Breadalbane and Vicinity

Mrs. Clifford Matheson and Mrs. John MacLeod, Hunter River were visitors to Breadalbane Village last Friday.

Mr. Everett Glover, his mother, and his son, Donald (see guests) last Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Glover.

Mrs. Ernest Cameron, Victoria, was a very welcome visitor last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Murray.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gillis, and her sister, Mrs. George Hickox, Springfield, were recent visitors to Breadalbane.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newson, and family, Summerside, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cuyler Matheson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Toombs, two daughters, Alice Lulu, and little grand-daughter, Nellie, left Monday the fourth for Toronto, Ontario, where they plan to spend the winter.

A Jimmy Power's Variety Concert was held in Breadalbane Hall on Monday, November the twenty-seventh. The program was much enjoyed by the audience.

Rev. Mr. Campbell, of the New London circuit, was the speaker in the Breadalbane Presbyterian Church, on Sunday afternoon December the third. Mr. Campbell preached very fluently on the subject: Christ, the Living Water.

Mr. Kenneth Fraser, C. N. R. agent, in the Breadalbane Station, during the past four years, left last week for Tignish where he will resume the regular agency. Many friends regretted to bid fare-well to Mr. and Mrs. Fraser and their attractive little children, Clarence and Katherine.

Mr. Leith Sweeney, Prince of Wales College student, was a visitor to Breadalbane, on Monday, November twenty-seventh. Mr. Sweeney was one of the popular soloists at the Jimmy Power's Concert.

Rev. W. I. Green, Stanley Bridge, was the supply minister in the United Church, on Sunday evening, December the third. Mr. Green, speaking on the subject "Faith", impressed upon his audience the great need for stronger faith in ourselves and God. Fear is the cause of many of our ills, both mental and physical.

On Friday afternoon, December the first, a bazaar and afternoon tea, sponsored by the ladies of the Christian Church, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson. A very large crowd patronized both the tea and the bazaar, and a pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all.

Rev. P. L. Richardson, pastor of the Christian Church, Breadalbane, began a series of special meetings on Monday, December the fourth. Heart-searching sermons are being delivered at these well-attended meetings. The subject, Monday evening was "If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also." Tuesday evening, Mr. Richardson spoke on the "Suffering Christ". The Frederickton choir is assisting with the singing.

On Friday, December the first, a very large number of neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Toombs, Breadalbane Village, to say "Good-bye" to them and their children, prior to their departure for Toronto, Ontario. After a sing song of both old favorites and more modern songs, which were accompanied with organ music by Mrs. P. E. Murray and Mrs. James Snowie, Mr. Bennett Deighan called the assembly to order, and in a few well chosen words, stated the purpose of the gathering. He then called upon Mrs. P. E. Murray who read a complimentary address, on behalf of those present, which expressed appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Toombs for their willingness to contribute to any worthy cause, or to help with their musical talents in church or community work. At the conclusion of the address, Mrs. Elton Somers presented Mr. and Mrs. Toombs with a generous sum of money. Mr. Toombs made a very appreciative reply on behalf of himself, his wife and daughters. After the singing of "For they are Jolly Good Fellows", much merriment was prompted by bouncing Mr. and Mrs. Toombs, and their daughters, Alice and Lulu. Dainty refreshments were served by some of the ladies present.

At a late hour the neighbors bade the Toombs family regretful farewell.

LAVENHAM, Suffolk, England — (CP) — Mrs. F. Simson came from her own town to visit her aunt here for the first time in 30 years. She arrived too late. The aunt died the day before her arrival.

BLANDFORD, Dorset, England (CP) — Local authorities have ruled that tenants of council houses may keep only one hen for each member of a family — and no roosters.

Fine Concert At Long River Hall

In spite of unfavorable weather, Long River Hall was comfortably filled for the concert held on Friday evening, November 29.

All the numbers in the well arranged program were well performed and of good entertainment value, and vigorously enjoyed. Mr. Elmer MacLeod was the capable chairman for the evening.

ELLEN'S DIARY

in the city. But as his younger brother pointed out with a touch of defiance when we mentioned the loss of the school-hours: "Christmas is pretty nearly here, and we have our shopping to do." Here, the day was inclined to be dreary — Granddaughter was ill To shame our selfish ways, we recalled that there had been occasions when we should like to go to interests of our own if we had not been interrupted by the entrance of a small maid begging us to "Read 'Peter' to Me!" Or "Where's those tiny scissors, and a magazine? I want to cut pictures!" or a pleading: "Do come and swing me — it's lovely out!" Today we tried vainly to take up our own endeavours in the silence of this old house. A face warm and hot to the touch came between to distract us and more than once James came in to sit in deep concerned contemplation in the old armchair. And no door opened to reveal a wee busy girl and no one asked us to read. There were no scraps of paper to litter the floor and the swing moved idly in the damp breeze.

