HAT YOUR WAY TO SPRING

A cloud of white chiffon sits on bave of felt in this new design for spring, left. The Montreal designer was inspired by impressionist paintings. Right, a wizard of a hat by Dior. Cascades leaves and sparkling jet beads down the back of the black silk organdy crown.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Feathery Snowfall Rests On Yards And Fields

"Good night. And 'Safe Home'!" James called to Mr. C. in parting, when he set out a few minutes ago from our door. He had come, through the dusk from his house on the hill, to spend the evening with us about our heartstone, to chat with us about the farming, and of other mutual interests about.

Thoughts turned to the cropping.

"Things aren't like they used to be on farms" James offered, when the subject came up.

"There have been big changes" Mr. C. agreed.

"There was, when to get ready for it, all we had to do was to buy a bit of new harness—maybe a collar for a young horse, or a pair or so of traces, or a length of rope for new reins," James smiled at the memory. "And then, of course there was the matter of getting the grass-seeds: that was a big item. But now..." he shook his head at the thought of all the outlay that presently on farms the cropping would take.

"There's more than that to it now!" Mr. C. smiled somewhat ruefully.

James nodded.

"There surely is! Just to think of it, is to know there will have to be gas and oils, extras for the machines — they always need some repairs—those we know we will have to get."

"And" Mack present at the time grinned, "those we don't expect!"

"Yes, we always have to make allowance for that" Mr. C. nodded.

"And there are the fertilizers. And as I said, all the seeds, and it takes a nice lot these times" Jame said. "And there is apt to be some new implement wanted. By rights we should have a new ...this spring."

"I reckon we should" Mack agreed. "Its nothing but a waste of time, using that old one. We need a bigger and better one."

There was a silence. The fire purred. The morning's kindling drying in the oven gave off a subtle fragrance of woodsy places. James sighed.

"Oh I don't know" he said. "We may have to make do with the old one."

And the March-wind blew about the chimney. Blew gustily, and calmed, and returned again and again. Came in, as it does now, from the hilltops of the morning, bringing with it, at the outset, some damp feathery snowfall to fields and to yards.

"The snow has ceased, Ellen" James offers, settled once more to the old armchair.

"Any stars?"

"No, nor moon. Though I believe the wind will change to a better quarter before long."

"Why do farm folks have such respect for the weather?" someone questioned the other day. "They seem to know all its signs."

"Because we must suit our work to it" another explained. "Yes, it is always our concern. So much depends on it, you see."

And the late winter-days pass. Slip through our fingers like remembered summer-sands on a shore. And like those, even the most somber offer their gold-glints.

Until tomorrow —Diary —— Good-night.....

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

York Hall Will Be Scene Of May Fashion Show

The attention of the Alpha York Women's Institute was focused on Education Week for the March meeting. A discussion pertinent to adult education was led by Mrs. Ann Crockett, teacher of York Junior Department, and a film 'Willie Catches On' was shown.

The meeting opened by the members singing 'When Irish Eyes are Smiling', followed by the Creed. The roll call was responded to by suggesting Do's and Don't's for hospital visitors.

Mrs. Lowell Watts and Mrs. Laken Lewis were appointed to the committee o make arrangements for the fashion show to be staged in York Hall on May 6 and 7.

Mrs. Paker Jewell and Mrs. Gertrude Whiteway volunteered to prepare the Institute programs for the next three months.

The hall committee displayed samples of stage curtain material which met with the approval of all the members. It was also decided that new light fixtures must be installed while present renovations are underway. A motion was carried to this effect.

The members voted to provide a sum of money necessary for the purchasing of supplies for the 4-H Garment Club. Mrs. Laken Lewis and Mrs. Elmer Brown are the leaders of this local sewing class for York girls.

The Institute chorus group was informed that the music sheets are now available, and a practice session in preparation for the Music Festival was arranged.

A total of 13 members expressed a wish to purchase individual copies of the 'History of Island Institutes' books which is at present being compiled by the Provincial Office.

Mrs. Frank Watts served as a most capable auctioneer for a sale of articles donated by the members.

Following the close of the meeting, the hostess, Mrs. Elmer Brown, and the assisting committee, served a lunch.

Hostess for the April meeting will be Mrs. Arthur Johnson, assisted by Mrs. Leigh Vessey, Mrs. Lloyd Vessey, Mrs. Elmer Brown and Mrs. Arthur Brown.

PRINCETOWN UCW

The World Day of Prayer Service was held on March 1st at Malpeque Keir Memorial Presbyterian Church, when the ladies of Princetown United Church joined for the interdenominational service.

The leaders for the service were Mrs. Sydney McGougon, Mrs. Wendell Crozier and Mrs. Wallace Adams. Prayers were offered by Mrs. Leighton Coulson, Mrs. Roy Adams, Mrs. Ray Burt, Mrs. Horace Stewart and Mrs. Edward Murphy.

The guest speaker was Rev. Donald McKay of Summerside, who gave a most inspiring address.

The following vocal selections added much to the service: "Faith of our Fathers", rendered by the Hickey sisters; "When I kneel down to Pray", by Judith Woodside and "I Come to the Garden Alone", by the Harding sisters. Mrs. Roy Easter was organist.

The offering was received by Mrs. George Wall and Mrs. Gerald Mill, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. McKay.

A social hour followed and lunch was served by the ladies of Keir Memorial Church.

