To the Electors of Charlottetown.

GENTLEMEN,—At the request of many of my fellow citizens I place myself in your hands for re-election to the honorable position of Mayor, and respectfully ask for your votes.

Should you again do me the honor to elect me, I shall co-operate in maturing and carrying out all measures having for their object the good of the community as a whole, and, as in the past, my best efforts shall be given to the administration of the affairs of the city.

I refer you to the City Report for my views on taxation, and would only add that I am fully satisfied that the ordinary expenditure of the city can be met by a reduced rate on real estate and personal property, which rate, with the other sources of available income, will yield a sufficient revenue to meet the liberal basis of expenditure of the past year, and that no department of the public service can suffer thereby.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
W. E. DAWSON.

jan27—135

To the Electors of Charlottetown;

GENTLEMEN—In compliance with the wishes of a large number of citizens, and in response to the numerously signed requisition presented to me, I have decided to nominate for the Mayoralty at the forthcoming Election, and would take this opportunity of soliciting your support.

If elected, I shall endeavor at all times to act impartially, giving justice to all, favors to none. It shall be my aim to see that the affairs of this City are conducted with the strictest economy commensurate with its requirements and that the rate of taxation be kept down to the lowest figure consistent therewith.

I shall continue to stand up for the citizen's rights both as regards the Roadway to Victoria Park and all other questions which may arise. I believe that all laws at present in force, or that may hereafter be enacted, should be faithfully carried out.

I am opposed to the expenditure of an public moneys in defiance of the well understood wishes of the people.

As I publicly stated two years ago, I believe that good government in civic affairs can only be assured by having a change in representatives from time to time; and having served four years as Councillor, I now respectfully solicit your votes for the office of Mayor.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant.
HORACE HASZARD.

To the Electors of Ward Five:

Having been asked by a large number of the electors of your Ward to nominate for the coming Council, I have decided to do so, and now beg to solicit your votes.

I shall not be able to see you all, but having many years' experience in the Council, you may depend on me in the future to protect your interests as honestly as I have done in the past. I am

Respectfully yours,
THOS. MORRIS.

DADO OF PHOTOGRAPHS.

Ways to Make the Most of Your Collection of Small Prints.

Picture framing is always expensive. One frame is not such an item, but when it comes to a dozen photographs, water colors or engravings, one stands aghast at the total cost. In many new houses frames go in with the rent, so to speak.

In rooms which are wainscoted, lengths of glass are placed so that the upper molding forms the base of the frame and another molding is placed at the top to hold the glass. How dear to the heart are the hundred photographs collected abroad! What more calculated to give constant joy than these "all in a row" around the library or over a bookshelf in one's own den? These may be slipped behind the glass, as the molding is easily removed, and thus a dado is made for all to admire. If a separation is desired a narrow molding to match is easily obtainable. A firm hand with a penknife and a few tacks only are needed, and a room is transformed.

Another way is one molding placed half way between floor and ceiling, with the photographs set upon it, and a long ribbon in the tone of the room is stretched above and holds them in place.

A charming effect is obtained in forming a background of velvet, its own width, and fastening pictures, simply framed in passepartout, upon it, with large headed brass tacks.

In a young girl's room, recently "done" by a well known decorator, the only color was yellow. A few fine engravings were framed in white and gold, but the wires by which they were suspended were covered with yellow ribbons and the hooks were hidden by a huge rosette.

HE LOVED HIS HORSE.

A Striking Tribute of Loyalty on the Part of a Stable Boy.

"You wouldn't believe," said a horse owner the other night at Ingleside, "how attached a stable boy usually becomes to a horse which is his own particular charge. I've got a fairly good colt in my string, and the lad who rubs him thinks more of that colt than of anything on the face of the earth. There's never a hair in his mane or tail in the wrong place, and the colt has better attention than nine out of ten children. The boy thinks it impossible for other horses to beat the colt, and when he ran second once he swore the jockey pulled him. He actually believes that if Salvator were running now my colt would make him look like a selling plater.

