VENEZUELA SCHOOL.—The Venezuela social in the schoolroom of the Baptist church last night was a great success. Interesting and instructive papers were read by Messrs John Bremner, Edwin Simpson, and Clifford Richards. The first-mentioned paper dealt with the geography of Venezuela and the second with its political relations and the third with the Monroe Doctrine. Mr. H. A. Woodworth also read a paper entitled "Action and Interaction," which evidenced much care in its preparation and was well received. Master Willie Toward, about five years of age, gave a patriotic recitation in a clever manner; and Mr. Frank Trainor sang a solo in his usual good form. Mr. R. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

LETTER FROM HON. B. DAVIES.

Sir,—I have had a desire for some time back to express my opinion on the question of the prohibition of the importation and use of ardent spirits, of the advisability of introducing an act of parliament to this purpose.

It appears to me that the prohibitionists like all enthusiasts, are becoming wild, rampant, on the idea they entertain, and that although very many men would like to see the free use of liquor restrained to the licensing system, they don't care for prohibition. I for one do not agree with them in the total extinction of the article from society. I believe that it is used moderately it is beneficial, and that at times as a medicine, in this changeable climate, absolutely necessary, and that no medicine can effectually take its place. In this opinion I am confirmed by medical authority.

I do not see why because there are a few fellows addicted to drinking to excess that the whole community are to be punished for their sins. Neither do I see in a religious point of view that it would make a man better by removing temptation from him, or that the government should enact a law stipulating what we shall eat or drink.

I would beg leave to add in my opinion the teetotal societies under the Scott Act, have done little or no good in restraining the desire for drinking ardent spirits, notwithstanding the fines and imprisonment that are almost daily taking place, filling our prisons with their victims. And I would add that it appears to me the temptation offered by the League Society, offering $5 to any poor half-starved fellow who cannot find work to support himself and his family is disgraceful and may not improperly be stigmatised as an encouragement to pauperism.

We have had the Scott Act in full force in this city for some years and many of our citizens who had not much faith in it still continued the Act. Now it appears that its very supporters think that it is not sufficiently restrictive to carry out their views, therefore they are calling for an act of parliament with power to prohibit the importation of any kind of drink containing alcohol.

I have no doubt many of them think that it is a religious duty to do so and that it would be carrying out a great christian duty to enforce the opinion. The very first step towards effecting this desire is to show the government how the $8,000,000 collected as duty on spirits and wine is to be replaced when these liquors are to be shut out from the revenue. The prohibitionists know that these eight millions of dollars have been paid mostly by temperate men. Are these prohibitionists prepared to take this burden on themselves by advising the government to levy a duty on tea or some such article that would realize an equal amount.

If they are let their hearts say so, when I for one will give them credit for sincerity.

BENJ. DAVIES. Charlotteville, 3rd Feb, 1896.

TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE.

Sir,—The Guardian seems to have forgotten christianity, temperance and everything else just now, and evidently thinks the Scott Act the only thing necessary to salvation, as far as Charlotteville is concerned, for it advises the public to vote for the men who will take the best means to enforce the Act. That is all the Guardian says, "vote for them." When will the morning paper be temperate in its assertions? As it is the worst extreme on the other side of the question, is not more intertemperate than the sheet that poses as a model of perfection on temperance lines.

TEMPERANCE.

RESIGN. MR. HAZZARD.

Sir,—Mr. Hazzard should resign his connection with the Club. It is very inconsistent to be running as the League candidate for Mayor and at the same time being a member of an institution that is obnoxious to every temperance person in Charlotteville.

LEAGUE.

A VICTORY.

Sir,—It appears that amongst all the leading temperance people one can be found to run Ward Three against the candidate now in the field, so that this evening the liquor men will be able to claim one seat by acclamation. It looks as if the cause is gone.

TEMPERANCE.

When the congregation sings, I would not live always, most of them mean that they would be willing to draw the line at 97-1/2-packs.
