Fitz-Patrick-Sullivan Nuptials

All Saints Church, Cardigan, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding, Monday morning, at 8:30 A.M. when Rev. H. J. Croken united in holy bonds of matrimony Mary Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Cardigan, and Raymond Peter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis FitzPatrick, Woodville, N.S.

The church of the altar was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns. Appropriate hymns were rendered by the girls' choir of All Saints Church during the ceremony.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage, to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus played by Mrs. Earl Macdonald. She looked very charming in her floor-length gown of traditional white slipper satin, fashioned on princess lines, with sweetheart neckline, and lily point sleeves. Her shoulder length veil was held in place with a coronet of seeded pearls. She carried a beautiful bouquet of red and white roses.

Miss Stella Sullivan, bridesmaid, was her sister's only attendant, and was gowned in light blue taffeta with net, and matching headress and mitts; she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Louis Fitzpatrick. Ushers were Messrs. Eugene and Irving FitzPatrick, also brothers of the groom.

Following the ceremony a breakfast for the immediate family was held at the home of the bride's parents. The couple left for their honeymoon to points of interest in Maine. On return they will reside in Montague.—M.

LULLABY OF BROADWAY WARNERS' NEW TECHNICOLOR FILM, HERE

Broadway, Mecca of American show business, is indeed more than just a paved strip of glaring neon, spectacular animation and wide-eyed tourists straining for a glimpse of celebrity. No, this heartbeat of the entertainment industry, glorified by the Ziegfelds and the Tolsons, may be likened to Sheherazade of the Arabian Nights—master story-teller with a thousand and one yarns about the hopes, joys and heartbreaks of those who seek their fame and fortune within its boundaries. And now, one of these fascinating tales has been set to music in a glowing screen tribute to the Great White Way.

"Lullaby of Broadway" Warner Bros. Technicolor musical extravaganza which opens today at the Prince Edward Theatre, starring singing and dancing stars Doris Day and Gene Nelson, supported by comedians Billy De Wolfe, S. Z. Sakall and Ann Triola, and Gladys George, is the heart-warming story draped against a background of some of the most lavish productions numbers ever filmed.

The picture which centres around show folk and their often hilarious attempts to make the grade, is well-laden with such all-time favorite songs as "Zing Went The Strings Of My Heart," "Somebody Loves Me," "In A Shanty In Old Shanty Town," "Just One Of Those Things" and the title tune. Also featured in "Lullaby of Broadway" are Hanley Stafford, Florence Bates and the Page Cavanaugh Trio, well-known night club artists.

District W. I. Convention At Montague Yesterday

Nine Women's Institutes were represented at the annual district convention held in the Legion Hall, Montague, yesterday afternoon and evening. Women's Institutes present included Union Road, Brudenell, Lorne Valley, Rosemeath, New Perth, Greenfield, Victoria Cross, Lower Montague, and Montague. Approximately ninety members and friends attended.

The delegates were graciously received by Mrs. T. W. Cameron and Mrs. William Devar. Brudenell, and the address of welcome was read by Mrs. Lorne Wigginton, Montague, to which Miss Rita Hynes, Greenfield, responded. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Howard Vickerson, Montague, and opened with the Institute Ode and Creed.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Charles MacLure, and approved as read. The president then introduced Dr. L. W. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Education who spoke on "Practical Education," which he defined as a program of education that is broad enough to interest all classifications of people, and that we must think of a broader education that can be provided by a one-room school. He stated further the policy of the department was that of retaining the elementary schools, but providing larger centres for the high school grades. He urged the members of the W. I. of P. E. I. to foster and develop public opinion in the attainment of this aim.

Among the visitors present were Mrs. Bruce MacLaren, Calgary, Alta., and Mrs. Frederick Cobb, Boston, Mass., who were extended a cordial welcome by the president, Mrs. Malcolm MacLeod, provincial president, gave an interesting and instructive address on her trip to Copenhagen, Denmark, as a delegate from Prince Edward Island Institutes. A song led by the ladies from Lower Montague, was enjoyed with Mrs. Cyrus Martin as piano accompanist. The next speaker was Miss Maylea Boswell, assistant supervisor, who explained a tentative program for holding two district conventions in each county, and which two representatives from each institute would attend and also the holding of a rally which would be attended by all members. Miss Boswell then exhibited a table of fancy work which the members greatly enjoyed. The entertainment program was sponsored by the Lorne Valley Institute, and presented a one-act comedy, "How The Story Grew", featuring, Beth MacIntyre, Mildred MacDonald, Margaret MacLeod, Beth Nicholson, Helen Leard, Joyce MacDonald, and Mrs. Malcolm MacLeod. After a brief recess a delicious supper was served by the Montague ladies. A solo "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Bruce MacLaren, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Vickerson.

