ON THE UNIVERSITY RIGHT

ON THE UNIVERSITY RIGHT by Joseph M.J. Sanlei

As I write this final "On The University Right" for the academic year 1979-80, my thoughts (the thoughts of the last few weeks when no such column graced the pages of their periodical) are consumed by an avalanche of work imposed upon me by my own desire for knowledge - as are so many of us of this university and at universities the world over. Let us not become so caught-up, either now in academia, or in the Summer in the more relaxed pleasures of life that we become neg-lectful of our basic responsibilities to our fellows with whom we share this planet - and the planet itself.

Over the course of the last year, I have, honorably I believe, attempted to present before you, my fellow travelers, a number of issues. Issues which must be debated and disseminated as important to the betterment of life; for ourselves or for others. You may have disagreed with me, always, often, sometimes or not at all, but no matter, I have succeeded if in my own very modest way I was able to facilitate thought.

I believe that the issues I presented are of such concern that by their very nature they will not simply go away if ignored. Women's rightful place in society, civil rights, science in our lives, the defence of our sacred liberty and our civilization itself should never be ignored. There are many issues which time and space did not permit my dealing with - the slaughter of cetaceans (intelligent sea mammals) the pollution of our environment, and the decay in the general respect for life itself are among these.

Remember the world around you this Summer, as you will hopefully enjoy its beauty, and never forget that its very survival is in your hands. Always remember "People who are sincere in defending their freedom, will always feel concern at every circumstance which seems to make against turning it is the natural and honest consequence of all affectionate attachments and the want of it is a vice. (Thomas Paine: Sept. 12, 1777)

The coupon you need a professional degree to fill out.

Central and Eastern Trust replies quickly to the requests of graduating professionals, whether it's a coupon asking for information on the special loans we offer, or working out an individual plan for setting up a practice.

Experience has shown us that many of the professionals we help get started find us useful later on, when it comes to mortgages, real estate and other financial considerations.

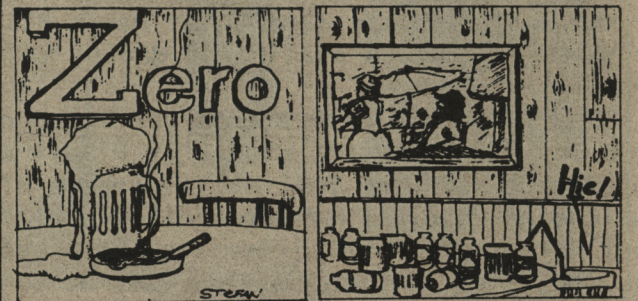

To think, twenty years from now, it all may have started with a coupon in a university newspaper.

I'm going to graduate as a professional person, a doctor, dentist, veterinarian, chiropractor, optometrist, lawyer or accountant, for example. I'd like to know more about how Central and Eastern Trust can help out in the initial stages of my career.
