J. H. Holman Art Exhibition Held At The N.B. Museum

A portrait of the late Mrs. R. T. Holman, of Summerside, is described as the most compelling and sensitive of eighteen paintings by James Henry Holman (1821-1891) presented in an exhibition of his work at the New Brunswick Musium recently where Mr. Holman, the artist, was named "the ablest and best of the nineteenth century New Brunswick portrait painters," by Dr. George B. MacBeath, history curator at the museum in Saint John.

Miss Carrie E. and Miss Gladys Holman, of Summerside, daughters of Mrs. R.T. Holman, relatives of the artist, and present owners of the portrait, attended the opening of the exhibition.

At least eight of Mr. Holman's portraits were painted while on visits he made to Summerside, and another one of these in the exhibition last week was one of Frank Edwin Holman, as a child in 1873, in which the background includes the outline of a dwelling house which is said to be the present day Mulberry Lodge.

FROM LONDON

The artist, Mr. Holman, was born in London, England, in 1821, and with his mother, moved to Saint John, New Brunswick, in 1828, to join his father who had preceeded them to Canada the previous year.

While he was still quite young, James was apprenticed to his father to learn the trade of painter and gilder. The father and son team painted the fresco ornamenting the interior of the Court House, where their skilled work remained untouched for forty years.

The Holmans also assisted in decorating the Crystal Palace in 1851 to house part of the Industrial Exhibition, the first such exhibition attempted in the province.

It was about this time that James Holman began to interest himself in portrait painting, which he taught to himself in the attic during the evenings, his subject holding the light by which he worked. In spite of the serious handicaps, Holman taught himself to paint finished, life-like and forceful portraits.

His earliest surviving canvas has the legend "J. Holman, painter, 1857" written on the back of the canvas. From then until 1881, James Holman painted well over 100 portraits.

In 1864 Mr. Holman was employed with the Notman Studio in Saint John retouching and colouring photographs. Two years later he did his most unusual piece of painting. This was the engine portrait of Robert Jardine.

Jardine had been a great advocate of railways and served as New Brunswick commissioner of the European and North American Railway. When he died, the decision was made to build a railway locomotive and name it in his honour. The engine was constructed in Saint John, and Holman was then commissioned to paint Jardine's portrait on a sheet of thin steel. Once completed the signed and dated likeness was then added to the locomotive, forming the side panel of the big head light. This is the only record of the likeness of a person forming part of the permanent ornamentation of a railway locomotive.

About 1867 Holman moved to Boston to work in the Notman Studio in that city, but returned to Saint John from time to time to execute commissions. As the years passed he devoted less time to portraiture due to poor health, and died at Boston on March 27, 1891, at the age of seventy.

Holman was the first New Brunswicker to be noted for his ability as a portrait painter. He was a good painter who produced strongly modelled and forceful likenesses that were exact and careful, and show very good technique, particularly in the handling of flesh tints. Here the coloring is surprisingly natural, and his skill was such that no brush marks are visible.

Five of his painting are in the possession of Miss E. Carrie and Miss Gladys Holman in their residence known as the Holman Homestead, in Summerside.

of this $60,000. "The balance," she said, "comes to us through the generosity of the contributors in the larger provinces of Canada."

She noted that although there was wide coverage in the 1958 campaign, and gains were made in King's and Prince Counties they were some $4,000 short of the provincial objective of $31,200 at the year's end.

"While the over-all results were rather disappointing, still the enthusiasm with which this task is undertaken each year by many of the same workers is really as inspiration to all those in close touch with this very vital part of Red Cross operation.

"In spite of the fact that so many give so much time and energy to the carrying out of the various Red Cross activities not much could be accomplished without the necessary funds."

2,832 TRANSFUUSIONS

Miss Arsenault also noted that the free blood transfusion service in P.E.I. last year was the means of providing 2,832 blood transfusions for 1,471 persons.

"This free 'gift of live' was provided by 5,832 of our residents who attended clinics arranged and staffed by energetic and enthusiastic committees in eacch of the 19 centres in which clinics were held.

"I cannot speak too highly of the excellent leadership given by members of the provincial and local committees who have achieved a significant increase over the previous year's successful results. The sights have again been raised for this year when the slogan is to be '5900 in 1959'."

OTHER REPORTS

In the course of her report Miss Arsenault also dealt with the junior red cross and handicapped children; nursing and first aid, disaster services, water safety, Red Cross corps and veterans and publicity and radio programs.

The highlights of the evening session was an address by Marshal Stearns, MBE of Toronto, chairman of the national executive committee, central council, Canadian Red Cross Society.

Other reports presented during the evening were the financial statements, H.R. Carruthers, Hon. Treasurer; and the report of the nominating committee.

Another feature of the evening was the presentation of the "Manning Trophy" by R.W. Manning, to the Kinkora Area. The trophy was accepted by J. Pope McMahon.

CERTIFICATES GIVEN

Certificates of Merit were also presented to centres which reached or exceeded objectives in 1958 Red Cross Blood Donor Clinics.

Before making her report Miss Arsenault paid tribute to the Canadian Red Cross Society, which is in 1958 celebrating its Golden Jubilee of "Service to Others." 1959 marks the 100th anniversary of the birth of the "idea" of Red Cross.

"This gives us an excellent opportunity to evaluate our activities in realtion to the "idea" of Red Cross as conceived by the founder, Henri Dunant, a century ago."

ALL MEN BROTHERS

"It was with the reminder 'all men are brothers' that this man of vision enlisted the voluntary services of residents in the Italian villages of Solferino and Castiglione in rendering first aid to the 40,000 men left wounded after the battle of Solferino.

"From this small beginning the Red Cross has grown, over the years, to be the world's largest voluntary organization recognized and revered everywhere as the symbol of mercy—the common channel through which all of us can help people everywhere whether at home or in far-away countries.'

FEAR MASCOT DEAD

HALIFAX (CP) — A grey cat that fled with its dog-eared companion from the freighter Novaport Friday may have met a violent death. That was the supposition of city police Sunday after they found the husky pup limping through city streets. The two animals, described as inseparable companions, were mascots aboard the British freighter.
