May Call Next Session Of Parliament This Year

OTTAWA, June 22 (CP)—Another session of parliament, possibly the last before a general election, may be called late this year.

There is no indication that it will be a special session, but the regular 1953 session—seventh of the 21st parliament—called early to permit cabinet ministers and parliamentarians to attend the Queen's coronation in London next June. Ordinarily the 1953 meeting would not start until January or February.

The current session is expected to finish this month, possibly Monday, June 30. To meet this target the commons starts a 48-hour work-week Monday, sitting mornings, afternoons and evening, including Saturdays.

Surrounded While Tearing Up Railway Line

HELMSTEDT, Germany, June 22 (CP)—Two Russian soldiers and a group of East German Communist police crossed into West Germany today and kidnaped 43 workers.

The workers were tearing up a railway spur near the East-West German frontier when they were surrounded and marched off into East Germany at gunpoint.

West German border police, who reported the incident, said about seven workers in the group fled to safety. East German police fired over their heads with pistols as the men ran, the Western police said.

The kidnapping took place near the little town of Helmstedt which lies on the international border just a few miles from Helmstedt. British officials demanded the release of the 43 men.

A Soviet officer said that he had no authority to act.

BERLIN, June 22 (Reuters)—Civil airline pilots said here today they had been warned that any accidental violation of East German air space could mean immediate attack by Russian fighters.

Western Allied officials issued the warning in view of a recent state of Russian complaints that Western planes—both civil and military—had strayed into East Germany. All said the West would in the future be responsible for the consequences of such violations.

Western officials here said they believed this means that the Russian Air Force had—or soon would have—orders to shoot down any western planes to stray into East Germany.

RENO, Nev., June 22 (AP)—Millionaire LaVerne Redfield—jailed after failure to appear as a witness against a gang accused of looting his home of $1,500,000—had a change of heart late Saturday. He bailed himself out.

He put up $50,000, climbed into a sheriff's car, drove to his 15-room home, scene of the February robbery, and went into seclusion.

But he is expected to show up in court this week. He has been served with two subpoenas.

The 54-year-old millionaire was arrested Friday in California. Brought before U. S. Commissioner Francis St. J. Fox in San Francisco, Redfield said, "Your Honor, I can make bail in a minute (bail had been set at $50,000) but it's not my desire."

So Redfield was hauled to Reno. When he refused to post bail, he was escorted to a cell. He indicated he would stay there until called to testify. He changed his mind later.

U. S. Officer Says Red Plans Off Schedule

SEOUL, June 23 (Monday)—(AP)—Fierce fighting raged Sunday on the Korean western front with battalion and regimental sized raiding parties on the United Nations and troops advancing in spite of heavy resistance.

Aggressive Red punches at the Allied line were thrown back, U.N. headquarters said.

Simultaneously, Maj.-Gen. David L. Ruffner, commander of the U.S. 45th Division, declared the defence of key outpost positions on "T-Bone" and "Pork Chop" hills, west of Chorwon, this week-end upset Chinese Communist plans to smash through the Allied lines.

Front dispatches said the Reds have suffered 9,500 casualties in 10 days of attacks.

The unusually large groups of U.S. armoured raiding parties numbered from 1,000 to more than 3,000 men.

Truce Prospects Dim

MUNSAN, June 23 (Monday)—(AP)—Prospects of break in the critically deadlocked Korean truce talks appeared increasingly dim today as Allied delegates prepared for another meeting with the Reds.

The session was scheduled at Panmunjom at 11 a. m. (10 p. m. EDT Sunday).

Two recesses which the Allies brought about within the last two weeks seem to have softened slightly the constantly-repeated Communist propaganda charges, but the Reds persisted in that line Sunday.

Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., the senior Allied delegate, told the Reds again that the United Nations command would never forcibly return a Communist prisoner to North Korea or China.

Prisoner exchange is the key issue blocking an armistice in the Korean war which will be two years old Wednesday.

Last Surviving Mayo Clinic Founder Dies

ROCHESTER, Minn., June 22 (AP)—Dr. Christopher Graham, 96, the last member of the group of doctors who founded the famed Mayo Clinic, died suddenly at his home Saturday. Famous Canadian Pilot Dies Of Heart Attack

CALGARY, June 22 (CP)—One of Canada's most famous northern bush pilots and an aviation pioneer in the west, Capt. Wilfred Reid (Wop) May, 57, died Saturday of a heart attack at Timpanogos National Park near Provo, Utah.

His son, Denny, 17, was with him. They were climbing a hill near the Timpanogos cave when the elder May collapsed.

May's flying career began in the Royal Flying Corps during the First World War. He gained his first fame because he was the unintentional decoy in the last flight of Baron von Richthofen, famed German ace.

May was being chased by the dreaded "Red Knight" when Capt. Roy Brown noticed the action. Richthofen was brought down by Brown. May returned to Canada with the Distinguished Flying Cross, and organized Edmonton's first air line.

He was awarded the McKee Trophy in 1929 as having contributed most in aviation to the country in that year, highlighted by a 700-mile flight north of Edmonton to Fort Vermilion in an open-cockpit plane in a 30-below-zero blizzard to deliver anti-toxin to the diphtheria-ravaged fur-trade post.

In the same year, May made the first non-stop flight from Edmonton to Winnipeg, covering the 800 miles at an average speed of 112 miles an hour.

In 1932, May flew the plane that guided R.C.M.P. officers in their hectic chase of Albert Johnson, the "Mad Trapper of the Arctic." He was awarded the O.B.E. in 1935.

The nickname Wop stuck to him after a hissing baby girl called him "Wopie" while trying to pronounce Wilfred.

In 1936 he was given an executive post by Canadian Airlines Ltd., later absorbed by Canadian Pacific Airlines. In 1943 he organized a first-aid parachute crew, a plan he had been considering for years while becoming convinced that pilots who crashed in remote areas might survive if given treatment early enough.

Government Plans In Face of a Strike Threat

Government plans in the face of a strike threat by maintenance employees of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission were still unknown tonight. Such a strike would black out power in most of the province.

Donald T. Cochrane, vice-chairman and general manager of the commission, said the government had "no intention" that there will be any interruption of this essential service." He declined to amplify the statement.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (I.B.E.W.), claiming to represent a majority of the maintenance workers, has set July 2 as deadline for recognition of the union under the New Brunswick Labor Relations Act. The government so far, according to the union, has taken the stand that commission employees are not employees of the government and as such outside the provisions of the act.

Another high official of the commission said a government announcement, probably from Premier McNeil, would be made soon on the situation.

The power network of the commission serves most of New Brunswick from generating plants at Musquash, Grand Lake, Saint John and Chatham and several smaller standby plants, but some communities are served by private companies and would escape the effects of a power blackout.

In West Central New Brunswick, Woodstock, Bath, Bristol, Florenceville, Hartland, Perth and Andover are served by the Maine and New Brunswick Power Company, with plants in Maine. The Grand Falls area draws most of its power from the Gatineau Power Co., which has a plant at Grand Falls, and Campbellton is served by the same company on a long line running from Gaspe.

Edmundston has its own hydro plant and also draws some electricity from the Fraser Companies Limited mill there. Dalhousie is served by the power plant of the New Brunswick International Paper Co. Ltd., and Bathurst by generators of the Bathurst Power and Paper Co. Ltd.

Almost all the rest of the province relies on the Power Commission.
