Duncan said he knows of no better way of preserving historic Commonwealth ties than by ensuring that mutual trade between Canada and Britain be kept alive. Without such ordinary associations of every day life, relationships between two peoples tended to wither and become meaningless.

Referring to Canada's "surge of development," Duncan observed: "There are many of us in Canada who lament the fact that British capital, traditionally the boldest and which throughout the generations has grubbated the world, is virtually unable to participate in these inspiring developments."

He expressed confidence in Britain's ability to carry on her huge rearmament program and yet overcome the present financial and economic crisis, which he described as the severest since the war.

This confidence, he added, rest-

Was Formerly Bank Manager Here

Comments On Current Flood Of Propaganda

(By J. M. Roberts, Jr., Associated Press News Analyst)

Propaganda is flying as it has seldom flown before.

The Allies accuse Russia of aggressive intentions in Southeast Asia and issue the nearest thing to an ultimatum that they will not take it lying down. The Kremlin inveighs against Allied activities in the Middle East.

The United States denies the Russian charge that she is aiding Chinese Nationalist guerrillas forges in Burma. The first reaction, admittedly open to refutation, is "if not, why not?"

Germany keeps adding political demands to her price. Irritating, but not much different from the way all countries act.

The United Nations criticizes Russia for breaking her 1945 treaty of friendship with Nationalist China, ignoring a score of other treaties broken by Russia. And 25 countries abstain.

The Korean trade talks have broken down because the Allies don't know what to do next and the Communists have just about what they wanted - an almost-truce and a perpetual area of harassment.

Part of this welter is merely a routine of the times. Part of it is due to extreme nervousness over where hell may break loose next.

In the U. S., the Allied warning about Southeast Asia sounds like a reaction to recent Russian propaganda. Actually, it was a result of the recent Washington trip-over conference on what to do about Indo-China.

It is also an answer to those who feel the West should draw a line and warn the Communists not to cross. Instead of doing that, the United States, France and Britain warn that new Koreans will be met by Korea-like action of the United Nations.

It is a manifestation that the Allies now are arriving at the "position of strength" toward which they have been working for three years.

And today's turmoil is only the beginning of the nervousness which is bound to accompany the final steps in this attempt to create a balance of power.

Cannot Ship Clothes To Korea

OTTAWA, Jan. 29 - (CP) - In Korea there are hundreds of destitute children in need of clothes. In Canada there are at least two tons of clothes gathered for them. So far nobody can find a way to get them to Korea.

Canadian Legion National headquarters says two officers back from Korea brought the plight of children in Korea to the attention of the public in Saskatchewan.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion in that province went to work and rounded up two tons of clothes.

Then the trouble began - how to get them to Korea. The Army says it can't handle them because they aren't military equipment. The Air Force says it can't fly two tons of clothing on the Trans-Pacific Airline.

Legion headquarters has tried those and other channels, so far without success. It's still trying but the clothes still are in Saskatchewan.

English Clergymen Debate Remarriage Of Innocent Party

CANTERBURY, England, Jan. 29 - (CP) - A proposed amendment to Church of England Canon Law relating to remarriage of innocent parties in divorces, has been rejected by the Lower House of Convocation.

The amendment, defeated 69 to 62 read: "Parties to a marriage should understand the life-long nature of the marriage bond and the grievous sin they commit when either party to a marriage enters upon a form of marriage during the lifetime of the other."

Rev. A. P. Shepherd, of Worcester, said there were many who honestly believed that if they were innocent parties to a divorce they were not committing sin by marrying again. He suggested that insertion of the amendment in Canon Law would not only cause these innocent parties grief but there would also be a complete rebellion of feeling among them.

Rev. M. Bruce, of Chiddingfold, Sussex, said that a broken oath was a sin and people who married again during the lifetime of a partner were breaking their oath.

"It should be made clear to young people," he added, "that what the church teaches is not just that divorce is a pity but that it is wrong."

Dr. Alan C. Don, Dean of Westminster, said it would be a mistake to overload the Canon Law with too much prohibition. It was enough, he submitted, that a Church Canon should stress the positive nature of the life-long union of two persons.
