U.S. Scientists To Start Rocket Firing In Arctic

OTTAWA (CP) — United States scientists will start firing sky-searching rockets in the Canadian Arctic this fall, using Manitoba's Fort Churchill as the rocket-launching base.

The rockets will be used to explore the Arctic atmosphere to a height of 180 miles, Canada and the U.S. announced Friday in a joint statement on plans for the International Geophysical Year which gets under way next July.

Fort Churchill is being prepared as a multi-million-dollar base for the rockets, with the money coming from the U.S. The site is to be made ready by October with preliminary rocket firings to start late in October or early November.

CANADIANS HELP

American scientists will direct the rocket flights while Canadian scientists will make ground observations.

The joint Canada-U.S. committee on the IGY said Fort Churchill has been chosen for two reasons: It is readily accessible and it lies within the Arctic auroral belt where northern lights can be most easily seen.

Instruments carried in the rockets will measure density, temperature, pressure and wind velocities in the Arctic atmosphere at heights never studied before.

They also will make measurements of the ionosphere—the upper region of rarified, ionized gas between 50 and 250 miles above the earths surface — which reflects radio waves in long-distance communication.

"The rockets will record effects of the sun's light at high altitudes and such phenomena as northern lights, cosmic rays and the earth's magnetism."

Kentucky Town's Mayor Bitter Guard Called In Segregation

By GEORGE HACKETT

CLAY, Ky. (AP)—"We went to bed a peaceable, law - abiding community and awoke looking like a police state in Russia."

The words, bitterly spoken, were those of Herman Z. Clark, mayor of this Kentucky town for 20 years. His town had been invaded the day before by Kentucky National Guardsmen ordered to see that two Negroes entered Clay School in line with the United States Supreme Court order ending segregation.

"They called out 500 guardsmen to force our white children out of their own school and put two Negroes in," he said. "our (guardsmen) could have done the job. We mean no harm to anyone."

Thursday only one white student showed up for classes with James and Teresa Gordon, young Negroes from a nearby community.

Sitting on the porch of his 15 room house, the 66-year-old millionaire said the town has nothing against Negroes. "But we don't want them in our schools or in our churches."

STUCK WITH JOB

"We're afraid of inter-marriage which leads to a mongrel race.

"'I grew up wth Negroes. I have had one living on my farm for the last 11 years. He is like a brother to me."

Clark was elected mayor, "because it's a job nobody else wants —they gave it to me and I can't get rid of it."

Most residents of this town of 2,200 feel he is doing a fine job. They agree with Clark's attitude on segregation.

"We've been separated from the Negroes for 100 years and want to keep it that way," was a typical comment. "We have never had any trouble here."

When will the guardsmen leave? "Well," said Clark, "when they get the Negroes graduated from high school.'

Eisenhower's Open Skies Plan Again Denounced By Bulganin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russian Premier Bulganin again has denounced President Eisenhower's proposal for "open skies" aerial inspection as a move toward world disarmament.

In a letter to the president, the Russian leader criticized it as a thinly-disguished move to obtain "more complete intelligence data on the military and industrial resources" of Russia.

Acceptance of President Eisenhower's plan, proposed at the Geneva Big Four meeting 13 months ago, Bulganin said, "would only increase the mutual fear of the danger of a sudden attack and would engender a war psychosis."

Instead, Bulganin called on Eisenhower to outlaw nuclear tests as a first step towards breaking the disarmament deadlock — an approach the Russins have advocated before.

The 2,000 - word letter, dated Sept. 11, came one day after the Soviet's latest reported nuclear test in central Asia.

Eisenhower, in his last letter to Bulganin Aug. 4, called on the Soviets to make concrete moves to solve existing critical foreign policy problems in order to give new impetus to the deadlocked negotiations on disarmament.

Semi-Incubated Eggs And Royal Gelatine For Aged

ROME (AP) — The personal physician of the Pope said Thursday that partially incubated eggs mixed with the food of queen bees helps prevent senility in humans.

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi - Lisi, who has been personal physician to the 80-year-old Pope for more than 20 years, was reporting to the second World Dietetic Congress here. More than 600 experts from 40 nations are attending.

Undoubetedly chicken eggs incubated for nine days are a constructive food which increases the physical resistance against disease and, consequently, prolongs life," he said.

Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi said that research conducted by himself and his son, Dr. Antonello Galeazzi-Lisi, had disclosed the added benefits of mixing the eggs with "royal gelatine." This is the food which worker bees bring to the queen bee.

He did not say whether the egg mixture has been used by the Pope.

Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi claimed that the same mixture was useful in cases of obesity and some cases of liver malfunction.

Britain Invites 15 To Conference

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain Friday night invited 15 nations to attend a conference here next week to set up a Suez Canal users' association.

A foreign office spokesman said the invitations were sent on behalf of France and the United States to those 15 states which backed an earlier 18-nationa plan for, internationlizing the canal. Egypt opposes internationlization.

It is understood that the conference will convene next Wednesday.

