Shearwater Tops Saints In Football Tussle Here

Displaying a smooth working offence, Shearwater Flyers downed St. Dunstan's University Varsity 34-20 in an Atlantic Football Conference Football tussle at SDU field Saturday afternoon.

The Flyers raced into an early lead and were never caught after that. The collegians made a great try at a comeback but just didn't have the necessary abilities to pull the contest out of the fire.

It was the first loss of the season for St. Dunstan's who fought the University of New Brunswick to a 7-7 tie a week earlier at Fredericton.

START EARLY

Things had scarcely started when the Flyers hit paydirt. Halfback Halfkenny pulled off a 20 yard run from his own 25 and on the next play the ball went to Fournier and the halfback trotted the rest of the distance for the first major of the afternoon. Concordia made good on the convert.

The Shearwater boys kept up the pressure and with a minute remaining in the first quarter. Fournier got his second touchdown of the afternoon. From a scrimmage on the Saints' nine-yard line, Fournier went over unmolested to make it a 13-0 ball game. Once again Concordia came through with the extra point and the teams changed ends with the visitors leading 14-0.

However, it was a different Red and White squad that faced the Flyers in the second 15 minutes of play. The Saints served early notice that they were still in the ball game and quarterback Fred Ripley came through with a brilliant 80 yard run at the seven-minute mark to close the gap to 14-6. The convert attempt failed and the half time whistle found things still standing at the same eight-point spread.

ROAR TO ATTACK ....

Saint Dunstan's roared to the attack early in the third quarter and Len Ellis brought the ball to Flyers' seven-yard line with a nice 15 yard jaunt. From the next scrimmage, Ripley came through with his second touchdown and Rene Perry kicked the extra point to put things in a cosy 14-13 condition.

However, the closeness didn't last long and when Saints kicked off after that touchdown, Halfkenny scooped up the pigskin and raced from his own 20 right into the Saints' end zone. Once again Concordia came through with a fine boot for the extra point.

The Flyers continued the pressure and five minutes later left end Sam Swan tore over from close in after Shearwater had intercepted a pass deep in SDU territory. This time Concordia failed to garner the extra one point.

With the score reading 27-13. starting the fourth quarter. Saint Dunstan's came to life and Ripley hit Frank Garrity, Walt Buotte and Don DesRoches. It was Don who took a 20 yard pass in Shearwater end zone to give Saints their third and final touchdown of the afternoon. This time Perry made good on the convert.

Down one converted touchdown, 27-20, Saints tried desperately to close the gap but it just wasn't in the cards. The Flyers threw a determined attack at the scholars and Halfkenny finally went over from the two-yard line to put the game out of reach. Concordia again booted the ball between the uprights and the game ended 34-20.

A large crowd of spectators watched the action and although the local squad lost the decision, the general opinion was that the game had provided fine football entertainment.

It was a cleanly played contest with not one trace of bad temper being displayed by players on either team.

Chuck Hiller's Grand Slam Highlights Giants' 7-3 Win

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Hiller, a chunky little fellow with only three home runs all season, hit the first grand slammer of his brief career in the seventh inning Monday and tied the World Series with a crushing 7-3 San Francisco victory over favored New York Yankees.

Hiller's blow off relief pitcher Marshall Bridges came with the score tied at 2-2 after a Yank sixth-inning rally repaired the damage of Tom Haller's two-run homer off Whitey Ford in the second.

All even at two games each, the Giants' victory assured San Francisco fans of a sixth game Thursday and possibly a seventh game Friday. After today's fourth game in this best-of-seven playoff the clubs will take a day off Wednesday for travel.

It was the first homer with the bases loaded by a National Leaguer in all the 59 World Series although seven had been hit by American Leagues, six of them by Yankees.

M AND M UPSTAGED

The Giants' unsung conbination of Hiller and Haller, which sounds like a song and dance act, upstaged the Yanks' famed M and M boys when Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris went hitless.

A crowd of 66.607 watched manager Alvin Dark of the Giants outduel Ralph Houk of the Yanks in a series of sharp strategic moves before Hiller hit his grand slammer.

It got another thrill in the last of the ninth when successive two-out singles by Tony Kubek, Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh scored a run and brought up Mantle with two on. However, Billy O'Dell, fourth Giant pitcher, made Mickey hit into a force play ending the game.

