced beyond that which the market warranted. It became too speculative, based on the idea that there was a great shortage of potatoes in Canada. Facts have proven that at no time was there any shortage, and had it not been for the sharp advance in prices in the United States which permitted us to dispose of a large quantity of tablestock in that country we would have been obliged to dispose of the spring shipments at a much lower price.

While speaking of the marketing of turnips and seed potatoes I should like to point out the great benefit which resulted to our farmers through the trade treaty made between Canada and the United States. Let us take the matter of turnips. Beginning on January 1st, the duty against turnips was cut in two, or, in other words, reduced from 12 1-2 cents for fifty pounds to 6 1-4 cents for fifty pounds. This was the total amount of reduction it was possible to grant without an Act of Congress but the whole duty could be wiped out without injuring producers in the United States as turnips are not grown there in any great quantity for winter shipment. There was shipped, during this period, at least 700,000 bushels which at 6 1-4 cents would amount to $43,750.00. We believe the farmers in this province benefitted almost to the full extent of this saving in duty. However, this saving was not obtained without considerable argument as the buyers in the United States claimed a reduction in duty was made to benefit the consumer, and it was for us to convince them that it was the producer whose interest was at stake.

With regard to certified seed potatoes, the full benefit of the duty did not become effective until March 1st, at which time the reduction amounted to 18 cents a bushel. During the month of March heavy shipments of certified seed were made from the province to the United States an while the price paid here was less than the price paid last fall, you can see that had we not enjoyed the reduction of 18 cents a bushel it would have been impossible for us to compete with the prices at which Maine and other seed-producing countries were selling and realize a price that would be at all comparable with the price then prevailing in Canada for tablestock, and had we not been able to dispose of this large quantity of seed to the United States at that time it would have meant a decided slump in the price of tablestock in Canada. Therefore, it was not only the direct benefit of 18 cents a bushel on the quantity marketed that was realized but the indirect benefit resulting from the higher prices received for hundreds of thousands of bushels of tablestock sold in Canada.

I am sure we are all old enough and wise enough to know a good thing when we get it and while the quota of certified seed allowed is lower than we would like it to be, we should not complain until we have reached the point where this present quota has been taken up. The certified seed shipped from the 1935 crop for all Canada was 50 per cent of the quota.

When to Market

I would like to refer briefly to the matter of marketing. There is always a question in the mind of the farmer as to when he should market his crop. Whether to sell in the Fall, the early winter, or hold until Spring. Now, you can see how impossible it would be for everyone to adopt any one of these methods, for, outside of orderly marketing throughout the entire season we cause a glut on whatever market we are shipping to . Now this problem in selling seed is equally puzzling to the farmer who buys. For the past number of years the New Jersey farmer has been buying his seed cheaper in the Spring than he paid for in the Fall, and there is no inducement for them to buy early. We felt last Fall that potatoes would surely be much higher in March of this year, and when you add the carrying charges to the prices at which potatoes were sold last November it made them more expensive to the buyer than the fresh packed stock he received in March and April. I cannot see why it would not be a good policy to spread your marketing over the entire season providing, of course, you are so located that you can ship before navigation closes or wait until early Spring. We often heard the remark this Spring, "I sold too soon," but I canot agree that they were right for had they not sold, the amount held would have constituted a surplus which would have had the very opposite effect, and instead of the higher market which, as stated, did prevail, the market would have been lower, and I believe the men who marketed throughout the entire year, if they would average their receipts, would realize as much as anyone did who tried to beat the market, for you can never be fortunate enough to just sell at the peak.

Prospects For This Year

Now, what about prospects for this year? Well, who can tell? We see through the Press the old prophets reporting the possibility of another potato famine in Ontario. Gentlemen, we candidly admit that we do not know more about this than you do, but anyone trying to prophesy either as to yield or price is simply making a guess and your guess is just about as liable to be right as his. Watch statistics as closely as you can, follow the trend of the market carefully, and yet we will all make mistakes, as there are factors which enter into the consumption of potatoes that no one can calculate. Therefore when you ask us what we think of conditions we can only tell you what we know about the reported acreage and the condition of the crop at the time of your inquiry.