"A short time ago the lad had a couple of weeks' wages paid over to him, and as soon as he got the money he asked permission to go down to the city. When he came back he brought with him a brand-new linsey for the colt. It had cost him most of his two weeks' wages, but he said the old one was getting a little bit rusty, and he wanted to have the colt fitted out right."

Which Kind of a Husband Are You?

There is scarcely a husband who, during the past four months, has not urged his wife to learn to ride a wheel. There is scarcely a husband of the lot who does not now regret that he so urged her. He has found that it has added to his nervous impairment in the ratio of about fifty per cent, and in addition thereto he has caught the "husband neck." This strange malady is caused by the constant craning of the neck, generally to the left to see if the wife of one's bosom is safe. Even after the husband has found that his wife has really become a skilled rider the habit remains. He can no more help turning his head at short intervals than he can help imagining that all sorts of dire disasters are befalling her. And there seems to be no cure for this. The natural one to suggest would be that a man's wife should ride ahead of him. But no man, as yet, could possibly consent to this, both because it is his nature to lead, and also because he would thus expose his wife to the dangers of the road and side path, which he might avert by being in the lead. As yet the disease has only attacked those who are really fond of their wives. To what extent it will spread is, of course, dependent upon the number of such husbands.—Brooklyn Life.

Looking for Comets.

The appearance of a new comet in the skies last month attracted a good deal of attention from astronomers. The fact is that just at present we are very badly in want of a great comet. Since the magnificent apparition which bears the name of Donati in 1858, astronomers have revolutionized the practical methods of their science. Photographic processes then undreamt of are now the familiar auxiliaries to the observatory. The development of the spectroscope also, in its application to the discovery of the material constituents of the heavenly bodies is of a growth subsequent to the autumn of 1858.

There can be no doubt that the next great comet which does vouchsafe its presence in our skies will be received with a welcome which has never before been accorded to any celestial object whatever.—Sir Robert S. Ball, in London Graphic.

More is Necessary.

It has been said that men have got to be loved into the kingdom, not thought into it; but this does not state the whole truth. They must be both "loved" and "thought into it"; yea, more, must be brought into it. Andrew was not content with either loving or thinking about his brother, but conducted Peter to Jesus. The apostles had love and thought for sinners, but rested not until they had done their utmost to bring them into saving connection with Him who alone can save. Mind, heart and effort must be unitedly enlisted in human redemption.

The Spider Tree.

Dr. Welwitsch, who has recently explored the country about Cape Negro, in Africa, tells of a curious plant called the spider tree. It grows on windy plains, its stem attaining a diameter of four feet, although it does not exceed one foot in height. It puts out two leaves, each six or eight feet in length, and these are split by the whiffing of the wind into a number of stiff, narrow ribbons, bearing no little resemblance to the legs of a gigantic spider. This resemblance becomes startling when a strong breeze puts the leg-like leaves into rapid motion, and the negroes shiveringly exclaim that the great spider is struggling to get loose.

Some Curious Scottish Prayers.

No country in the world has produced such a plentiful crop of curious prayers as Scotland, where extempore prayer is the rule among the Presbyterian clergy. Doubtless a great many of the prayers which one sees in the papers fathered upon the clergy of the Land of Cakes are apocryphal, but those quoted in this article are undeniably authentic.

"Preacher Geordie," an eccentric itinerant minister, who was famous all over Scotland at the beginning of the present century for his pawky, homely sermons, was also noted for his original prayers. On one occasion he ostentatiously ascended the pulpit of a country church with his fiddle—his inseparable companion—under his arm. He then very devoutly set about aiding the precentor by means of the instrument in raising the tune. Observing some little tittering among the congregation—for the vigilance of his suspicion was extreme—he took occasion in his prayer, where, as he often said, he found himself least straitened, to express himself in these or like terms: "Good Lord, Thy people—Thine own peculiar, chosen people of old—were wont to praise Thee with tabor and with harp, with sackbut and psaltery; and Thy douce and loyal servants were seen dancing and skipping and snapping their fingers to Thy praise, and weel they were rewarded for it. But nowadays nothing will serve us but sighing and groaning, and squealing and howling out dismal psalm tunes, wi' feet nailed to the yird, and faces an ell lang, and muckle disloyalty in our hearts aftera'! Gif Thy blessing reach us, it maun surely be mair by Thy favor than our ain guid guiding, I trow!"