To make this day even more memorable was the fact that Don Larsen was the winning pitcher. It was just exactly six years to the day that Larsen pitched his famous perfect game for the Yanks against Brooklyn Dodgers. As it turned out the first man he faced was pinch hitter Yogi Berra, the man who caught him on that historic afternoon in 1956.

BATTED FOR FORD

Berra had batted for Ford in the sixth when Houk desperately tried to break the game wide open, after tying the score. Although Berra walked loading the bases, Larsen made Kubek ground out to first base.

Jim Coates took over in the seventh and the wheels began to turn, after he walked Jim Davenport. Haller, a strapping catcher, struck out before Dark made his first move.

Although Jose Pagen, his shortstop was hitting .500 and led all Series players, Dark yanked him for a pinch-hitter in a daring move. He sent up Matty, kid brother of Felipe, went to a 2-2 count before he lined a double past third base down the left field line.

When Dark sent up Ed Bailey, another lefty batter, to hit for Larsen, Houk called to the bullpen for Marshall Bridges, a husky lefty Dark, who still had a move to make while Houk had to go with his pitcher until he faced at least one man, then sent up Bob Nieman a right handed batter, to face Bridges.

WALKS NIEMAN

Houk's book called for an intentional walk to the veteran Nieman, a hand-me-down from several clubs, loading the bases, with one out. Dark called on Ernie Bowman to run for the slow-footed Nieman. That was one move that was unnecessary.

Harvey Kuenn had a chance to break it open but he popped up to Clete Boyer after fouling off pitches and there were two out.

Hiller, a steady fielder with no reputation for power, took a called strike and then looked at a ball from the fast-balling Bridges.

The former S.T Thomas College athlete swung at the next pitch — a high fast ball—and the ball sailed into the lower stands in right over the head of Roger Maris who could do no more than look and talk to himself.

Davenport, Matty Alou, Bowman and finally Hiller all romped home to an impromptu celebration at homeplate.

Houk said in the clubhouse it was "my decision" to take Ford out for a batter. He said he had talked to Ford, who had allowed five hits in six innings, and Ford told him he was losing his stuff.

"I'd do it all over again," said Houk.

ALLOWED TWO RUNS

However, the only runs off Whitey up to that time had been scored in the second on Felipe Alou's double and Haller's home run into the right field seats.

Coates was the losing pitcher, for the runs that meant the difference in that inning had been put on base by him although Bridges had walked Nieman and thrown the home run ball.

In the fifth inning the Giants' infield performed like the rinky dinks and escaped. The Yanks left two in that inning, three in the sixth and 10 in all.

The Giants were rolling along with that 2-0 lead behind Juan Marichal until Marichal was hit on the right index finger while trying unsuccessfully to squeeze home a run with a bunt in the fifth. The Yanks had only two hits off him in the first four innings. It was a tough blow for the Giants, for Marichal struck out four men.

Bob Bolin, a towering relief man with a blazing fast ball, threw nothing but strikes—all 16 pitches without a ball—in the fifth but two of the strikes were hit for singles by Bill Skowron and Clete Boyer opening the inning.

TRAP SKOWRON

When Ford hit a ball back to first base, Skorwon was trapped between third and the plate. In the ensuing rundown, the Giants forgot to cover second and third and both runners moved up.

Davenport then fumbled Kubek's slow roller for an error and the bases were loaded with only one out. Richardson grounded sharply to Hiller at second and the second baseman made the force and completed the double play although his throw to first bounced and Orlando Cepeda had to make a fine pickup.

There was one out in the Yankee sixth when Bolin ran into a wild streak and walked both Mantle and Maris. Elston Howard flied out but Skowron singled to left, past the straining shortstop, drove in Maris with the tying run.

Dark then called for Larsen to replace Bolin and escaped without any more damage.

TAKES NO CHANCES

Taking no chances with his 6-2 lead, Dark brought in Billy O'Dell, who had been scheduled to start today, to mop up in the last three innings. He did the job, despite a brief scare in the ninth

The Giants final run was an unearned affair in the top of the ninth Swift Matty Alou beat out an infield single and was sacrificed to second. He scored when Hiller's slow roller to second was tossed wide of Skowron at first into the Yankee dugout.

