

Fame and Notoriety.

The Sunday School Times says:—A certain European prince is said to have declared that the highest ambition was to become famous without trying to be famous. His idea was a good one, but, after all, the last part of the phrase is superfluous. People whose aim in life is to be pointed at as 'the celebrated' so-and-so generally succeed only in becoming notorious; while real fame falls to the lot of those who quietly do their duty in that state of life to which it has pleased God to call them, and who work for results rather than reputation. And yet there are people all around us whose one idea in life is to note the effect of their actions on their personal renown, rather than on the world's welfare. They are like that monarch of the African jungles who asked his first European visitor: 'What do they say about me in England?'

The Peruvian war still progresses, and is assuming vastly increased proportions. Several mules were recently stolen by the Chilians.

The St. Petersburg Golos hints semi-officially that Russia will be compelled to secure an ally to offset the Austro-German alliance, possibly, it is thought, France.

Mr. Lorillard, the owner of Parol, finds that it will cost him $1,000 duty, to bring into the United States the cup, valued at $2,500, which his horse won in England.

The finest stud of horses in the world is that belonging to the omnibus company of Paris. There are twelve thousand picked horses in the different stables of that company.

An English paper attributes the American manufacturer's great success in extending his trade to advertising, and states that he gets more good for his money spent in advertising than the man in any other country.

Red snow is usually found only in arctic latitudes. It is to be seen this year on a lofty summit near Mount Stamford, in the Sierra Nevada range. For several acres the vast drifts are a beautiful pinkish tint to the depth of three or four inches.

A STRANGE FISH.—On Monday, the 20th, a live ox swam ashore near Casey Cape, Kent Co. It is believed the ox was thrown overboard from a vessel bound to Miramichi from P. E. Island. The ox was captured and taken in charge by some Frenchman in the vicinity of Casey Cape.—Moncton Times.

Two grammarians were wrangling the other day, one contending that it was only proper to say 'My wages are high,' while the other noisily insisted that the correct thing was, 'My wages are high.' Finally they stopped a day laborer and submitted the question to him. 'Which do you say? Your wages are high, or Your wages are high? 'Oh, off wid yer nonsense,' he said, resuming his pick; 'yer nather of ve right; me wages is low, bad luck to it.'

EMIGRATION FROM THE STATES.—A Winnipeg despatch of the 20th says:—'Prittie's last party of emigrants, which arrived on Saturday last, numbered about 300, of whom 100 were from the United States. 30 were from New York State, 23 were from Michigan, three families from Wilkesbare, Pa., two families from Portage city, Wis., and one from North Carolina. Mr. Prittie says that out of 8,000 emigrants brought in by him this season, 2,000 were from the United States and with few exceptions were native American citizens.'

Some curious trinkets, to which certain motions can be given at will by means of electricity, have recently been devised by M. Trouve. Two of these described in 'La Nature' are scarfpins; one has a death's head, gold or enamel, with diamond eyes and an articulated jaw; the other has a rabbit seated upright on a box with a little bell before it, to be struck with two rods held in the animal's forepaws. An invisible wire connects these objects with a small hermetically-closed battery, the ebonite case of which is about the size of a cigarette. It is kept in the waistcoat pocket, and acts only when turned horizontally or inverted. When a person looks at the pin the owner, slipping a finger into his pocket, moves the battery, whereupon the death's head rolls its eyes and grinds its teeth, or the little rabbit beats the bell with its rods (through electro-magnetic action.) A third kind of ornament is a small bird set with diamonds, to be fixed in a lady's hair, and the wings of which can be set in motion electrically.

Boschees German Syrup can now be purchased right at home, it is the most successful preparation ever introduced to our people. It works like a charm in all cases of Consumption, Pneumonia, Hemorrhages, Asthma, severe Coughs, Croup and all other Throat and Lung Diseases. No person has ever used this medicine without getting immediate relief, yet there are a great many poor, suffering, skeptical persons going about our streets with a suspicious cough, and the voice of consumption coming from their lungs, that will not try it. If you die, it is your own fault, as you can go to your druggist and get a sample bottle and try it; three doses will relieve any case. Regular size only 75 cts.

The ex-Empress Eugenie is to make a pilgrimage to Zululand.

The Duke of Cumberland has decided to resign the Hanoverian crown.

King Theebaw is said to be in a warlike mood and it is pretty clear that he will be gratified. The burning of the British Residency and barracks at Mandalay by his orders will surely be avenged, and will probably cost King Theebaw his kingdom.

A distinguished and long-winded Paris lawyer lately defended a criminal successfully, and at the end of the trial the judge received the following note:—"The prisoner humbly prays that the time occupied by the plea for the defence be counted in his sentence."

POLITICAL EXPENSES IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The official expense attending a general election in Great Britain is considerable. According to a Parliamentary return just issued, the returning officers' charges at the last general election were highest in Middlesex, being £2,273 5s. 11d., and lowest in Bedfordshire (where there was no contest) being £25 9s. 4d. In eighteen other counties the charges exceeded £1,000 each.

WILD BEASTS.—There were as many as 19,595 persons killed by wild beasts and snakes in British India in the calendar year 1877. Tigers head the list. There were 819 persons killed by tigers, 564 by wolves, 200 by leopards, 85 by bears, 45 by elephants, 24 by hyenas, 1,180 by other wild beasts. The other 16,777 victims were killed by snakes. These various enemies of mankind killed also 53,197 cattle in the year. The measures adopted in India for exterminating wild beasts and venomous snakes resulted in the destruction of 22,851 of the former, and 127,295 of the latter in the course of the year, and for this deliverance from them rewards were paid to the amount of 10,301 pounds.

Another cremation is shortly to take place at the furnace in Washington, Pa., used for the incineration of the mortal remains of Baron De Palm and Mrs. Benn Pitman. The chief apostle of cremation, Dr. Le Moynie, will furnish the corps, having passed over to the majority, firm in his principles to the last. His death, while infusing a temporary fire, so to speak, into the cause, removes its most practical and energetic advocate, and the furnace is not likely to be again used for the purpose of hastening the decomposition of human remains. Sentiment is stronger than economical and sanitary arguments in such matters, and there is less prospect than ever of any general or widespread change in the mode of disposing of the dead.

SELLING A SAINT'S ASHES.—The Times correspondent writes from Naples:—"As regards the disposition of the Italians to convert everything into money, a curious fact occurred lately at Isernia. The Piccolo states that the cinerary urn of San Nicandro was sold by the chapter of that place, by means of a canon and his two nephews, for 10,000 lire. When discovered, the public indignation was intense, and on the receipt of a telegram that the guilty parties would pass through Venafro on a certain day by the diligence, a demonstration was prepared. The diligence arrived without the canon; but soon after another carriage appeared with the Bishop of the diocese. Unfortunately, Monsignore was taken for the canon, and received all the insults intended for the latter. It was not so much a love of art, perhaps, as devotion to the saints which gave rise to this indignation. To sell the cinerary urn of their saint was an enormous offence."