Geordie's prayer for the magistracy of Lochmaben was formerly far-famed. "Lord," said he, "we pray Thee to remember the magistrates of Lochmaben, such as they are!"

An eccentric Argyleshire minister, noted for the same propensity as the Reverend Geordie, began service one Sunday morning, after a spree the night before, with the following pithy and original prayer: "O Lord, what are we this morning but a parcel of easy osies? Grant us, a big meat house, and a wee wrought house, and mountains o' preed, and, cheese, and whisky like Loch Lomond, and puild a muckle dyke atween us and the tevil."

Whatever may have been his other deficiencies, a former minister of the Cumbraes (two mere specks of islands in the Firth of Clyde), seems not to have been wanting in local patriotism, as he was wont to conclude his weekly Sunday prayer with the following petition: "O Lord, have mercy on Thy servants, the denizens of Great and Little Cumbrae, as also the inhabitants of the adjacent islands of Great Britain and Ireland."

A well-known Lanarkshire minister of the old school, recently deceased, was so sensitive to any suspicion of plagiarism that he never allowed himself to make the slightest quotation without giving his authority. He was accustomed to assemble his household every morning for family worship, and on one occasion he commenced his devotions thus: "O Lord we heartily thank Thee that we have been awakened from the sleep which a writer in the Edinburgh Review has called the image of death."

We will conclude with the following story related by a well-known Glasgow D. D.: The doctor, in company with a brother clergyman, was spending a vacation in Cumberland, and on the first Sunday of their stay they attended divine service in a little Scotch kirk in the vicinity, taking the precaution to sit in a remote corner, so that the officiating minister should not notice them. But the eagle eye of the minister detected them and in the intercessory prayer he so expressed himself as to make quite sure of some aid from them. The good man's words were these: "Lord, have mercy on Thy ministering servants who have looked in upon us so unexpectedly; one of whom will preach in the afternoon, and the other in the evening."—Belfast Weekly News.

SOCIABILITY OF INDIANS.

They are Fond of Paying Social Visits Among Themselves.

Indians, contrary to widely received opinions, are of a social nature, and fond of paying friendly visits, the etiquette of which would make a chapter of itself. Not much attention is given to the order of their going while in the dust of travel, but when arrived within a short distance of their destination a halt is called, the ponies are relieved of their burdens, the rawhide packs are opened, and gala dresses and fine ornaments come to light. The two young men selected to be the bearers of gifts of tobacco deck themselves for their mission and ride on in advance. A surprise party is not in the Indian's list of amusements; he takes his enemy unawares, but not his friend. The young men return with messages of welcome; sometimes members of the family to be visited come with them personally to conduct the party.

Meanwhile, all have been busy prinking; brushing and braiding their locks, painting their faces, and donning their best gear, the wide prairie their dressing room, their mirror each other's eyes. When the visiting party is again en route, there is not a man or woman who is not gorgeous with color and the glitter of shell or feather finery. Even the children have daubs of fresh paint on their plump little cheeks, while the dudes are wonderful to behold, resplendent in necklaces, embroidered leggings, and shirts, and with ornaments innumerable braided into their scalp locks. The visit over, the Indians go back to their homes pleased and contented, happy if they find, as may not always be the case, that the enemy have not been at work in their absence.—"Tribal Life Among the Omahas," by Alice C. Fletcher, in the January Century.

HOW TO CANDLE EGGS.

It Requires Considerable Practice to Excel in This Operation.