Four nations which attended the recent London Suez conference but which did not support the internationalization plan—Russia, India, Ceylon and Indonesia — have not been invited.

Says Inflation Seems Arrested

HALIFAX (CP) — "Inflation, at the present time, seems to be somewhat arrested," A. C. Ashforth, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank said Friday.

He told a press conference that while Canada's high rate of prosperity seems to have leveled off, it would likely continue at its present level "at least until 1957."

Mr. Ashforth, along with officers and directors of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, is touring cities in the bank's eastern division.

Mr. Ashforth said that while inflationary practises have been cut by banks no restraint has been placed on persons borrowing small amounts o' money. But long-term loans and those for large sums of money have been discouraged to some extent.

"It is easier to borrow money now," he said, "then it was 10 years ago" when people felt they would rather borrow from a neighbor than approach a bank.

Mr. Clarence MacLeod, Boston, Mass., spent ten days recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Aylward, Skinner's Pond.

Haying is about completed in this area, and the crop was a full one. Help was scarce, which gave the farmer in general an uneasy feeling. However, with the help of several valing outfits owned by farmers in this neighborhood, the work was made easier. Barns are all filled, with hay stacks very much in evidence all over the countryside. The grain cropshows promise of being an excellent one. Also if one can judge the potato field by the beautiful fields of potato tops that can be seen, then, the crop will surely be a record one.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harper and son Clifton of Tignish, went with Mr. Leo MacDougall of Alberton to St. Ann de Beaupre on a pilgrimage to the Shrine. On former trips they found it rather difficult to secure lodging, but this time they will not have any worries, as Mr. MacDougall has brought his house-trailer along, they will be provided with all the comforts of home, away from home.

Find Missing U. S. Cheques

WASHINGTON (AP)—The post office department Friday announced the recovery of 10 government cheques totalling $4,259,000, previously reported lost in the mails after being posted in Denver, Colo.

The department said postal inspectors found the missing cheques at a Denver postal station "din empty equipment where they had been erroneously placed."

The recovery was made Thursday a few hours after the inspectors started the hunt.

The cheques were mailed last Friday by the treasury's Denver regional disbursing office to contractors working on Atomic Energy Commission contracts. The search started when some contractors complained they had not received the expected payments.

Model Of Atomic Power Plant Given U.N. By Soviet Union

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP Russia Thursday gave the United Nations a model of the first Soviet-operating atomic power plant and said it is introducing atomic energy into Russia's national economy in every possible way.

Georgi F. Saksin, acting permanent representative of the Soviet Union at the UN, made the presentation in a speech prepared for a ceremony attended by a number of UN delegates and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Presentation of the model, unveiled at the Geneva atomic conference last year, caught several countries by surprise. The United States and four others were preparing exhibits to be opened Sept. 19 but the Russians stole a march.

Saksin said the model is of the first industrial atomic power plant in the world. He said it was constructed and put into operation in the Soviet Union in the summer of 1954.

Detailing some of the atomic plans for Russia, Saksin said that during the sixth five - year plan from 1956-1960 the Soviet Union will build atomic power plants having a total capacity of 2,500,000 kilowatts. Also, he said, Russia is building the first ice-breaker propelled by atomic energy and it will accompany ships along the North Sea route from Europe to Asia and back without refuelling for two and three years.

Former Cossack Would Like More Soviet Visitors

TORONTO (CP) — A former Cossack officer says groups who demonstrate against Soviet visitors here are really helping the Communist cause.

Such demonstrators drive Russians and westerners farther apart says Dr. Boris Skey, retired agricultural economist.

Dr. Skey acted as translator for two groups of Russian agricultural experts who were in Canada last year, and also for Russian Orthodox church leaders who were in Canada last winter.

He says he learned from these experiences that Canadians and Russians can get along if they forget the political bitterness growing out of opposing ideologies.

URGES CALM

"New Canadians who fight these visits are so emotionally involved —and understandably so — that they act against their own interests," said Dr. Skey.

He believes they should work instead for more visits by Russians.

Dr. Skey broke with the Russian Culture Club, which he helped to found, because it attacked the Russian church leaders as Communist government agents.

"It is our duty to approach Russian visitors in such a way that it will strengthen their human side," he said.

"If these people are treated kindly, and if they see the truth perhaps they will tell other Russians."

Re-open Probe In Traffic Death

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP) — Provincial police said Wednesday reports of a quarrel between the two men have led them to re-open an investigation into a traffic accident in which one man was slightly injured and the other fatally injured.

Police said they have asked Dr. Gustave Desrochers, Quebec medico-legal expert, to perform an autopsy on the body of Camille Lepage, 32, of St. Angele, Que., who died in hospital here Sept. 9.

Lepage was a passenger in a car driven by Robert Vien, which was lightly damaged when it ran into a ditch after striking an object on the road at nearby St. Gabriel Sept. 6. Vien was slightly hurt but Lepage was taken to hospital with severe injuries, including a fractured skull.

Police said they are investigating reports that the men had been involved in a quarrel shortly before the accident.
