McKAY WOOLEN COMPANY

BURGLARS WANTED.

To the Burglar who entered our office and broke the Handle of Safe we extend an invitation to call again, promising him a free entry into the safe, and thereby saving him the use of the Stillson wrench. We will not insure his easy exit, but will be on hand with an ambulance and undertaker.

At the same time we give the Dairyman a guarantee for one year with our twelve long Cheese Presses. Nearly all that were imported here in the past required to be repaired within a year.

Our improved Cheese Vat is the most popular in the market. Our Babcock Testers never break the bottles. The press hoops are right for eighty lbs of curd. And best of all the "ALPHA de LAVAL SEPARATOR" is on the field ahead of all others.

Caught In the Act.

Son (who had been caught reading a dime novel)—Unhand me, tyrant, or there may be blood shed.

Father—No, my son, there will be nothing more serious than wood shed. Come, that is where the strap hangs. —Princeton Tiger.

All She Wanted.

The Strong Minded One—My dear child, you ought to join us. You want a vote, don't you?

The Pretty One—No-o. I guess a voter will do me. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Absorbing Problem.

"How shall I dress tomorrow?" There are two classes of women whose minds are completely full of that question—frivolous women and women in a sleeping car for the first time. —Truth.

Don't Shoot!

"How," asked the rooster, "did you celebrate Washington's birthday?"

"I celebrated it," said the hen proudly, "with my little hatch it." —New York Press.

The Nature of the Creature.

"Waiter, it is almost half an hour since I ordered that turtle soup."

Waiter—Sorry, sir, but you know how slow turtles are. —Tit-Bits.

The Feeling.

Agnes—In his sermons does your new rector use "eyther" or "eether?"

Willston (yawning)—I think he uses ther. —New York Journal.

The Boy Who Mows Our Lawn.

The boy who comes to mow our lawn is 'most the smartest boy I know. An when you see him, too, doggone if you won't say that it is so. He takes that whirly thing apart. An cleans it out on a pouce oil on the inside. My, but he is smart—The boy who comes to mow our lawn!

He rubs a whetstone once or twice Or more across it—whack! whack! whack! It makes you feel like lumps of ice Was slidin up an down your back. He says that that's to make a new Edge on it for the one that's gone. He always knows just what to do—The boy who comes to mow our lawn.

An sometimes he asks me to bring A screwdriver, an then he lets Me watch him while he twists the thing Away inside that he says "sots The blade." But never, never he Don't let me lay a finger on The whirly wheels. "Look out!" sezzeo—The boy who comes to mow our lawn.

An after he's edged off the nicks, An's got the thing as slick as grease, An it's all in the nicest fix, He just steps back a little piece An rushes for the greenest ground. An whoops right through it, an doggone But don't the ole grass fly around The boy who comes to mow our lawn! —Chicago Record.

HIGH HEELS IN EGYPT.

Slippers Seem to Be in High Favor With Cairo Women.

It is hard to find a neat, well fitting shoe in Cairo, because the woman of the fellah class goes barefooted and the woman of the harem wears slippers. Egypt has no middle class of a size to count for anything. The shoe, when one discovers it, is too broad for the foot of a European. It is round toed and without an instep, for the use of a splay footed generation. It has either no heel or else one that puts the "common sense" models to shame. It is a clumsy adaptation of its European prototype, useful, probably, but certainly not ornamental.

The slipper is a different thing. In its lowest state it is bright colored. It is a thing of the soil and seems a part of the foot that has shuffled along in it for centuries. The cheaper slippers worn by the women of Cairo are a vivid, red or yellow. They are very loose, but are too flexible to be altogether awkward. They have soles almost as thin as paper and no heels. To walk in them is an art that can't be learned in one generation, but needs to be developed through heredity, for they are always trodden down at the back, and it takes toes as clever as fingers to hold them in position.

But Egyptian women can jump as nimbly as others from extreme to extreme, and every mother's daughter of them who can afford it wears still like Louis Quinze heels. The women of the wealthier classes are odd sights in their batlike, black cloaks and white yakmaks, tilting through the streets with a liberal display of pink silk stockings and blue satin slippers that look fitter for a ballroom. Feet are all that a veiled woman can display, and she makes the most of them. In the narrow streets that lead from the muski one may see in a ten minutes' walk any morning stockings and slippers of all the hues of the rainbow. The shapeless silk cloaks that are universal for outdoor wear are out conveniently short to display black slippers embroidered with gold, white slippers beaded with blue, yellow satin slippers with white lace rosettes and dozens of red silk slippers with black heading. In Matarieh, Helouan and other suburban villages, where many of the pashas keep their harems, so that their wives may not buy out the jewelers' bazaars of Cairo, the display of footwear is even more striking.

The women who have the largest fortunes invested in stockings and slippers are not apparently young and are often rather than of unwieldy figures. The feet of Egyptian women are not small, and these gay slippers are apt to be in big sizes. They are frequently soiled and spotted, for the streets of Cairo are dirty, but they add to the picturesque quality of outdoor life and to one's appreciation of the ingenuity of women. —New York Tribune.
