Nervous

People find just the help they so much need, in Hood's Sarsaparilla. It furnishes the desired strength by purifying, vitalizing and enriching the blood, and thus builds up the nerves, tones the stomach and regulates the whole system. Read this:

"I want to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla. My health run down, and I had the grip. After that, my heart and nervous system were badly affected, so that I could not do my own work. Our physician gave me some help, but did not cure. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Soon I could do all my own housework. I have taken

Cured

Hood's Pills with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and they have done me much good. I will not be without them. I have taken 13 bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and through the blessing of God, it has cured me. I worked as hard as ever the past summer, and I am thankful to say I am well. Hood's Pills when taken with Hood's Sarsaparilla help very much." MRS. M. M. MESSENGER, Freehold, Penn.

This and many other cures prove that

LIVING LANTERNS.

How the Deep Sea is Lighted by Its Finny Inhabitants.

Away down in the dark depths of the ocean there are living lanterns that are borne about to light up the darkness. A queer fish, called the "midshipmite," carries the brightest and most striking of all these sea torches. Along its back, under it and at the base of its fins there are small disks that glow with a phosphorescent light like rows of shining buttons on the young middy's uniform. In this way it gets its name "midshipmite," by which young sailors in the navy are often called.

These disks are exactly like small bull's-eye lanterns, with regular lenses and reflectors. The lenses gather the rays and the reflectors throw them out again. There is a layer of phosphorescent cells between the two, and the entire effect is as perfect as if made by some skillful optician.

The fish is so constructed that when it is frightened by some devouring sea monster it can close its lenses and hide itself in the darkness. It can turn its lantern off and on at will, and then it is always "filled" and ready when wanted.

Another marine animal has a luminous bulb that hangs from its chin, and thus throws the light before it, to warn it of the approach of enemies. Still another upholds a big light from the extremity of the dorsal fin. Others again have constant supplies of a luminous oil that runs down their sides from the fins, making a bright and constant light all around.—New York Press.

Paper Made of Sunflowers.

From Salina, Tex., is reported a new use for sunflower stalks. Several tons of them have been made into paper, which has been shipped East for trial. The paper is regarded as superior to straw paper and marks a great departure in paper-making and sunflower-raising industries. The mill is now buying sunflowers and proposes to make sunflower paper a specialty.—Architecture and Building.

WEEKS & WARREN

THE CONTESTED ELECTION.

Under this caption, L'Impartial, to our mind the most vigorous and ably edited French-Canadian journal in the Provinces, has this to say of the Alberton election case:—

"As our readers are already aware, the election of Mr. Edward Hackett, Deputy for West Prince, is contested, no less than 55 accusations, some of corruption and others of intimidation by agents, etc., being leveled against him. The petitioner is one Wm. Sharp Larkin, of Alberton, who is only the tool of the veritable persecutors, who are too cowardly to act themselves but keep behind the scenes awaiting the result of the dirty work which they have imposed upon their creature. Whatever might be said of a contested election under ordinary circumstances, we are fully convinced that, apart from a few narrow, vindictive spirits, imbued with vile and low sentiments, all are of one accord in saying that this contestation is altogether out of place. The solidest Liberal in the Riding will freely admit that never was there, here or elsewhere, a more honorable or purer election than that which resulted in Mr. Hackett's return on the 23rd of last June.

"In West Prince the majority of the electorate is Catholic; and although many Catholics, deceived by the profuse promises of the Liberal chieftain on the School question, did not desert the party, nevertheless a great number of them who had previously voted on that side, listening to the voice of conscience and the advice of their Church, refused to sacrifice solemn duty to the spirit of party, and consequently supported the Conservative candidate. As we said last week, in the face of the negotiations just concluded between Laurier and Greenway, the line of conduct of these electors is amply justified. They have the face to tell us that the School Question is settled; but as long as justice reigns—and justice is eternal—as long as there are honest men in the world, this shameful compromise will be designated by no other name than that of perfidy, and will remain an ineffable stain on the escutcheon of those who have brought it about.

It is necessary then to have abandoned all sense of shame after having scandalously deceived the Catholics of West Prince at election time, to come now and ask them to humiliate themselves to the point of depriving a man who has honorably carried off the victory. To satisfy their unbridled hatred, certain self-styled Liberal chiefs up here have no scruple in attempting to incriminate priests for having—in conformity with their mission to see that those confided to their care are properly instructed in the duties which they have to perform and thus are enabled to act according to right conscience and in a manner consistent with the instructions of their church on a question of obedience to the voice of the Head of the Church and its Bishops. Not only is it a crime to drag priests and their teaching on such subjects before a civic tribunal but it is a disgrace to this Catholic riding, from which we will not readily arise—it is a work of infamy which will long designate those guilty of it and which time will amply avenge.

"If difference of opinion is absolutely necessary in politics, surely our Catholic Liberals have not fallen so low as to allow themselves to be made the tools of shameless and unprincipled men—men who make no scruple of trafficking in holy names and things in public courts and in the presence of our separated brethren, who are ignorant of their signification and naturally prejudiced against their use!

