Canadian Building Outlook Bright For Next 12 Months

By KEN SMITH. Forecasts for the construction industry during the next 12 months offer high hopes of continued steady economic growth.

Two of the latest surveys by the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards and industry giant Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd.—predict a six-per-cent rise in the value of the gross national product to $49,000,000,000.

They foresee an increase in total construction spending to about $9,200,000,000 or $9,500,000,000 compared with $8,700,000,000 in 1964.

More marriages and immigration in 1965 will be a factor in keeping residential construction high, predicts E. E. Willetby, president-elect of the Real Estate Boards.

"Expenditures on residential construction, including repairs and remodeling, are headed for a record $2,700,000,000 in 1965," he says.

"The year 1964 should reach $2,500,000,000 for residential construction, up from $2,250,000,000 in 1963."

The question of atomic weapons sharing has been a basic one in the differences among the Allies. However, Rusk and McNamara presented a comparatively optimistic report to the White House.

"There are still 'some weaknesses' in the defence measures of the NATO members which will require additional expenditures to correct, he said.

Early Closing Relaxed Jan. 1 For Muscovites

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Muscovites were told today they can dance and revel until 5 a.m. on New Year's Day—but they are still expected to go to bed early for the rest of the year.

There have been rumors that dining until dawn may be reviewed now that former premier Nikita Khrushchev has gone. Khrushchev, who believed in early nights, decreed that restaurants must stop serving at 11 p.m.

The rumors appeared to be scotched at a Moscow city council press conference Saturday when Leonid Derbin, a deputy mayor, told questioners: "We don't think a Soviet premier should spend all night in a restaurant."

The press conference, to describe how Moscow will celebrate the new year, disclosed there will be places for 500,000 people in Moscow's restaurants on New Year's Eve. Officials estimate that 2,000,000 bottles of wine and liquor will be consumed during the two-day new year holiday.

Nearly 3,000,000 gifts will be distributed to children at municipal parties and 35,000 "Christmas" trees will be on sale.

Vancouver Police Use Radios, Dogs

VANCOUVER (CP)—The police department here is moving towards the visionary world of Dick Tracy in its fight against crime.

Using a tiny, eight-inch radio and dogs, the force has racked up an enviable record of crime prevention, it believes.

The powerful little radios, each weighing about four pounds, are issued to beat policemen and shift sergeants to enable them to keep in constant touch with headquarters.

The dogs were never been so safe as assignments, such as searching buildings, apprehension of suspected prowlers and crowd control.

Vancouver's new deputy police chief John Pisk, said the radios, first introduced four years ago, have enabled the department to put more men out on the beat more effectively.

The dogs were pioneered in Canada by Vancouver in 1958 and the police department uses them mostly in burglar bouts of large buildings.
