Mr. Pearson's Commitment

A significant new commitment on trade matters was made by Liberal Leader Pearson at Edmonton a few days ago. Taking account of the possibility that Britain and the European Six may not agree to merge their economic destiny, Mr. Pearson promised to explore the dormant proposal for free trade between Canada and Britain. These were his words:

"If Britain does not succeed in joining the Common Market, a new Liberal government would be willing to take up trade negotiations with Britain where the present Tory government cut them off. . . We will be happy to discuss this proposal with the British, as a major step in a general program of expanding trade among all free nations."

The reference here was to a proposal made by the British government in 1957 for a measure of free trade between the two countries. Finance Minister Fleming rejected this idea out of hand. We deplored his attitude at the time, and find it just as hard to stomach in retrospect.

Mr. Pearson's proposal, of course, would have sounded better had he made it at an earlier date. But it still points up the fact that there may be more ways than one of achieving an Atlantic trading area. If it cannot be done by building directly on the European Common Market, it might be done by the creation of another common market based on a trans-Atlantic link between Britain and Canada and with ultimate merger of these two markets with the giant market of the United States.

The Conservatives may argue that this would raise some very embarrassing questions for Canadian industries. But the fact is that their own negative position offers little hope for a solution of any kind to the free world problems of tomorrow. If the British government had any assurance that a genuine system of free trade could be established in the Commonwealth, it would be inclined to discount the importance of the Common Market. This assurance has been conspicuously absent from the statements of Commonwealth leaders, and it is against this weak point in the Diefenbaker government's armor that Mr. Pearson is now directing his attack.

The Conservatives would do well to take stock of the issue, if it is not already too late. They're out of line with American as well as British policies in this regard, and where do they expect to go from here? More and more they are being depicted in the posture of the old woman who kept trying to sweep back the tide with a broom. The free trade tide won't be swept back. The economic compulsion is too strong. It will keep coming on, and the country that doesn't rise to meet it will be crushed under it.

Pursuing A Myth

Atlantis was an island where the rosiest promises of politicians would have won them no votes at all. Life there was perfect, and there was nothing left for the inhabitants to desire. Unfortunately, it sank beneath the waves, so long ago that many historians refuse to believe that it ever existed. But hardly a century has gone by without someone seeking it somewhere. Most explorers have followed the ancient Egyptian instructions, which placed Atlantis under the Atlantic, outside the Pillars of Hercules. Solon, the Athenian statesman, translated the Egyptian manuscripts and the story was passed on by Plato. According to the tale, the total area of Atlantis measured 3,450 by 2,900 miles and it sank as a result of violent earth tremors 9,000 years before Solon's time.

Since then, the idea of Atlantis has found its way into the folklore of many countries. Not only does the legend remain alive, but there are explorers still eager to find out if Atlantis is fact or mere fiction. With modern means of investigation and a growing knowledge of archaeology, geology and pre-history, the likelihood of gaining proof one way or the other increases.

Now, Professor Galanopoulos, head of the seismological institute of Athens Observatory, claims that the Egyptian texts were misread and that the utopia should be sought in the Aegean sea off the island of Santorin. At the moment Russian scientists are working there on the new Greek theory. Professor Galanopoulos claims that Solon systematically mistook the symbol 100 for that of 1,000. When the errors are adjusted they show that Atlantis was much smaller and resembled part of Santorin which erupted about the middle of the Bronze Age. So another search is under way.

Few will be surprised if nothing is found and Atlantis goes on being a mystery. But it will continue to lure men forth, as Aristotle says: "A plausible impossibility is always preferable to an unconvincing possibility." A statement as applicable, it would seem, to present day political campaigns as to anything the ancients ever concocted in the way of myths.

Air Transport Quiz

Next time you want to ship a hippopotamus or a zebra and wonder how to pack them, there is an answer in a reference document just published by the International Air Transport Association. The association discovered a general lack of information on such matters, and set out to supply the omission. Its new set of instructions covers some 121 varieties of wildlife.

Goldfish, for instance, travel best in plastic bags filled one-third with water and two-thirds oxygen and set in a fiberboard container. And the hippopotamus? He needs a hardwood crate with a sliding door of iron bars.

The association confesses that there is no standard packaging process for giraffes, so it can't claim to be so smart after all. And, as one commentator points out disapprovingly, "nowhere does it come to the aid of most of us who haven't yet devised a suitable crate for containing a five year old boy on a trip by air."

EDITORIAL NOTES

According to figures compiled by the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization there are 12 million books in 873 libraries in Canada, or less than an average of one book per person. In the United States the figure is 200 million books in 7,871 libraries, or a little more than one book per person.

U. Thant, Acting Secretary-General of the United Nations, spoke not to his audience alone but to the world when he told students of Carleton University, Ottawa, the other day that it is "no longer true to say that there are two sides to every question." In fact, said the speaker, "there are many sides. It is accordingly meaningless to present the problems of our complicated existence in simple terms of black and white and to overlook the infinite gradations in between."

A striking commentary on Soviet Russia's relationship with its satellites was supplied recently by Premier Khrushchev himself, on his tour of Bulgaria. While listening to a long speech by Prof. Kiril Yenkov, head of the Bulgarian agricultural research station, the Soviet leader burst out with, "You are a professor and you are used to reading students lectures. But we are not students. We are old and experienced hands, so please excuse me if I interrupt you with questions." In a freer country there would have been press criticisms of this display of boorishness, but not in Bulgaria.