Have a room as dark as you can or use a box 12 by 16 inches in size painted black inside. Stand on its end and open one side 8 inches from the bottom. All above 8 inches closed, set box with this open side towards you and set the light in it. Nail a piece to bottom, under front edge, with the top of box back, this will enable you to see better. This box can be used in any place, though it is better in a dark place. Take such light as you have; the best candlers use common candles. Take two or three eggs in left hand and the eggs you candle in right hand, and hold sideways between you and the light, as close to the light as you can, and let it rub against one of the eggs in left hand; some are quite particular about this, as the eggs reflect the light through each other; turn the egg round until you are satisfied you have tested it. Take a strictly fresh egg as a standard to judge by. If a place like the vacuum in a mason's spirit level appears on the upper side as you turn the egg, it is not strictly fresh; though if this vacuum is small and the egg is all right otherwise it may be comparatively fresh. A dark or black spot indicates a poor egg: the white of stale eggs also looks thin and watery. Remember dark-shelled eggs are thicker shelled and do not candle as easily as white ones. You can only learn by breaking suspicious ones, and it requires much practice to excel.—Charles W. McQueen, in Farm and Home

Where Sound Travels.

Eighteen miles is the longest distance on record at which a man's voice has been heard. This occurred in the grand canyon of the Colorado, where one man shouting the name of Bob at one end, his voice was plainly heard at the other end, which was eighteen miles away. Lieut. Foster, on Peary's third Arctic expedition, found that he could converse with a man across the harbor of Port Powen, a distance of 6 696 feet, or about one mile and a quarter; and Sir John Franklin said that he had conversed with ease at a distance of more than a mile. Dr. Young records that at Gibraltar the human voice has been heard at a distance of ten miles. Sound has remarkable force in water. Colladon, by experiments made in the Lake of Geneva, estimated that a bell submerged in the sea might be heard at a distance of more than sixty miles. Franklin says that he heard the striking together of two stones in the water half a mile away. Over water or a surface of ice sound is propagated with great clearness and strength. Dr. Hutton relates that on a quiet part of the Thames, near Chelsea, he could hear a person read distinctly at a distance of 140 feet, while away from the water the same could not be heard.

Persons in a balloon can hear voices from the earth a long time after they themselves are inaudible to people below. —Chicago Times-Herald.

Destined for Success.

A few days ago a business man on High street, New Bedford, Mass., advertised for a boy. Among the replies received by mail was one which read as follows: "Dear Sir,—I want the place. My parents is ded and I got to hustle. Beets hell how hard times is. Yoors trooley, William ——." Being a man of shrewd business sagacity, the merchant engaged him by the next mail. I had considerable interest in the career of this enterprising young man, and a few days after called at the store to see how he progressed. He had one black eye and a pronounced limp and a generally broken-up appearance. He had been in the business but two days, and in that time had thrashed the porter of the store, fallen down stairs into the cellar and had won $2.50 from the boys pitching coppers; had also shown up on time every day and got in a full days work. If this young man is not destined for a great commercial career then all signs fail.—New York Herald.

Her Own Mistress.

"If I were living my life over," said an unmarried woman of 50 the other day, "when I reached the age of 25 I should ask my father to give me one of his little houses, of which he owned a good many, and let me go and live in it. When a girl grows into a woman her instinct leads her to long to be at the head of her own home, whether she is married or unmarried. To be absolute mistress, even of a single room in a lodging house, after a day of toil is often better to her than to be under the absolute control of her parents in a comfortable home, and this, even though there may be the tenderest love between them. Few mothers at least ever quite outgrow a sense of arbitrary proprietorship in their daughters, and few daughters between the ages of 25 and 40 can be thoroughly contented in any home of which they are not mistress, however patiently and nobly they may conceal their feelings. After 40 they are often so tired as to be glad to be relieved of all responsibility."

Commercial Travellers.

