ABSOLUTE PURITY.

THE following analyses (made by the Dominion Analyst) of three BAKING POWDERS sold in this market should put a stop to the unjust efforts of the Royal to mislead the public as to its being the only pure Powder. These impartial tests show that other Powders are as pure and wholesome:
W. SAUNDERS, Dom. Analyst, St. John, N. B., reports:
Royal—Contains Alkaline Carbonates—a mixture consisting mainly of Bicarbonate of Soda and Cream of Tartar—adulterated with about 20 per cent. of Starch.
W. F. BEST, Dom. Analyst, St. John, N. B., reports:
Pure Gold—Contains Cream of Tartar, Carbonate of Soda—fresh and pure.
Nov. 10, 1882—Not adulterated; same as usual.
WOODILL'S
June 7, 1883—Not adulterated; same as usual.
MAYNARD BOWMAN, Dom. Analyst, Halifax, N. S., reports:
WOODILL'S
Of good quality; contains nothing injurious.
WOODILL'S German Baking Powder has a reputation for purity and wholesomeness now nearly 30 years.

Ethel De Wolfe

—OR—
SHADOWS AND SUNSHINE.

BY S. M. BENT.

CHAPTER V.
TWO LETTERS.

"Hurbert, Can you not read it? Is it not fair write Arthur, 'Too fairly, Hurbert, for so foul effect.'—King John."
"These she stands, my pretty Ethel, Waiting for the postman's call,
And I see the eager fingers, As they grasp the longest-for prize,
And the lowlight softly beaming In her tender soft blue eyes."—Anon.

WASHINGTON, March 7, 1862.
"MY DEAR MR. WARNER,—Here we are still cooped up in this confounded city. What a fraud McLellan is, when he won't move out and give a fellow a chance to earn an honest penny, eh, Warner? Though, to tell the truth, I ain't fond of fighting. I suppose this style of warfare would just suit you? What a pity you didn't retain your commission, but then of course you know your own business best, and being at home, you are in a better position to look after the fair sex, which I daresay you like better than the smell of powder. I would get out of this cursed place some way if it were not for the hopes now looming up of observing you to good advantage. That fellow Chancellery still has full fling, but I think it will soon be stopped. He has been in a dozen skirmishes, and come off untouched. And worse than that the post office is as free to him as to me, so that I have had no chance yet to carry out your instructions. However, it is rumored that we are to move on the enemy in a day or two, and then, by virtue of my position, I am to handle all mail matter for our company. You may therefore depend upon me doing my duty by you, for I don't think Miss Ethel De Wolfe will receive many more letters from Mr. Paul Chancellery. By the way, my spare cash is getting pretty low; can't you send me another hundred or so? It takes all a fellow's pay, and what he can keep by serving gentlemen like yourself, to keep up with the boys here. Don't forget it, please, and remember me to our mutual friends.
Your humble servant,
THOMAS PIDGEON,
Color Sergt., Company A, New York 5th.

"Curse the fellow; how disgustingly familiar he is becoming," exclaimed Lionel Warner, as, after reading the letter, he angrily tossed it into the fire, and helped himself to a glass of wine from a half-filled decanter on the table by which he sat, awaiting companions in the fierce passion for gambling that was leading him swiftly down the broad beaten path to moral ruin; "I suppose he'll bleed me like a leech now. I hope he'll only live long enough to help me through with this affair, and then get his infernal head blown off by the biggest cannon ball the rebels can send into the Union lines."

We gladly turn away and leave Lionel to his cards and wine, and the contemplation of the cowardly epistle of his "war correspondent." Let us, a few hours later, peep over the shoulder of fair Ethel De Wolfe, and with her peruse the loving words of a brave man to his sweetheart. How soft grow the sweet blue eyes with the far-away look of one whose thoughts fare with her distant lover, and how the love light fills them as it reflects the joy of her trusting heart.

WASHINGTON, March 9th, 1862.
"MY DEAR ETHEL,—This may be the last time I shall ever write to you, and I may never again behold your sweet face, never more feel the magic pressure of your silver hand. On to Richmond! is at last the order. Here we have been an immense army—penned up in Washington ever since the middle of the summer, organizing, drilling, and preparing for the grand movement that is to crush the monstrous Southern uprising. The city has been completely fortified, and the army thoroughly disciplined, and the divisions have been reaping a harvest of glory, and hearing their defeats like brave men, we have as yet only taken part occasionally in a comparatively insignificant skirmish, the most serious being the slaughter of a portion of our army at Ball's Bluff. While the world has been looking for our advance, and wondering why we remain cooped up so long, General McLellan, in whom we have unbounded confidence, even though he did not move out earlier in obedience to the President's order, has been busily engaged in perfecting his plans, and gathering around him, as he says himself, "the elements of success." After the gloomy months of the past year, with the many defeats sustained by the Federal soldiers, the country looks to the Army of the Potomac for the "crowning movement." Thank God the time has come at last to show the world that we are ready.
There is almost a panic in Washington to-night over the report that the enemy are evacuating their position, and in obedience to long expected orders, we follow them tomorrow, through a land once smiling and beautiful, but now devastated and dreary, with torn up railways and demoralized towns. Though we have perfect confidence in the generalship and ultimate success of our commander, yet I regret that he did not advance sooner, and that he allowed the winter to slide by without crushing the insurgents. More than a hundred thousand soldiers have long been anxious to hear the welcome command—"forward"—that they might show their brothers in arms, their wives, and their sweethearts, that they are men who flinch not at duty's call. "On to Richmond!" is now the battle cry, and when we reach the rebel seat of government, trust every man of the New York 5th do his duty, for every man in the regiment has a wife or a sweetheart who is waiting for him on to victory; but ah! darling Ethel, how many a wife will mourn how many a sweetheart's blue eyes will be dimmed with bitter tears, before the last cannon thunders at the downfall of Richmond, and the troops march home again.
A few weeks only may pass, beloved star of my existence, until I clasp you again to my heart, years may roll on weary wing before I bask in the sunshine of your bright eyes; and it may never be till the God of battles calls us face to face before his eternal throne. When ther of the march or in bivouac, your pure love shall cheer me on to the grand consummation that he appoints; amid the roar and rush of battle, it will fill me with courage that might be wanting did I not remember our parting vows; and if an over-ruling Providence so wills it that I fall, covered with honor,—for never shall it be said that the lover of Ethel De Wolfe failed to meet death as a brave man should—it will brighten my dying moments, and, as a crimson tide of glory and mercy, light my way to heaven's gate, which will swing open before its stainless purity.