In the last of the ninth scare, Bowman made his presence felt at shortstop. He tossed out Boyer for the first out. Hec Lopez batted for Bridges, but Bowman made a spectacular sprawling stop to his right, then arose and made the peg in the time to first. The Yanks then came up with three singles to score one run before the game ended.

"It will be Jack Sanford (24-7) today and probably Billy Pierce (16-6) in San Francisco Thursday,"said Dark. "Willie Mccovey will play first today, Matty Alou will be in right and Haller will catch."

Houk named Ralph Terry (23-12), loser to Sanford in the 2-0 second game, to pitch.

Dark said Marichal was finished for the season because of his injury. That meant O'Dell would be the seventh game pitcher if the series went all the way.

Chuck Hiller Poled High, Inside Pitch

NEW YORK (AP)—"I thought he might throw a fast ball, in fact I was hoping he would," explained a happy Chuck Hiller whose seventh inning grand slam home run produced a 7-3 victory for San Francisco Giants over New York Yankees Monday and tied the World Series.

"The pitch was high and inside. When I hit it, It hought it had a good chance of going out of here, but I hit so few, I didn't know."

Hiller hit only three home runs during the regular season and he can't remember hitting a grand slammer even in the minors.

His clout into the right field seats off reliever Marshall Bridges sent the Giants into a 6-2 lead and put a climax to an inning of manager Alvin Dark's strategy.

Hiller shared the game's honors with Tom Haller and veteran southpaw Billy O'Dell who went in for three fine relief innings instead of starting today's game.

Hiller crashed a homer off Whitey Ford in the second inning to give the Giants a 2-0 lead. Both Hiller and Haller, the only left handed batters in the starting array, hit their homers off left handed pitchers, in defiance of baseball percentages.

NOT DISAPPOINTED

O'Dell declared he wasn't a bit disappointed to go into the game in the seventh inning reliefing Don Larsen—who was the winner over the Yankees on the anniversary Oct. 8 date of the 1956 perfect game he Brooklyn in the World Series.

"This ball game today meant more to us than tomorrow's," O'Dell declared. "We'd really have been down if we had lost today and been behind 3-1 in games."

O'Dell retired the first eight men to face him without a ball going out of the infield. But Tony Kubek, Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh singled to bring in a run with two down in the ninth. Then up came Mickey Mantle to become the final out.

"I threw him a slider that he hit to short," O'Dell explained.

'SUDDENLY I'M A HERO'

'All Year Fighting For Life', Says Hiller

NEW YORK (AP)—"All year I've been fighting for my life," Chuck Hiller was saying. "And suddenly I'm a hero. Baseball sure is a funny game."

For more than an hour and a half after Monday's fourth World Series game, a 7-3 San Francisco victory over New York. made possible by Hiller's grand slam homer, the chucky little second baseman was surrounded by reporters, besieged with countless questions.

"Was I thinking of hitting a home run?" he asked. "Heck, no. All I was hoping was to get a piece of the ball. I don't suppose you know I hit only three home runs all year. They've been so few and far between, I can remember the date, the pitcher, the inning, even the pitch.

"I got one of them off a left hander, too, just like today. It came off Dennis Bennett of the Phillies. The others were off Glenn Hobbie (Chicago) and ElRoy Face (Pittsburgh)."

SNAPPED TIE

Hiller's homer Monday was hit off Marshall Bridges, a left handed relief pitcher. It came with two out, three men on base, on a 1-1 count in the seventh inning and snapped a 2-2 tie.

Hiller, who first became a Giant in 1961, is still a Giant simply because they couldn't get rid of him. They tried to trade him all last winter and early this season.

It was only when the Giants became convinced they couldn't get anybody worth while for Hiller that manager Alvin Dark told Chuck he was the team's regular second baseman.

"I'll never forget that day," said the 27-year-old Hiller. I" had read all winter that the Giants were trying to trade me. Was I worried? You had to be dead not to worry. Maybe that's why I was so horrible in spring training. I thought sure then I'd go and I didn't want to.

Houk Says His Decision To Yank Whitey Ford

NEW YORK (CP)—Manager Ralph Houk of New York Yankees said it was strictly his decision—and not Whitey Ford's—to yank his ace pitcher for a pinch - hitter Monday in the fourth World Series game, won by San Francisco Giants 7-3.