However, there appears to be some improvement in her condition tonight. We have just returned from the house across the lane where we took some part in a distasteful ceremony, when she must swallow a remedy left by the Doctor earlier in the day. It was not taken without some persuasion on the part of her elders, not even attempted without the promise of some wanted toy of the season to make it slip down easier. And as we passed there, a picture of the past came to mind, one we shall carry with us all our days. We were in a hospital room and both sons were resting, following a morning tonsillectomy. "Now let me see" James was whispering to the younger lad — a twelve-year-old "were you saying one day? — was it only last week? that you wanted... Now which of those two-year-olds was it?" We turned to the window to watch a train puff stationward, but not before we caught the eager, husky reply that was such an effort to say: "The red one... she's the best!"

"Then" James said with a smile, very tender — so grateful that the day had given back the two "since you were so brave about this — and I know it's a mean thing to say through, you shall have that one for your own, about Rob?" In the next bed, he was into a healing sleep. Yes, granddaughter is better — and by morning, it is likely all will be well at Alderlea again.

Until tomorrow — — Diary — Good-night. . . .

A Country Garden

along a small basket for some of these dainty plants and you will enjoy the fun of arranging something lovely that will last a long time if kept moist.

The Christmas Rose is one of the very few flowers to grow in mid-winter in our gardens. Native to many parts of continental Europe and Asia Minor, Helleboro Niger — to give the botanical name — adapts itself to our severe Winters and trying Summer conditions. Its common name has no doubt been acquired because of its resemblance to a chaste single or wild rose. The flower is white, sometimes an off-white with a greenish cast, or flushed with pale rose. The golden stamens add to its lovely appearance. The palmately divided, dark green leaves are also attractive. Records tell us that the Christmas rose was introduced into English gardens in 1596. Later, it was brought to America, and every now and then we come across large clumps in old gardens. But for all its hardiness and willingness to bloom when flowers are a rarity in gardens, it is not often seen.

The Christmas rose will grow in ordinary soil, but it will give best results in good enriched sandy loam, and should be top-dressed annually. It likes a moist but well-drained location that is shaded at

Card Of Thanks

I wish to thank the Doctors, Nurses and Staff of the P. E. I. Hospital, those who sent cards, treats. Also those who visited me at the time of my accident.
William Day.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of H. Lodge Birt of Fanningbrook, who passed away December 10th, 1949.
He would not want the ones he loved
To weep for him today.
We must not say that he is dead.
He is only just away.

In Jesus loving arms he sleeps
Secure from every care
And though we all do miss him here,
We know he is happy there.
Lovingly Remembered by Wife and Family.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our Mother, Mrs. Milton White, Murray Harbour, who passed away, December 17th, 1947.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
Lovingly Remembered by Daughters Doris and Anita.

was no love between us and bring them up in a home that was full of strife and quarrelling. I went back to my people, but my parents are furious with me. They say that I have made a wreck of my life and that I have disgraced the family. Won't allow me to go out anywhere. Treat me as a black sheep. What am I to do?
WORRIED TWENTY

ANSWER: Most divorcees get a rather frosty welcome when they come back home after having made a hash of their marriages, so your experience is not exceptional. If you will look at it from your parents' point of view, you will see that there is a good deal to be said on their side. They had looked forward, when their children got married, to having their home to themselves and their money to spend on themselves that they couldn't have when they had to buy you pretty clothes and entertain for you and see that you had a good time. And then, of course, they don't exactly enjoy all the gossip about your divorce.

But your parents are wrong in the way they are meeting the situation. If you have any trade or profession, they should get you a job. If you have no trade or profession, they should help you to get one. If they won't help you to help yourself, strike out on your own. You have no right to sponge on them, and you will be happier working than idle. Retrieve the mistake you have made. Don't let one folly ruin your life.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am considered ugly by people, but when I look in the mirror I don't look so bad to myself. Has an ugly boy a LONESOME BOY?

ANSWER: If you are handsome in your own eyes, it doesn't matter how homely you appear to others. Anyway, a boy's looks don't matter to a girl, provided he is neat and well groomed and is interesting to talk to.

least part of the day. Once planted, it does not like to be disturbed, though after several years, stock may be increased by divisions of the clump in the Spring.

The Legend of the Christmas Rose

When Jesus was born in the little town of Bethlehem there came Wise Men from the East bearing gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.
A little shepherd, watching from afar, wept because she had no gift to offer the Christ Child.

As her tears fell to the ground, flowers sprang up, which the child gathered and hastened to bring to the Infant.

In adoration, she knelt at the crib, so Jesus could see the flowers, and when His blessed little hands touched the flowers, a delicate pink appeared in the centre of each one.

And so a flower that never bloomed before came into existence — the Christmas Rose.

To this day, the Christmas Rose blooms more abundantly at Christmas time than at any other season.