Wm. Golding, commercial traveller, 130 Esther St., Toronto, says:—For 15 years I suffered untold misery from Itching Piles, sometimes called pin worms. Mary and many weeks have I had to lay off the road from this trouble. I tried eight other pile ointments and so-called remedies with no permenent relief to the intense itching and stinging, which irritated by scratching would bleed and ulcerate. One box of Chase's Ointment cured me completely.

ODDS AND ENDS.

In these days the milk of human kindness is soured by the thunderstorm of imposition.

IT DOES THE BUSINESS.

If you want to know what Miller's Emulsion of Norwegian Cod Liver Oil will do for a consumptive patient ask one who has tried it. Ask anyone who has used it in lung troubles of any kind. What they say about Miller's Emulsion shall be its recommendation. It is the finest preparation of its kind in the world, and is worth its weight in gold to a consumptive sufferer, whom it will raise from a bed of sickness to health and strength of body and mind, giving a new lease of life. Thousands testify to the value of Miller's Emulsion. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. Counterfeits

A few years ago a great discovery was made.

Unprincipled persons are trying to prey upon and dupe people who are led to ask for kidney treatment.

Some of the methods adopted by imitators are as follows:

First—To imitate the size, color and shape of Dodd's Kidney Pills and sell them by count.

Second—To put them up to appear very nearly the same and to be offered at the same price.

Third—To hook on the word "kidney" in naming cathortic pills so as to increase sales of mere physic.

Fourth—To give a name so near to Dodd's that unwary people may be deceived and think they are getting Dodd's.

Look out for such dodges. When you want kidney medicine you want the best. And ought not to be the subject for any trick.

So beware.

A penny saved is usually a penny earned for the benefit of some one with a scheme.

A Railway Manager Says:

"In reply to your question to my children object to taking Scott's Emulsion, I say No! on the contrary, they are fond of it, and it keeps them pictures of health."

Unrequited affection, as a rule, is a misfortune rather than a fault.

British Empire League.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The lord mayor of London, Sir Walter Henry Wilkins, presided to-day at the inaugural meeting of the British Empire league, formed to continue the work of the Imperial Federation league. Sir John Lubbock, bart F. R. S., M. D., for London university, explained the objects of the league. The Duke of Devonshire was elected president. Among the speakers was Richard Dobell of Quebec, who referred to the loyalty of Canada, and said that the formation of the British Empire league would be hailed with great satisfaction in the dominion.

PAST YOUR PRIME.

Perhaps not in years, but in energy. Your health is not good, yet you hardly know what is the matter with you. Your business, too, is on the decline. People miss the old elastic spirit you showed in former years. The secret of all this is that your constitution is worn out and your blood is bad. Set both right by the use of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One box will cure you

FRIGHT ON HIGH PLACES.

The Blind Impulse to Jump is Sometimes Beyond Control.

At a great height many persons would no more think of looking down upon the surface of the earth than they would of thrusting a hand into a blazing fire. An irresistible impulse comes over them to jump, and this impulse is stronger when the feet are close to the edge of the roof of a high building.

Dr. Edward Lanning, the American physician who practised his profession in Paris for ten or eleven years, says he has seen more cases of "elevation fright" in the French capital than he has in any other city he has ever been in.

"I do not know," said he, "that it is a peculiarity of the French character, but I have frequently been called in cases where death has resulted in a leap from a tall building or a tower—not that I could do any good, but simply to see whether I could determine from previous family history whether or not the victim was insane or not.

"About two years ago I was visited by a sailor, an Alsatian, who told me he experienced the peculiar sensation of terror when at an elevation, and that he was unable to take a berth on any vessel where his duites would require him to go aloft further than 12 or 15 feet from the deck. He consented to go with me to a tall building and go on the roof, so I could observe his condition when he looked over the edge into space. I took two assistants with me as a precaution. One of them brought a rope at the sailor's request. He said he would not dare venture to the edge of the roof unless he had one end of the rope around his waist and felt that the other end was securely held. I acceded to that and told him to go as close to the edge as he pleased.