VICTORIA W.I.

The regular meeting of the Victoria W.I. met in the Institute Room of the local hall on Tuesday night chaired by the president, Mrs. Ken MacLean.

After the collect and roll call, which was answered by eleven members, the minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Morrison, and approved. The correspondence was read and discussed by the members and following a brief on education, Mrs. Richard MacQuarrie, extended an invitation to visit the school during 'open house' on Friday afternoon.

Sandy Morrison offered to repair the card tables with masonite. Remnants received from Eatons and Simpson-Sears were shown and it was decided to auction these pieces at a sale during a social evening planned for April when it is anticipated a neighboring Institute will be guests. Mrs. George Cannon offered 'The Eureka House for this social event. Mrs. Lloyd Boulter was appointed on the sick committee to replace Mrs. Emerson MacDonald who reported having visited Mr. Ken MacLean during his convalescence. The school committee appointed are Mrs. Emerson MacDonald and Mrs. Sandy Morrison.

After singing 'The Queen" a lunch was served by the committee in charge.

BAY FORTUNE UCW

The combined groups from Souris UCW and Bay Fortune UCW met in Fortune Hall for the World Day of Prayer service, March 1st. The program was carried out by the Bay Fortune group with the Souris group as their guests.

Mrs. Joycelyn Coffin, president, was leader for the call to worship.

Mrs. Sterling Burke led the confession and assurance. Mrs. Marjorie Stead, the dedication and Mrs. James Bennett, the intercession.

The theme, "More than Conquerors" was read by Mrs. George Campbell and the offering was given by Mrs. Edwin Reid.

The World Day of Prayer service was prepared by a small group of women under the leadership of Mrs. David Chung, Korea. The offering received by Mrs. Lorne Dingwell and Mrs. Daisy Johnston is to be forwarded to Women's Inter Church Council of Canada, Toronto.

Hymns sung were: "Come Thou Almighty King", "Faith of our Fathers", "Beneath the Cross of Jesus" and "The Day Thou Gavest". Mrs. Marion Mitchell was organist for the service.

Linda Dingwell sang a solo, "Anywhere with Jesus."

Mrs. Jocelyn Coffin pronounced the benediction.

At the close of the service a lunch was served by the Bay Fortune group.

MARY HAWORTH

Husband Resents Wife's Desire For Separation

Dear Mary Haworth: After 16 years of marriage, my wife refuses to be my wife in any sense of the word, saying she doesn't love me and no longer wants to live under the same roof with me.

She wants what she calls "amicable separation" on terms that would be financially difficult if not impossible for me to meet indefinitely, and in an arrangement that I disapprove.

I want her to stay with me; but only if she is my wife.

Neither of us has legal grounds for divorce. Hence separation would have to be by mutual consent, unless one of us leaves, thereby giving the other ground for divorce. As I see it, a satisfactory separation agreement can't be worked out; hence the impasse remains.

A recent crash program of psychiatric therapy hasn't brought us any closer. It was only temporarily successful in promoting harmony. But the rapport was short-lived and, to my disappointment and the exasperation of the therapist, my wife refused to continue.

The past six months has seen a crystallization of our opposed positions, and further deterioration of our relationship into almost total incompatability, truly hell on earth.

Last week, in desperation, I appealed to our pastor, who was able to re-establish communication in one meeting, and arrange for a period of truce, in hopes of saving the marriage.

My wife understood, so she says, that this was to be a celibate period of truce, which was not my understanding. I construed it to be complete reconciliation, with additional help and guidance to follow. Once again she spurns me and affirms her decision to have either an agreed separation now or one of her own making later.

We have three perfectly wonderful children, ages 6, 4 and 2 years, model offspring in all respects, whom I love dearly. My wife threatens to cut them off from me and cause them to hate me unless she gets her way. What shall I do? What say you of this nightmare?—L.R.

Dear L.R.: As I see the picture, your attitude toward your wife is about as loving as a boa constrictor's embrace. I don't wonder that she gasps for freedom from the smothering atmosphere of smugly spiteful ownership in which you try to imprison her.

An emotionally mature man, a morally healthy man a kindly, decent, truly right-minded husband and father., confronted with a troubled wife who felt she no longer loved him and wished to live separately, would not try to throw up roadblocks as you have.

Rather, he would address himself generously to the proposition of respecting her distress and trying with specialist counsel to work out a protective arrangement for the children and her, in terms that would give her privacy and proof of his enduring devotion and good will.

It strikes me that you are more concerned with saving face (your own) and trying forsightedly to build up a case against your wife in the minds of many—in the event she feels driven to leave you eventually —than you are humanely occupied in trying to restore mutual love to the marriage.

There is an element of sadism, of lurking hostility to womankind, implicit in your dogged insistence that she must remain with you, on terms of full wifehood, after she has made it clear that you are physically repugnant to her.

Given normal self- respect and normal sensitivity to the psychological, spiritual and mental ingredients of real conjugal love and sex attraction, you simply couldn't consider forcing yourself upon an unwilling wife, as seems to be the gist of your current wrangle.

In my opinion, you personally need intensive psychoanalytic help at this time, to bring to light the sick-sick reasons why you continue to torment your wife, in pietistic guise, when she is trying candidly to break away from the nightmare mockery of marriage that somehow appeals to your neurotic bias.—M.H.