"Whitey didn't ask to be taken out," Houk said between puffs on a cigar in the New York dressing room after the game. "He told me he didn't have very good stuff and that was enough for me.

"I saw a chance to break the game open and took Ford out for Yogi Berra as a pinch-hitter. I would do the same thing under similar circumstances tomorrow."

The Yankees and Giants were tied 2-2 when Berra went in to hit for Ford in the seventh.

Berra, was walked and then Tony Kubek grounded out, ending the Yankees' threat.

Ford wasn't one of those ready to question the strategy of his manager.

NOT TIRED

"I wasn't tired," he said afterward. "But If I'd been the manager, I'd have done the same thing. I'd have used a pinch hitter."

Ford was replaced by Jim Coates in the seventh who in turn was succeeded by Marshall Bridges.

In the seventh inning, Chuck Hiller, San Francisco's second baseman, hit a grand - slam home run into the right-field seats to give the Giants a 6-2 lead.

One wag described the fourth game of the series, which knotted the baseball classic at two games each, in this succinct fashion:

"Haller, Hiller, Hallelujah and the Bridges come tumbling down."'

Catcher Tom Haller poled a two-run homer in the second inning and Hiller uncorked his grand slammer in the seventh for four more. A hit by Hiller and an error by Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson contributed the final Giant run in the ninth.

Top Racing Seen Saturday Night

Morley's Pride, a six-year-old Simcoe Harvester gelding, owned by Jack Annear, Montague emerged the lone double dash winner on Saturday night's harness racing program at Charlottetown Driving Park.

The Pride copped both ends of the AA and A pace, winning with ease in 2:11 and 2:11.2. Scottish Light, reined by Lorne Hennessey, gave chase in both dashes.

Taking turns at heading the field in other classes were Myrtle's Boy and Coltnik, Torrid Waters and Here Am I, and Jeanie Brewer and Zither. Armond's Buddy took top money in the lone single dash which opened the Saturday night show. The Buddy's time of 2:08.4 was the best of the night.

None of the win pays got in the double figures. However place and show did manage to accomplish this. Rush Hal paid $12.80 to show in the sixth dash and Dreamy Guy paid $15.10 to place in the final race of the night.

The daily double combination of Armond's Buddy and Myrtle's Boy was worth $10.90 and the second double, Jeanie Brewer and Coltnik, $14.50. The first quinella, Torrid Waters and Here Am I, gave a return of $4.70 and the second quinella, Zither and Dreamy Guy, was worth a tidy $71.00.

The next race program goes this coming Wednesday.

Roughriders Halt Eskimos 28-20

By SCOTT SCHILL

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders, holding back a fierce passing attack by Edmonton quarterback Jackie Parker, moved into third place in the Western Football Conference Monday with a 28-20 victory over the Eskimos before 12,783 fans.

Kicking specialist Steve Myhra, picked up 10 days ago from Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, kicked 10 points—two field goals, three converts and a single.

Quarterback Bob Ptacek of Saskatchewan hit on a 73-yard pass - and - run play to end Jack Gotta for one touchdown and scored another himself from one yard out. Fullback Ferd Burket fell over the line for the other Rider touchdown.

Parker scored one touchdown and passed three yards to end E. A. Sims for another. Tommy-Joe Coffey went over for a three - yard touchdown and kicked two converts.

Edmonton took a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on Coffey's touchdown, but Saskatchewan lead 11-6 at halftime and 21-13 after three quarters.

The result gives Saskatchewan 13 points in 11 games, two behind second - place Calgary Stampeders with two games in hand Winnipeg has 16 points. British Columbia Lions dropped to fourth with 12 points in 12 games and Edmonton, having its worst season in 13 years, trails with nine points.

Ptacek had one of his best passing games since coming to Saskatchewan from Cleveland Browns of the NFL three years ago. He connected on 13 of 18 attempts.

Mounties Nip Saints 2-0

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — Rock Black booted two singles for Mount Allison Tigers here Monday to squeak out a 2-0 victory over Saint Dunstans Saints in an Atlantic Football Conference fixture.

The game was played in pouring rain and gusting winds which kept it to a ground contest most of the way. Black kicked the lone points of the game in the first and third quarters.

The win was the first of the season for the Mount A squad who have had two defeats. St. Dunstans sport a two loss, one tie record.