Crop Conditions

About a month ago I took a trip South on a potato tour in Virginia. The reports we had been receiving would lead us to believe everything South was dried up. It is true there was a much reduced yield in the Carolinas and the southern part of the state of Virginia, but in the northern part where the tour was held the crop gave excellent promise. In the following days driving through the state of Virginia and Long Island I was advised that the prospects were never better, and so far as I could judge from the appearance of the crop this was true, for in Long Island the foliage was so heavy that you could scarcely tell which way the rows were planted. It was too early to know much about the Maine crop, except that their acreage is practically the same as it was in 1935, but in the northern states, the same as here, anything may happen, and the crop will depend largely on weather conditions, and you know how far ahead the weather can be foretold.

Effective Spraying Required

Another matter I would call to your attention when we speak of the weather is the necessity of giving careful attention to spraying. It does not pay to neglect the proper care of your potatoes. You have gone to a great deal of expense with the land, fertilizer and seed; follow up with proper cultivation and effective spraying both for insects and blight, and do not forget that we have all the material you require. We also carry a supply of the highest grade of bindertwine, 550 feet to the pound, which we will sell at as low a price as prevails for the same quality anywhere.

The Late Premier Lea

Now gentelmen I must speak of the great loss which we have suffered since we last met. The very best friend and member this Association ever had, or ever could have, has been taken away from us. I refer to our late Premier, the Honourable W. M. Lea, who was the friend not only of this Association but of every farmer, yes of every citizan of the province. It was his keen insight of marketing conditions of the farmers products that convinced him it was necessary for the farmers to have an organization such as this, and we believe that it was mainly through his efforts that your Association was put in a position to make it possible for them to accomplish what was done during the past year. He is gone, but his ideas and example will live long beyond his generation. Would that the province were blessed with more men of such outstanding leadership.

A Worthy Work

We had in the province during the week Dr. Coady of St. Francis Xavier, Antigonish. Dr. Coady spoke on several occasions, some of us heard him, others have read what he said. Everyone recognizes that Dr. Coady is one of the biggest men in the Maritime Provinces, and probably in all of Canada. Big in his desire to help the poorer classes who form such a large percentage of the population, big in his earnestness to sacrifice and work to accomplish the development of organizing people to do for themselves. Could any of us be engaged in a more worthy object? Let us take courage from his example and throw ourselves more wholeheartedly than ever into the work that will help to elevate every class of labor in our province.

Alberton

"I'll Explain Everything" Presented in Institute Hall."

On Thursday July 2nd, the Alberton Dramatic Club presented their three-act comedy drama entitled, "I'll Explain Everything" to a large audience who fully appreciated the fine acting and standard of the play. The part of Henry Becker was played by Mr. Arthur Malley and he protrayed this part in a very capable manner. Mr. Fred White who was Henry's adviser in the Farmer's State Bank succeeded in getting him into some very fine jams but he always stated he could "explain everything." The President of the Federal Trust Company was played by Mr. Donald Campbell who carried it well. Mr. George Irving, the young advertising man who acted as Walter Dow lived up to his former good work if not surpassing it. The Cockney "don't you know" a very difficult part was nicely played by Mr. Arthur Green.

The feminine cast excelled themselves also and Mrs. Osborne LeFurgey, known as Ada Becker a cousin of Henry and Miss Beth Waugh known as Gertrude, Henry's wife performed their difficult roles in the superlative. Miss Laura McQuaid known as Dr. Blair managed to extricate herself from some tangled evidence and Miss Doris Irving known as Jean Darby wife of the Englishman came through with flying colors. Miss Dorothy Forsythe known as Caryl Caroll and around whom the trouble centred made a swell hit as the secretary of Montgomery Walsh. The play contained a fine plot gave the audience many laughs as the funny side of things were constantly revealed. This success was under the direction of Mr. Fred White, who in addition to taking a heavy role undertook to direct it. He is to be given great credit for "putting over another one". Between the second and third acts Rev. Mr. Phillips spoke on the fine work performed by the Womens Institute from the time of 1927 when they bought the hall and he said it was a grand night for everyone and especially for the Institute as they were now going to burn the mortgage. Mrs. James Larkin the president then performed this duty amid great applause.