"We were very high up—125 feet, I should say. The sailor walked cautiously toward the eaves, and I walked alongside of him. He looked over and jumped back, and then walked forward again I observed that the pupil of his eye had become dilated, and in a few moments the perspiration ran down his face in streams. His pulse bounded and his muscles twitched. He stood quietly without tugging at the rope, but told me that if he did not know that he was being held he certainly could not have resisted the desire to leap out into space.

"He got down on his hands and knees and tried to become accustomed to looking over the roof's edge, but said he could not. He wanted to draw himself forward and plunge over head first. I finally took him down stairs, when he recovered his equanimity. He came to see me a year afterward, and said that he had tried his best to cure himself of what he considered a weakness, but was unable to do so. The man was perfectly sane, and apparently cool and collected when on terra firma, but at seventy-five or a hundred feet he became an abject coward.

"About three months ago I was not surprised when I received a letter from one of my colleagues telling me that the sailor had cast himself from a balloon in which he ascended with an aeronaut near Dieppe, and had been dashed to pieces."—New York Mail and Express.

CAT THAT PLAYS WITH A RAT.

The Latter Does Not Appear to Enjoy the Sport.

In the show window of a saloon called the Defender, on the north side of Greenwich street, between Vesey and Fulton streets, a very interesting performance takes place every day, which is free of charge to all such as can elbow their way into the curious crowd that gathers on the pavement. The performers are a big black cat, with round, yellow eyes, white whiskers and a fluffy tail, and a fat white rat, with small but bright eyes and a tail like a piece of whipcord.

A white rat is a curiosity enough in itself, but when seen in playful association with a black cat it offers an unusually entertaining spectacle. The cat has a very good time, but the rat, it is quite apparent, would rather be somewhere else.

The performance consists of a series of graceful gambols in which the cat pats the rat with its soft paw, chases it about the window, catches it gently in its mouth, and otherwise disports itself. The rat, being unable to defend itself, is obliged to submit, though with a very bad grace. It is plain that it suffers more from terror than from physical pain, for the cat works with sheathed claws, and is very gentle. The rat knows by instinct that pussy has something dangerous hidden away in those padded paws, and that one crunch with its teeth would make one white rat less.

At times when tormented to the very limit of desperation, the rat does the only thing that a defenseless creature can do under the circumstances. It turns suddenly at bay, sits up on its hind legs and makes a show of fighting. There are some who say they have seen the rat chase the cat around the window, but this is not very likely, unless, indeed, the cat permitted it in a spirit of fun.

It is said that a cat will never harm a white (or albino) rat, and will never go further than to play with it. Two different cats have been placed in the window on Greenwich street, and neither of them has done the rat any injury.

A Chinese Proverb.

Arthur H. Smith, in his wonderfully bright, accurate, and yet somewhat misleading book called "Chinese Characteristics," quotes the Chinese proverb that "one man should not enter a temple, and two men should not look together into a well," adding, "And why, we inquire in surprise, should not one man enter a temple alone? Because the priest may take advantage of the opportunity to make away with him! Two men should not gaze into a well, for if one of them is in debt to the other, or has in his possession something which the other wants, that other may seize the occasion to push his companion into the well!"—"Responsibility Among the Chinese," by Prof. C. M. Cady, in the January Century.

Beautiful Cottons From the Orient.

Some of the Eastern cottons, with their rich colorings intermixed with the sheen of metal threads, keep their color and their brightness so long that they are an excellent investment for the economical woman who likes artistic things. A square of such a fabric, costing not more than $2, lately seen, had as a background a thin white cotton, under which was the glint of gold threads made silvery by the white woven over them. The fabric was figured with soft shades of blue, rose, olive and yellow, and although it had been in use two years is as beautiful as at first, looking like some priceless treasure from the Orient. Such bits for a table-spread or pillow cover are often to be found in the upholstery department of large city stores of the better class, or at stores making a specialty of Eastern goods.