Dr. Salk On Men And Microbes

Globe and Mail, Toronto

The success of science in overcoming some of man's most fatal diseases naturally leads some medical scientists to become concerned with what may prove the greatest killer of them all—muclear war. Dr. Jonas Salk, discoverer of the polio-vaccine that bears his name, told a joint convention of the Canadian and Ontario Public Health Associations: "Man is now aware that his major threats are from within himself rather than from microbes." Dr. Salk's attitude toward the epidemic of war is both an extension of his humanitarian ideals of the medical profession and an expression of the concern for peace shared by men of whatever occupation. His great achievement in the field of preventive medicine neither adds to nor detracts from his authority on the subject of peace and war.

No Repeat Performance

By Joseph MacSwiney, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Keep Cool. History does NOT repeat itself. For students of coincidence, it's striking how this concept is being stressed in the fields of international politics and finance. Acting Secretary-General U. Thant of the United Nations, in Ottawa, last week, May 28, sought to show the major powers labor under an "obsession" about war—a depression resulting from an erroneous conviction that history will repeat itself.

Each situation must be judged on its own merits and is not to be judged on the basis of what is going to happen just because it happened in the past. Thant declared.

PUBLIC ASSURED

The gyrations of stock markets in New York and elsewhere prompted similar assurances by government and financial leaders. People were told, in 1962 is not 1929 and there is no repeat of the depression. A warning about that apparently hit speculators.

NEW CIVIC POLICY

St. John's residents are interested to note, from a recent radio broadcast, a change in the attitude of the City Council and town planners in the approach to the administration of the "new projects" within a residential area.

Residents of the area referred to are to be granted the unusual and unprecedented privilege of being second in the right to accept or refuse, or at least have a say in the matter. East Realty residents are still concerned over the matter of an industrial area. It is extremely probable that a similar or other undesirable features. One wonders if any objection would have been raised had they not been so concerned about a project as the reaction of bowling alleys, a bottling plant or a supermarket, industries of a dump. It is possible that the City Council are at least in their past experience? I am, Sir, etc. EAST REALTY RESIDENT

Antibiotics Said Most Prescribed

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen. WHAT types of medications are most often prescribed in this country? The antibiotics and other anti-infectives interest me because, on the list, according to New Medical Materia. Sedatives such as barbiturates, tranquilizers are next, followed by pain killers. Drugs that relieve spasms, especially those tranquilizers of the stomach and intestines, are fourth in line.

From these, as you go to hormones, diuretics, anti-allergics (antihistamines), stimulants, blood building, preventative vitamins, sex hormones, and preparations for the heart, cold, arthritis, and the eyes.

The list changes from year to year, demonstrating trends and fads in the need for certain drugs. In 1961, for example, fewer cold and cold products were prescribed than in 1960. There also was a marked drop in stimulants, cathartics, nasal preparations, and anemia remedies.

We refer to prescription products. There is a possibility that many more over the counter agents are being sold as substitutes for those prescribed by the physician. The Reach to Recovery Foundation, for example, has a unitary group to be organized by persons having mutual medical problems. The organization is devoted to assisting women who have undergone breast, gynecological, or cosmetic, family, and rehabilitation matters. On May 23, for example, a forum was conducted in New York City to discuss bathing suits, sun dress, cosmetic devices, and the latest prostheses.

Various volunteer groups have been formed by parents, relatives, or friends of children afflicted with such diseases as aphasia, hemophilia, or cystic fibrosis, and the like. (Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped and addressed envelopes are accompanied by return postage.) NO TUMMY FOR HER Mrs. A. S. White: How do you use your baby talk, such as calling the stomach the tummy? REPLY Tummy is not used as a synonym for stomach. It refers to the abdomen. A tummy ache, for example, is not necessarily confined to the stomach. It may stem from the intestines, appendix, gall bladder, or kidneys. We call the tummy word abdomen. But repetition is monotonous and if we have to refer to this area several times in an article, we may say Tummy, especially when writing about children.

CARDIAC NEUROSIS

J. W. writes: I can't stop worrying about my heart. How can I stop worrying about my heart? He has angina pectoris. REPLY It is natural to have some concern when you are told you have a way of allaying apprehension, especially when you put yourself in the hands of a wise physician who offers encouragement and remedies that work.

OUR YESTERDAYS

(From the Guardian Files) TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (JUNE 2, 1937) The land around the entrance of the harbor seems to be a popular spot for summer cottages. A number of new buildings are being erected on the site of the old Marine Hospital, which had been sold to a private owner. The work is in progress on the first cottage under the supervision of William Rogers and Bob Phillips.

HAIR SHEDDING

M. J. writes: My husband has a molting period. Possibly, it is that some women notice a definite loss of hair during the menopause. Dead hair does not fall out, but is replaced by new hair roots. The outer layers of our skin and hair are shed constantly, but I'm not sure whether it's a normal progress on the first cottage under the supervision of William Rogers and Bob Phillips.

MILK DRINKING

W. B. writes: When can a nursing new mother start drinking milk? REPLY Any time, although there is no reason why she had to stop before or after the baby came or when the weaned the child. Today's health authorities say Always try to cheer up somebody.

TEN YEARS AGO

(June 2, 1952) The sums of $25,000 left to the Salvation Army by the late Mrs. C.R. Smallwood, and $15,000 by the late Mrs. D.R. Morrison through the sale of property in the north side of Commercial Square, and other assets, constitute the established fund to be used for the purpose of being sought to provide a fund sufficient to enlarge St. Paul Lodge.
