DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

MISSING FISH

Possession is the law of might. It may not be the law of right. —Old Mother Nature.

This is true among the furred and feathered folk. That which one possesses and can keep is his by right and also by might. What one does not keep possession of belongs to the one who can get it. Plunger the Osprey had caught a fish. As long as he held on to it it was his by right. He had been forced to drop it. King Eagle had tried to rob him of it. It had fallen close to Billy Mink and Billy had taken it. As soon as he had set his teeth in it it was his fish. It would be his fish as long as he could keep it.

Now of course the surest way of keeping that fish would have been to eat it. But Billy wasn't hungry, so he hid that fish in a hollow log at the edge of the big river. He considered it his fish, and it was his fish unless and until some one else got it. Billy never can keep still very long. He did a little hunting. He hunted for Mice, but they were few and far between and he failed to catch one. He did a little fishing. Fish were hard to get and he failed to catch one. It didn't bother him a bit. No, sir it didn't bother him a bit. He remembered the fish that he had hidden in the hollow log. It was big enough to give him a big dinner, so why worry because he didn't catch any. long. He just has to keep moving. So he left that fish in the hollow log and went adventuring along the Big River. Billy didn't worry. He just had a good time. He was gone a long time. Mistress Moon had been up in the sky for quite a while before Billy started back for the old log. Billy was in good spirits. He likes life moonlight. He is quite as much at home in the nighttime as in the daytime. Moonlight makes wonderful black shadows. It is easy to dodge out of sight among them. As he ran along the shore he heard Mr. and Mrs. Quack talking in low tones out among the broken-down rushes. He heard the squeak of one of Jerry Muskrat's grown children. Back in the Green Forest Hooty the Owl was trying to scare some one. "Quawk!" the Night Heron flew over his head in the moonlight.

NEAR-EXPERT TECHNIQUE

The bidding technique used by North in today's deal is (unfortunately) the sort of thing that one finds among better-than-average players.

South dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

♠ A J 8 4 ♠ 7 2
 ♥ 7 5 3 ♥ Q 6
 ♦ 9 7 ♦ K 10
 ♣ A 9 5 ♣ 5 4 3
 ♠ K Q 10 9 8 ♠ Q 10 3 2
 ♥ A K J 9 ♥ 8 4
 ♦ J ♦
 ♣ K 8 4 ♣

This was the bidding in a game where all four players were just short of expert ranking:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

South did not make his slam—he did not deserve to. With one diamond trick surely off the combined hands, a far better heart break was required than could be expected, and although South captured the heart queen, West kept his protection in the suit and prevented the discard of a club from dummy on South's last heart. The sort of original response that North made to the spade opening is included in by many of the fine players, and there is nothing essentially wrong with it. These fine players, however, after making this type of bid, do not continue as this North did. They realize in bidding two clubs over one spade, they are announcing a fair hand—usually, one that contains at least two honor-tricks—and having made that announcement, they do not subsequently paint an even rosier picture of their holding! To the contrary, since they have "lied" about the fact that they have a club suit, and since they are well aware that their 4-3-3-3 distribution is the least favorable of all, they then turn properly conservative.

Thus, no expert, after making the debatable response of two clubs on the North hand, would then bid three spades over partner's rebid of two hearts. They would bid only two spades, and right then and there they would avoid the sort of slam contract which resulted from North's lack of restraint.