An invitation to hold the next annual convention in Lower Montague was accepted and the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President, Mrs. Raymond Poole; vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Jackson; secretary, Mrs. Harvey Ross. Mrs. Vickerson, then called on Mrs. George Martin, who spoke briefly and referred to the new program as outlined by Miss Boswell.

Adding much interest to the afternoon was a table of antiques which was displayed by the New

Will Case Blames Insulin

SHERBROOKE, Que., June 19 — Lawyers today got into an involved legal argument in the supreme court hearing of claims of 10 relatives of the late John C. Holland, former publisher of the Stanstead Journal, that he was not mentally capable of making his will in February, 1949. No witnesses were called.

The will provided that $1,000 go to each of his 10 nephews, nieces and cousins and that the rest of the $150,000 estate be divided between the Canadian Red Cross Society and the Salvation Army. Counsel for the relatives, John T. Hackett, asked today that the testimony given at the preliminary hearing of the relatives' claim be introduced.

After a lengthy battle with counsel for the Red Cross and Salvation Army, the court decided to permit him to introduce some portions of the testimony. The case has dragged on seven weeks before superior court. Admission of portions of testimony at the preliminary hearing is expected to lengthen the case at least another four weeks.

Three Montreal doctors testified that symptoms of irrationality shown by the late Mr. Holland were not due to insulin reaction. Last week, Dr. I. M. Rabinowitch, of Montreal, testified that insulin reaction Mr. Holland suffered from diabetes could have produced all the symptoms which the plaintiffs had cited as proof of the deceased's irrationality.

In a rebuttal, Mr. Hackett called Dr. V. A. Kral, professor of psychiatry at McGill University; Dr. J. C. Meakin, president of the Canadian Mental Health Association and of the Mental Hygiene Institute of Montreal; and Dr. Jean Saucier, associate psychiatrist of the Hotel Dieu Hospital.

All three said that the insulin reaction did not appear to have anything to do with Mr. Holland's symptoms. Asked by one of the executors of the will, if it is possible for someone to suffer from hemiplegia, caused by thrombosis, and Perth W. I. which included, a complete volume of Lord Tennyson's writings, two one-hundred year old platters, one of which was brought from China, a frying pan, which was bought when stoves replaced fireplaces, a rug hooked by hand in 1898, and has been in use ever since, a needle point picture which was made by a nine year old girl in 1817, also several pictures and a wedding night cap over 100 years old.

A very enjoyable meeting was brought to a close with the King.

still retain full mental capacity, Dr. Saucier said that the chances against it are "one against a thousand."

John Sanction, who bought the Stanstead Journal from Holland, testified that when he and his wife visited him in Broadview Hospital, Newport, Vt., two days before the will was signed, Mr. Holland's condition was such that he thought it advisable not to introduce Mrs. Sanction because Mr. Holland "didn't even seem to recognize me."

However, Mr. Sanction added, when the papers of sale for the Journal were signed several months before, Mr. Holland was in full command of his faculties.

This case is being heard by Mr. Justice William Mitchell without a jury.

MacLean - Myers Wedding

On Saturday, May 12th at 7:30 p. m., an interesting wedding was solemnized in the United Church, Hampton, when Mildred Bennett, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Myers, Hampton, exchanged vows with Hugh John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. MacLean, Cornwall.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. S. Woolfrey. The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by the church organist, Mrs. Mark Cameron. During the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You," was beautifully rendered by Mrs. John MacQuarrie. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with baskets of daisies.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor-length gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with round neckline, yoke of inserted lace embroidered with seed pearls, full length sleeves, fitted bodice, and plain skirt trimmed with lace. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion fell from a coronet of seeded pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Miss Doris Myers, attired in a gown of turquoise taffeta, with matching headress and mitts and carrying a nosegay of yellow mums and roses.

The bridesmaid, Mrs. Ralph Myers, wore a gown of yellow taffeta, matching headress and mitts and carried a nosegay of pink carnations and mums. Little Miss Kathryn Myers, as flower-girl was adorable in a floor length gown of embroidered organza over pink tulle. She carried a basket of mixed spring flowers.

The groom was attended by Mr. Arthur Howard and the ushers were Mr. Ralph MacDonald and Mr. Ralph Myers.

The bride's mother chose a black dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. While the groom's mother wore a navy dress with gray accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. William Myers, Hampton, where a delicious buffet luncheon was served to upwards of seventy-five guests. The bride's table was centered with tall yellow lighted tapers and the wedding cakes.

Tea was poured from two silver tea services by Mrs. Harry MacLean, Cornwall, and Mrs. John Dixon, DeSable.

The wedding gifts were many and valuable. Amid showers of confetti the happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to various points of interest in the Maritimes.

For travelling the bride wore a wine gabardine suit with navy accessories and gray shortie coat. They have taken up residence in Cornwall, where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

Previous to her wedding the bride was tendered several showers at which she received many varied and useful gifts.
