Home Rule for Ireland.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT STATEMENT OF THE NEW LINE OF HOME RULE, RESULTING FROM THE ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes to-day a long article giving the practical result of the round table conference hitherto kept secret in spite of all wrangles over it. The following is a summary. I can add from personal knowledge that it has been submitted to almost all the leaders and received their approval. It outlines the coming scheme of home rule with accuracy, almost amounting to certainty. You will notice that it coincides strikingly with the summary of Gladstone's home rule views published December 16th, 1885.

CONCESSIONS TO IRELAND.

1. One national legislature with executive, which shall represent the whole island and have its seat in the capital.

2. This is safe guarded as follows:

(a) That the imperial parliament continue to represent the whole and not part only of the United Kingdom. This means the retention of the Irish members at Westminster.

(b) That the powers given any new local parliament be delegated and not surrendered.

(c) That the subject to be treated by the local authorities be clearly defined, and be subject to revision and control, that is by turning out English ministry which refuses to veto an Irish bill in opposition to the majority of the house.

(d) That the administration of justice shall remain with the authority responsible to the imperial parliament. (This was the knottiest point.) Present judges to be retained for life, while the crown will appoint new ones for fifteen years. The constabulary at first to continue in the hands of the crown.

FINANCE.

3. The principle laid down is that the fiscal unity of the three kingdoms, so far as relates to customs and excise, be maintained unimpaired. Customs and excise will remain in the hands of the imperial government. Imperial officers will collect and transmit to the imperial exchequer whatever sums are payable in Ireland under these heads.

The fact that Irish representation will be maintained unimpared in the imperial parliament immensely simplified the financial bargain.

Instead of fixing a tribute to be paid in Ireland of fixed proportion to the imperial expenditure, which should not vary in times of war or peace, it is now believed that the proportion of the Irish is to be fixed at a lower fraction than that one-fifteenth, so that it will be possible for Ireland to contribute equally with other parts of the United Kingdom, so far as is necessary for the maintenance of imperial interests at home and abroad.

THE LAND QUESTION.

There is to be no gigantic purchase scheme. Legislation is to be carried out on the lines indicated by royal commissions, leaving the Irish legislature to devise such a scheme of land purchase as seem to it necessary, it being clearly understood that the assent of the Imperial parliament must be obtained to any scheme for the expropriation of landlords, and no such expropriation to be possible without an Imperial guarantee, which will be given only to a scheme which is both financially sound as regards the state and just with regard to individuals.

The above is practically the scheme which Sir George Trevelyan declared has been arrived at. It has been seen and practically approved of by Morley, Parnell, Trevelyan and Labouchre, and I believe by Gladstone himself. Its importance may be gathered from the fact that the greatest pressure has been brought to bear upon the editor of the Pall Mall Gazette to induce him to suppress it, one of the most distinguished politicians just mentioned, having declared to the editor that if it was published, he would never speak to him on politics again. The editor postponed it several months, but now in view of the rapidity of recent events, refuses to do so any longer.

Sir George Trevelyan's majority in the Bridgetown division of Glasgow was 1300, the vote standing:—

Trevelyan, Home Ruler 4,654
Ashley, Liberal-Unionist 3,353

At the previous election the majority for Russell, Home Ruler, was 800. The Home Rulers gained 310, and the Unionists lost 214 votes, giving a net increase of 524 in the Home Rule majority.

Drowning at Shubenacadie.

A sad drowning accident occurred at Shubenacadie, on Wednesday afternoon. A number of boys were in the Shubenacadie river swimming, near the railway bridge, at some distance from each other. A lad named Kenneth McKenzie, between 15 and 16 years old, son of James McKenzie, blacksmith, of that place, waded into the water a few feet past the first pier and the tide, which was running in quite fast, took him off his feet and carried him into the swift current. The little fellow, who could only swim a few yards, made an effort to get back, but could not succeed. He called for assistance to the other boys, but before they could get to him he sank. He kept one hand above water for a distance of about 30 feet, and had the other boys been near him he could have been saved. A large number of men have been searching the river and grappling for the body all the afternoon, but have not as yet succeeded in finding it. Much sympathy is felt in the community for the family in their sad and sudden bereavement. The young lad was a smart and promising boy and was a particular favorite among his companions.

F. E. BARNES, 344 Fourth Avenue, New York, writes: "I have used Adamson's Balsam, as have also some of my personal friends. We found it the best remedy to be had for coughs and colds." Trial bottles 10 cents.

A Sad Accident.

