

DAIRY CRISIS?

Dairy Council meetings on consumer trends tending to favour low fat diets have been producing editorials and headlines out of all proportion to the newness of the information. Consumers for some time have been demonstrating a preference for leaner pork, leaner beef, lower fat in milk and generally less fat in the diet. Editorially the statement has been made that too much animal fat can be injurious to the health so can any kind of fat, so can, too much of any kind of food for that matter. Public preoccupation with the fat problem at the moment is centred on its relationship to coronary heart disease but there is yet no agreement on the part of authorities as to the kind or amount of fat involved.

Cholesterol, the arterial deposit associated with this particular heart disease is found in animal fats but the human body can and does synthesize cholesterol from any energy producing food. Why then talk about limiting dietary cholesterol intake unless one is going to remove all fat, vegetable or animal from the diet.

Quite recently Dr. Frederick Stare of Harvard University stated that if there is any connection between the consumption of fats and coronary heart diseases that it must be laid squarely at the door of saturated or hydrogenated fats, a classification which includes practically all fats with the exception of butterfat and lard. There is still insufficient research to justify on laying the Sunday, October 29th marked the occasion of special dedication services in St. Columba Presbyterian Church, Marshfield. At the morning service Rev. Donald A. Campbell, moderator of the Maritime Synod dedicated "To

The Glory of God" a communion table "In Loving Memory of A. A. MacBeath presented by his wife and family" and flower stands "In Loving Memory of Blanche MacBeath Boswall presented by the MacBeath family." Mr. J. Karl English, student minister, also dedicated the Pulpit Fall which was presented by the Women's Missionary Society and Ladies Aid of St. Columba Presbyterian Church and Hymn Boards which along with the beautiful carpet and new furnace were the gifts of a friend of the congregation.

The morning service was conducted by the student minister and the sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr. Campbell who chose for his theme "The Church and Our Duty Towards It."

HOGS AND THE VOTE

The price of hogs has a very great deal to do with who will win the United States election in November.

If hog prices take a nosedive in late October it could throw considerable support to the Democrats. If prices remain strong however, it could keep the farm vote for the Republicans.

One year ago, hog prices in United States dropped down to a low average of $10.60 a hundred pounds and considerable agitation in the farm belt resulted in an extensive U.S. Government port buying scheme. Hog prices in United States normally drop at this time of year because of seasonally heavy marketing. The question is, how low will prices go? The Department of Agriculture believes prices will be relatively steady this year, possibly averaging about $14 a hundredweight about election time.

FARM FORUM REMINDER

Monday, November 5 is D-day for Island Farm Forums. The discussion topic "Should Farmers Invest in Marketing?" with the sub-heading "Is Investment in Marketing Services Essential to Orderly Marketing of Farm Products?" A good start is half the battle and we are recommending that every farm forum in the province and every district that plans on organizing one should without fail meet on this coming Monday night. Your community can benefit from farm forums, you as an individual can acquire knowledge on a wide range of topics and can in addition develop skill in public speaking and the conduct of public meetings.

FARMER PRESIDENT.

Regardless of what happens election-wise on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November the United States is bound to have a farm for president. President Eisenhower on his farm at Gettysburg breeds pure bred Holstein cattle, Adlai Stevenson on his farm at Libertyville raises sheep. In some cities the farmer is looked upon as the key voter and this belief leads to for an example, the following statement on the part of the Republican party "Convinced that the Government should ever be the farmer's helper, never his master, the Republican Party is pledged: "To establish an effective, new research program, fully and completely implemented to find and vigorously promote new uses for
