

It has been a slow week for hockey. The New York Rangers became the first team to record thirty wins over the season. It has been a great year so far for the Rangers. The goaltending tandem of Mike Richter and John Vanbiesbrouck is working well; the offensive line of Tony Amonte-Mark Messier-Adam Graves could not be better; the defensive line of Paul Broten-Kris King-Darren Turcotte is starting to score; and Brian Leetch is having a great year. If there is a Ranger downfall this season, it will be due to defense.

One other thing: Toronto is not a fully -Canadian team. Dave Ellett, the Maple Leaf's sole representative at the All-Star game, was born in Cleveland Ohio. Unless the countries have switched boundaries lately, Ellett is American.