A sad accident occurred near the fish market, St. John, N. B., on Wednesday afternoon, as a result of which Dennis McCarthy, an old man almost 80 years of age, was instantly killed. Workmen were engaged in removing from the tug Xanthus, lying in the slip alongside the Fish Market wharf, the boiler of this boat. In its removal, two long pieces of piling were being used as shears. When the boiler had been raised and was suspended over the wharf one of the shears cracked. The men rushed away, but deceased was too old to get away as quickly as the rest, and the broken shear struck him a terrible blow on the head, smashing in his skull and killing him instantly. The remains were promptly taken charge of and taken to his late residence on Mill Street. Mr. McCarthy leaves one son and two daughters, the former being a resident of Boston. Deceased was well and favorably known and the news of his sad death was heard with deep regret.—Sun.

D'Arcy McGee's Murderer.

The Boston Herald publishes the following sensational despatch from Ottawa: "A great sensation has been caused here by the statement, on good authority, evidently, that the true murderer of D'Arcy McGee escaped the penalty of the law, while Whalen, an innocent man, was made the victim of circumstantial evidence. It will be remembered that when James Whalen was executed here for the murder of McGee, grave doubts were entertained as to his being the murderer. He died protesting his innocence. It has been stated that a son of Mrs. Trotter, where McGee lived, and who has since died in the States, declared that Whalen was not the murderer. Young Trotter was, at the time of the murder, in the Commons of Canada, and they left the house about the same time. Trotter was on the ground shortly after the shot was fired. The story told by a lawyer and rapidly rising politician yesterday morning confirms his story. He states that he was 11 years of age and was at Ottawa College. He had gone out for the night to hear the expected debate in the House, and on his way home saw two men in front of Trotter's house; one of them was a well known criminal lawyer, of Quebec, and the other Whalen. Whalen had a pistol in his hand, but his courage failed when McGee came to the door. His comrade took the pistol, fired the shot which ended McGee's life, shoved it back into Whalen's hand, got into a team close by and drove rapidly away. Some startling developments are expected in connection with this matter within a few day."

A Plague of Death in China.

The Occidental and Oriental steamer Gartic arrived last Wednesday night at San Francisco, from the Orient, after a very quick passage of 14 days. She brings Yokohama papers up to July 19th, and China news to July 11th. S. S. Popoff, Chinese secretary to the Russian Legation in Pekin, has just published a pamphlet on the Chinese population, in which he states it to be 382,000,000, against 414,000,000 in the year 1842. His statistics are derived from Chinese officials. Chinese native papers contain the following item: "A plague of sudden death is raging at Nankin: people are dying in every quarter, and there are many instances of many sudden deaths. People apparently well in the morning are dead in the afternoon. The Hu Pal says over one thousand telegraph poles have been pulled down by the people, who say the telegraph is a diabolical European artifice. Troops to the number of 2,000 have been ordered to the spot. Last week 83 persons were summarily executed near Shanghai for belonging to secret societies. The Shen Pao gives most harrowing accounts of floods at Chu Chou Fou, up the Wenchow river. Over a thousand human beings have been swept away, and the destruction of growing crops is immense.

Mormonism.

The United States attorney for Utah has filed suit against the trustees and managers of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City, with a view to disincorporate the church and wind up the business. The petition alleges that the church has $2,000,000 in real estate and $1,000,000, in personal property, whereas the law prohibits any church from owning more than $50,000 worth of property. The attorney is acting in accordance with the Edmunds-Tucker law of 1887, which provides for the disincorporation of the Mormon church and the escheatment of its property for the benefit of the common schools of Utah. The case will come before the court on the fifteenth of September.

A great deal of interest naturally attaches to the case. The United States authorities have, in the Mormon question, a problem exceedingly difficult of solution, and one that cannot be lightly regarded. After years of quiet brooding in its Utah paradise, beneath the shadow of the Wahsatch Mountains, Mormonism has come forth a giant, strong to battle for its own. Inspired by fanaticism, it followers will yield no inch of ground without dispute; and it may be that in the end physical force must be resorted to before the system will be abolished.

The whole subject just now becomes of interest to Canadians from the fact that there are rumors of a Mormon immigration to our own Northwest. While there is no probability of a powerful organization being established there, it is yet possible that very unpleasant results might follow the advent of even a small community of Mormons into an unsettled part of Canada. With polygamy renounced there could be no objection to their presence, but otherwise we can very well afford to wait for settlers of a more desirable character.

JOHN R. FITZPATRICK, of Tracadie, will be able to accommodate about thirty horses and carriages from Charlottetown, within five chains of the Tea grounds, in which there will be a dinner saloon in connection, in good order.
