DAIRY AND CREAMERY

JERSEY SIRE.

One of Exile of St. Lambert's Most Distinguished Sons.

The illustration shows a son of the great Jersey bull Exile of St. Lambert. Many of our readers have seen pictures of Exile, and some of them have doubtless seen the famous bull himself.

The resemblance of the young bull in our illustration to his sire is striking. He is not quite 4 years old. There is something royal in the carriage of his proud, high head. His tail is very fine, silky, thick and long. The dairy type is here in perfection. He is a bull of tremendous strength and vigor and will probably keep on growing so long as he lives. One peculiarity of this animal is that he has four well developed teats upon the under side of his body, this being a sure indication of the dairy sire. Heifers sired by him are remarkable for their large udders and perfect teats even at 6 months old.

For Better Butter.

Decidedly better and more substantial and permanent creameries are a desideratum.

Our butter is not yet up to the standard and does not compare with the fine goods turned out in the older dairy sections of Europe. The fine work and art part of the business is yet to come. We have been making butter, and now we want to make quality. One difficulty the buttermaker has had to contend with in the creamery is overwork and too much to attend to and not time enough to attend to the finer part of butter making. Our butter is not always properly washed or worked and salted, too much water is left in the butter, and very often the brine is colored with the buttermilk which injures its keeping qualities. Solid butter fat is what we want, with very little moisture or water left in it. Then if your goods are made out of pure and sweet material and not over-salted and colored just right for a standard article, you will have uniformity and reliable butter, light in color and light in salt to suit the best markets of the world. For uniform salting seven-eighths of an ounce to a pound, depending on conditions, etc., of course, but aimed to arrive at the right amount by the judgment and taste of the buttermaker, when he once knows what right salting and coloring are.

It seems to me we should have a standard color, standard salting, with body or density of butter in regard to the amount of moisture therein contained. Butter made on scientific rules and packed accordingly, after the modern way, with parchment linings, etc., will be in every way more desirable and sought after for all purposes, and the market and consumption of the article widely increased at home and abroad.

Our motto should be "Excelsior." No better butter on earth than the American product. Then dairying will pay and increase all over the United States. After reading the description of Hoard's creameries in your June number is it any wonder that so much inferior butter is made in this country? Probably not over 10 per cent of our product is what may be called fancy butter of good keeping quality. Note the difference between Hoard's creameries and the average creamery of the northwest, without shade or any cooling or refrigerating apparatus, and note the difference in cost of building and the opportunity for improved creameries.

I notice the experiment in Iowa of the farm separator plan and believe that system will give us uniformly better butter and at less cost of manufacture, and more time be given to the butter maker for the scientific making of the butter, in cream ripening, pasteurization, churning, working, washing, coloring, salting and packing of the butter. Larger fields may be covered with central churning stations or creameries and more uniformity given to the butter, so desirable at the present time.—William B. Webb in Creamery Journal.

Does Seem So.

Now it does seem as if milking cows 11 months instead of 7, adopting the silo system, thus getting a vastly greater product of fodder from the land, and affording a regular supply of palatable, succulent food, independently of drought or flood, knowing the producing value of each animal, and providing warm and clean quarters would make it just as possible for the farmer to make up what was lost in price by an increased product as the manufacturer or the common carrier. Possibly it is a mistaken idea, but it seems reasonable to an outside observer.—Ogdensburg Herald.

Turnips For Calves.

Sufficient rutabaga turnips can be grown upon half an acre to feed ten calves during the winter months. Past experience leads me to believe that calves will thrive as well with a feed of turnips as upon three pounds of wheat bran. It will require 6,300 pounds of wheat feed to feed the ten calves for seven months.

Two Trolleys.

There are two kinds of trolleys—those that are built to carry passengers and those that are built to sell bonds of and to sell machinery. They may look alike at first, but in time the difference becomes very apparent, and there are obvious dangers in multiplying the latter variety. It takes somebody's money to set any trolley line going. The people are full of the idea that real estate doubles the minute a trolley line touches it, and there is in the air more or less of the spirit that led, thirty years or so ago, to ruinous investments in steam roads all over the state. The farmer who takes his savings bank deposit to help build a trolley that is to pass his door may mortgage his home next to keep the road running, and eventually may see the service stopped and the house sold. People don't run trolleys at a loss forever. Somebody must foot the bills. It is asserted in some well informed quarters that one must search long to find a single cross country trolley that pays. Be that as it may, it is obvious that a good many are projected that cannot pay, and it is equally true that eventually the line that doesn't pay will come to grief.—Hartford Courant.

MESSAGE TO MEN

Proving that True Honesty and True Patriotism by Still Exist

If any man who is weak, nervous and debilitated, or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from youthful folly, excesses or overwork, will take heart and write to me, I will send him confidentially and free of charge the plan pursued by which I was completely restored to perfect health and manhood, after years of suffering from Nervous Debility, loss of Vigor and Organic Weakness.

I have nothing to sell, and therefore want no money, but as I know through my own experience how to sympathize with such sufferers, I am glad to be able to assist any fellow-beings to a cure. I am well aware of the prevalence of quackery, for I myself was deceived and imposed upon until I nearly lost faith in mankind but I rejoice to say that I am now perfectly well and happy once more and am desirous therefore to make this certain means of cure known to all. If you will write to me you can rely upon being cured and the proud satisfaction of having been of great service to one in need will be sufficient reward for my trouble. Absolute secrecy assured. Send 5c silver to cover postage and address Mr. G. Strong, North Rockwood, Mich. 135 ptw.

KLONDYKE!

The Land of Golden Nuggets

JOSEPH LADUE, the new Bonanza King of the Klondike, dike Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights" BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered last August, 1896. He located one rich claim, and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets beyond the dreams of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots, 150x50, are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuylers Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the West, going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific Coast, and finally located in Alaska and the North West, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer; strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpaired at the age of about forty-three. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all his time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country—the Yukon Valley—which has so suddenly become one of the great centres upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space), people began to wonder, and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well informed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man alive to-day who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desolatory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries.

In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled is a brief description of the new gold regions, and anyone desiring authentic information should not fail to avail themselves of our
