ELLEN'S DIARY

Least Excuse Sets Folks A-Roving Now-A-Days

"People don't mind taking trips nowadays," James commented to Mr. C. from the house on the hill this evening. "They go a thousand miles-and more, as easy in mind about it as we in the long ago would consider a trip to town."

"Yes," agreed Mr. C. "Indeed many an Islander then never got away from its shores."

"Aye," James nodded, "and were quite content to stay at home."

"Of course, in time there were the Harvest Excursions," Mr. C. offered remembering his trips on the same pleasurable "that took harvesters and others quite a distance across Canada. Some lads got as far as the Coast. So a fellow could get to see a lot of his country."

"Oh yes," James said, "and some Islanders got to the States. And in those times that too was quite a trip. I remember," he smiled, "when I was only a little fellow, my father and I were fencing—over there in the field across the creek, it was, when a farmer from up alone came by. He had just returned from a visit to Boston. And 'Were you ever in Boston, Mack?' he asked my father. It so happened that in his travels he never had."

"If you ever were, you'd think that here you were living in a cellar, so wonderful a city it is. Yes in a cellar," James chuckled over the memory knowing or seeing nothing at all!"

"In those days some went quite a distance—saw many a foreign port," we offered recalling from the young years yarns recounted by sailors. "I know," James nodded, "at the same time to

Now Jesus, the Master is with us today

He walks by our side every step of the way.

If we open our hearts and let Him come in

He will cleanse us, and free us from all our dark sin.

When our mansions are ready in realms above

And we dwell in the light of His nameless love,

Perhaps Cleophas may tell us in his own way

All that happened on the road to Emmaus that day.

How the Scripture foretold the Creator's great plan,

That Christ's blood must be shed for the redemption of man?"

And as he broke bread, He opened their eyes,

HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Colin Campbell McLure, Brackley Point, is observed her 89th birthday on Wednesday March 25th. Mrs. McLure was the former Miss Miranda McLure of North Rustico.

There was a family birthday party at the McLure homestead Tuesday evening at which time Stirling McLure, a grandson, whose birthday also is on March 25th was present.

Among the many loving messages from numerous relatives and friends was a treasured birthday greeting from one of her great-grandchildren Sharon Mirapda, her little namesake, the latter after wishing Granny a happy birthday joyously told her that she had been on skates recently on the North River Causeway with her daddy, Stirling McLure, well-known hockey player. What made this bit of news of great interest to the great-grandmother is the fact that little Sharon Miranda is only 20 months of age. The grandmother in turn congratulated the granddaughter.

Mr. Reginald Johnston, teacher at Winsloe School, is leaving Friday evening, by plane for Winnipeg, Manitoba, where he will spend his Easter holidays with his brother, L.A.C.J. G. Johnston, Mrs. Johnston and small daughter Cindy.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel H. DeBlouis travel far was the exception rather than the rule. But these times the least excuse sets folks roving. Off they go distances by car or plane as casually as I would go to the corner store. "I'm for a packet of tobacco," Mr. C. chuckled.

The subject had arisen due to Rob's absence from the farms, he having joined another farmer of the community on an excursion to the Mainland in the interests of their occupation and not the first trip "abroad" for him through the winter's days.

"When the Causeway takes shape," James remarked "what a traffic then there will be! Night and its silence had come. Twilight had fallen gently down from the sunset hills, shadowing the valley. It dimmed the baring fields and the dusky woodlands and brought in its train the silver and shade of the moonlight. Against the skies how still now are the dark traceries of branches, how wide and deep the peace over all.

In the sunset the children went happily to skate on a pond of field which nestles at a foothill down where the millstream makes music as it hastens to join the salt of the river below. And a wind we know murmurs in the guardian spruces beside. And now?

"Now for the coffee, Ellen! It's not bad stuff to sleep on! James smiles coming in from the last round at the barns, wearing an expression which declares that at his day's end at Alderlea all is well.

Until Saturday—Diary — Good-night.

Miss Louise Lamont, French River, left Sunday morning by bus on a six-week trip to Western Canada. She will visit her brother Fred and family in Calgary, also other relatives and friends, and her sister Helen and family in Edmonton.

The monthly dinner meeting of the Summerside Women's Business and Professional Club, was held in Presbyterian hall. It was decided to continue the donation to the Musical Festival for bur-saries. Dorothy Palmer gave a report for the members attending this month's council meeting. Margaret Collicutt and Helen Ralph will attend the April meeting. After the business session interesting films were shown by Mr. Ben Beck.

The 1959 junior communicants class of Trinity United Church were entertained on Monday evening at a banquet in the church hall and sponsored by the King's daughters group. Rev. R. S. Latimer presided and an interesting program was carried out. Some of the numbers were: A duet by Rebecca and Margaret Giddings, piano solo by Sandra Kennedy and a trumpet solo by Alan Rogerson. Rev. A. Frank MacLean spoke to the new communicants emphasizing the importance of church membership.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Matheson, Clyde River, left recently for London, Ontario, where they will visit Mr. Matheson's aunt, Mrs. Peter Inman.

Mrs. John J. Creamer, Souris, New Brunswick. The marriage is to take place on April 4th. at es the engagement of her daughter, Doreen Louise, R.T. to Marvin John Graves, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Graves, Chatham, Prince George Hotel.