"The bugle calls, and my post must not be vacant. Good night, loved Ethel, good night, I will not say farewell, heart of my heart, life of my life.
In life or death, ever thine,
PAUL."

She read and re-read the letter, put it carefully away among her treasures, then knelt, and breathed an earnest prayer for her lover's safety. That was the last letter Ethel received from Paul, for on the tented field brave Sergeant Pidgeon had ample opportunities for carrying out his secret employer's lastingly designs, while the God that ruled the nation's destinies spared him to fill the place of better men who fell in battle, that two faithful hearts might be tested in a searching crucible.

Meeting of Presbytery.

THE Presbytery of P. E. Island met in Zion Church on the 7th inst. There were present: Revs. James Allan, J. M. MacLeod, Wm. R. Frame, Wm. P. Archibald, M. A. Alex. Raulston, A. S. Stewart, Geo. McMillan, B. A., Wm. A. Mason, B. A., E. Gillies, A. B. McLeod, Malcolm Campbell, A. W. Mahon and J. W. McKenzie, ministers, and Messrs. Donald Campbell and Angus Bruce, elders.
Elders' Commissions were read and sustained from the congregations of Belfast, Cavendish, Woodville and Princetown, appointing Messrs. Donald A. McLeod, John Simpson, Donald Beaton and George F. Thompson respectively to represent them in Presbytery and Synod during the current year.

Rev. Mr. McLeod, of the Presbytery of Boston, being present, was invited to sit as a corresponding member.
The petition from the congregation of Murray Harbor Road, asking the Presbytery to receive them into the Presbyterian Church in Canada was read. Messrs. James Stewart, Malcolm Campbell and Samuel Martin were received and heard as commissioners from the congregation. They stated that the application was purely voluntary on their part—that with one exception it was unanimous—that the necessary legislation to secure the church property had been effected, and that the number of families uniting in the petition is about fifty.
On motion the prayer of their petition was granted, and the said station was declared to be a preaching station in connection with the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and under the supervision of the Presbytery of P. E. Island.

There being ten Elders amongst the petitioners in good standing, Rev. R. McLean was appointed interim Moderator of the session, and was instructed to dispense the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in the Murray Harbor Road Church at an early day. Rev. Mr. McLeod, of Quincy, Mass., will assist Mr. McLean on that occasion.
With the view of arriving at an advantageous reconstruction of the congregations contiguous to this new station, the following committee was appointed, viz: Rev. J. M. McLeod (Convener) Rev. Geo. McMillan, B. A., Rev. Wm. P. Archibald, A. M., Rev. A. W. Mahon and Rev. E. Gillies. This committee will hold meetings in the following order, viz: In the church on Murray Harbor Road, on 20th inst., at 7.30 p. m.; Rev. J. M. McLeod to preach in Valleyfield on the 21st, at 10 o'clock, a. m.; Rev. Mr. Gillies to preach in Caledonia Church at 2.30, same day; Rev. Wm. P. Archibald to preach in the Church at Little Sands at 7.30 p. m.; Rev. Geo. McMillan to preach.

Read a petition from the congregation of Summerside asking for moderation in a call to Rev. Daniel McGregor, of Amherst, N. S., and guaranteeing a salary of $1,000 and a free manse. The prayer of the petition was granted, and Rev. Mr. Frame appointed to preach and moderate in said call on Monday, the 19th inst., at 7.30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Frame was also appointed to dispense the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in Summerside on Sabbath, the 18th inst.

Rev. Mr. McMillan was appointed to preach in Richmond Bay East on the 18th and 25th inst., and Rev. Robert Laird was appointed to preach at West and Clyde Rivers and Brookfield on the 18th inst., Mr. Charles McKay, in the same congregation, on the last Sabbath of July and the first of August, Mr. McKay was also appointed to preach in Summerside on Sabbath, the 11th inst., at 6.30 p. m.
J. M. McLEOD,
Presbytery Clerk.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little shrub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.
