

Abd-el-Kader Heard From.

The Nouveau Monde states that a Paris letter of Dec, 15th contains the following:—

The first paper which fell into my hands, on my arrival here, was a number of a Paris journal with a magnificent necrology of Abd-el-kader. One of the first notables whom I visited was the Emir, Abd-el-kader in person. The Emir who, notwithstanding his seventy-five years and forty-five sons, and numerous harem, enjoys always wonderfully good health, is yet as erect and proud as a young man and who still dyes his beard superbly like an old man, and who was as much amused with the article in question as was I who communicated it.

I have nothing remarkable to relate to you of our conversation with Abd-el-kader, for the Emir persists in pretending not to know a traitorous word of French, and one can enter upon few subjects worthy of interest when it is necessary to use a dragoman as a means of communication. All that I can say to you is that Abd-el-kader continues to follow with interest the affairs of France, and that his agricultural enterprises in Beeka and around Damascus are the objects of his most assiduous care and that he takes pleasure here and in the country in doing all the possible good he can. Enlightened as he is, he nevertheless remains the most devoted of Musselmen, going five times a day to the Mosque. His sons are vigorously impressed with the same views. He scarcely ever quits Damascus, where he is adored by all Christians, Musselmen and Jews, occupying himself in none of the political intrigues of Midhat and other Turkish personages. Sheriff and Hadji, he contents himself with his religious glory, and the splendor of his military remembrances. He lives simply and administers his large fortune perfectly well. He yet remains wonderfully handsome. Finding existence good and agreeable, he only asks of the Prophet the power of reading while yet alive the numerous and brilliant necrologies of Abd-el-kader.

There is more force in names than most men dream of; and a life may keep its throne a whole age longer if it skulk behind the shield of some fair seeming name.

None are so fond of secrets as those who do not mean to keep them; such persons covet secrets as a spendthrift does money, for the purpose of circulation.

So far is it from being true, men are naturally equal, that no two people can be half an hour together but one shall acquire an evident superiority over the other.

Honor is like the eye, which cannot suffer the least impurity without damage; it is a precious stone, the price of which is lessened by the least flaw.

Great objects produce great men. A man without an object resembles a fly that hums while the sun shines, and drops in the dust without that genial heat.

A QUEER HEAD PANTRYMAN.—The Jesse Hoyt, a famous New York steamboat, used to have for head pantryman a bent and crippled darkey, whose face was as full of humor as his form was of kinks and knobs. His name was Robert Smith, and his malady was chronic rheumatism. He tried Giles' Liniment Iodine Ammonia for a week of the present winter, and next winter intends to astonish his old acquaintances on the Hoyt by his appearance as a sound man. Giles' Pills cure Erysipelas. Sold by W. R. Watson. Send for pamphlet. DR. GILES, 120 West Broadway, N. Y. Trial size 25 cents.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 40,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles for trial sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with Boschee's German Syrup, although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the U. S. Its wonderful success in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma, and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400,000 bottles to the afflicted, free of charge, by Druggists. No such a test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more? Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

The Singer and the Duchess.

The fashionable world in London and Paris is considerably exercised about the engagement of Mr. Tom Hohler to the widow of the Duke of Newcastle, who died last year. Mr. Hohler is the son of a Gloucestershire parson who eked out his narrow stipend by taking pupils. When about eighteen, Mr. T. Hohler's friends discovered that he had a wonderful voice, and he was brought under the notice of Lord Dudley, who is regarded as a Mæcenas of musical aspirants. Lord Dudley took him up, and helped him along, until Mr. Hohler found himself on the boards of the Italian opera; but his reputation there was short-lived, and he had to retire to the concert field, there, too, soon to be rated only among the second class performers. Having a powerful frame and showy person, he found a good deal of favour among certain of the fair sex, and for a considerable time has been a constant companion of the Duchess of Newcastle, who is the illegitimate daughter of the late Mr. Hope, of Deepdene, a celebrated seat in Surrey, the inheritor of much of the colossal fortune accumulated in the last and early part of the present century by the famous Amsterdam firm of his name. Mr. Hope, who subsequently married his daughter's mother—a lady who has proved herself a most estimable character—bequeathed her the whole of his vast estate, subject to an annuity of £10,000 a year to his wife—a most fortunate circumstance, as the Duke of Newcastle would infallibly have gambled away every cent. Mrs. Hope, who owns large estates in England, bought, some years ago, the great Castleblayney property in Ireland, where she is admirable as a proprietor. Her daughter stands far less well in popular esteem, and her marriage with Mr. Hohler will assuredly not raise her in society. Her son, the present Duke, is a boy at Eton. He will be wealthy, inasmuch as his estates were so tightly tied up that his father could not gamble them away. Mr. Gladstone was a trustee. Entails have their good time, and here is a case in point.—N. Y. Times.

Humors of Plagiarism.

As a rule, says the Cincinnati Commercial, it is not safe to plagiarize; but to this rule, as to most others, there are exceptions. A minister of Western New York has been accused of preaching heresy, and was brought before the Presbytery to account for his offences. He asked permission to deliver before the Presbytery a carefully prepared discourse, in which he would set forth the doctrines he held. Permission was given him, and at the appointed time the sermon was delivered. At its close the members were called upon to pass judgment upon it. Some denounced it, several said it contained the rankest heresy, others considered it orthodox, and few wisely declined to express an opinion. Before the final vote was taken the accused was permitted to make a statement. He told them that the sermon he had just preached was one of Dr. Chalmers' and directed where it could be found; and remarked further, that if they declared him a heretic on the strength of it they must declare the great Scotch divine to be one too. Some of the brethren then got mad at the trick played upon them, but all concluded that the proceedings against the accused had better be dropped.

Another case of justifiable plagiarism was that of an eminent minister who outwitted a brother minister equally eminent. No. 1 entered the church of No. 2 just as he was about to announce his text. No. 1 tried to sit near the door, but No. 2 spied him, and invited him to a seat in the pulpit. No. 1 once in the pulpit, No. 2 whispered to him, "You must preach for me this morning." No. 2 said, "I came to hear you, and I am going to." No. 2 insisted, and No. 1 finally consented. So No. 2 removed his sermon from between the leaves of the Bible, placed it on a little shelf under the pulpit, and took a seat in the congregation to enjoy his friend's sermon. No. 1, as he arose to preach, took the sermon from the shelf, and went through it word for word, no doubt greatly to the edification of No. 2, who wrote it.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.:—DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long, I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite clear of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head.

A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper Yours truly,

W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister. Port Elgin, Ont., Aug. 24, 1878.