"This is the greatest of all shames. As an independent Catholic organ we protest with all the vigor of our soul against such infamy. Whatever may be the result of this contested election, those who have been responsible for such nefarious conduct must suffer from it."

The London Chronicle's Rome correspondent reports that he hears that Lord Salisbury has asked Italy and Germany to state what their attitude would be in the event of armed intervention by England, France and Russia against Turkey. Italy the correspondent adds, has promised her adhesion, but Germany has not replied to the question.

"EARNSCLIFFE."

New Name Given to the District Formerly Known as Gallas Point.

Pursuant to public notice, a meeting of the inhabitants of Gallas Point, was held in the school house on Thursday the 10th, inst., to discuss the property of giving the place an appropriate name. The meeting was largely attended and organized by electing John Tweedy and J. W. Young chairman and secretary respectively. The adjoining settlement of Portland, which is in fact a part of Gallas Point school district, was represented and offered some discussion, it was decided that both place would assume the one common name for the very forcible reason that they possessed the one school and the one post office.

They then proceeded to elect a suitable name. A great many were suggested, reasons being advanced why they should be adopted. At length one gentleman arose and proposed "Earnscliffe". He said there was no other name in the Province like it, and better than all, it was inseparably associated with Canada's grandest and noblest statesman, the late Sir John A. MacDonald. It was in Earnscliffe, said the speaker, the Grand Old Man died and it would ever remind us of his noble christain life, stimulating us to be better and more loyal Canadians. The great cheer which arose from the meeting when the speaker sat down indicated that he had touched a responsive chord in the hearts of all present for when the names were voted on "Earnscliffe" was almost unanimously adopted. A resolution was then passed that notice of this meeting be sent to the local papers, also that a petition be forwarded the Hon. Wm. Mulock Postmaster General, requesting him to change the name of the office to Earnscliffe. After three cheers and a tiger were given for the new name the meeting dispersed.

JOHN W. YOUNG.
Secretary.

Earnscliffe, Lot 50, Dec. 10, 1869.

A Tender Handed Tramp.

Robert James Gordon, a casual, declined to break stone in return for food and shelter at the Newcastle workhouse, and doubtless much to the surprise of the workhouse authorities successfully resisted the proceedings taken against him for that act of insubordination. Being called on in the Newcastle police court to explain his refusal, Mr. Gordon, who appears to be an educated man and is described as speaking "logically and fluently," asked the bench to consider what such work meant to a man like him.

His hands would, he said, become quite lacerated, and were he a clerk or a tailor the result would be that in searching for employment afterward he would be unable to follow it. In the case of a shorthand writer, too, he asked how he would be able to write 130 words per minute if his hands were mangled in the way they assuredly would be after breaking a ton of stone. His chances of gaining work were thus minimized, and he "submitted respectfully" that according to law the master of the workhouse did not use any of the discretion which the regulations directed him to use.

After the magistrates had consulted together for some time, the chairman stated that the bench could not agree upon a decision, and that the defendant would thus get the benefit of the circumstance. Personally, he added, he should certainly have punished him, but his colleague being of a different opinion they had concluded to dismiss the case.—London News.

TO THE WARBLING VIREO.

Sweet little prattler, whom the morning sun
Found singing, and this livelong summer day
Keeps warbling still; here have I dreamed away
Two bright and happy hours that passed as one,
Lulled by thy silvery converse, just begun
And never ended. Thou dost preach to me
Sweet patience and her guest reality,
The sense of days and weeks and months that run
Scarce altering in their round of happiness,
And quiet thoughts, and toils that do not kill,
And homely pastimes. Though the old distress
Loom gray above us both at times, ah, still
Be constant to thy woodland note, sweet bird;
By me at least thou shalt be loved and heard.
—Archibald Lampman in Youth's Companion.

The Moon as We See It.

Did you ever stop to consider the fact that the inhabitants of this earth have never seen but one side of the moon, and to inquire the reasons why such is the case? The explanation is this: The moon makes one revolution on her axis in the same period of time that she takes up in revolving once around the earth, thus the same geographical region of the lunar surface is always toward us. As one explanation usually calls for another, it may not be out of place to mention the fact that the reasons the two motions of the moon above referred to so nearly coincide are these:

The moon is not a true globe, but is very elliptical in form. It did not in all probabilities orginally start on its axial rotation with precisely the same velocity with which it moved around the earth, but the very best astronomers say that the two motions were not far apart in the start. Assuming that the moon was semi-liquid or at least soft in those remote days, the earth's attraction caused the lunar surface to elongate, and in the untold ages which followed its axial rotation, owing to the attractive influence of both the earth and the sun, was made to correspond with its orbital movement around the earth.—St. Louis Republic.

Old Time Banking Methods.

While discussing the matter of the troubles and trials of banking business of today President James Espy of the Ohio Valley National bank said to a group of friends: "I tell you that we do not know anything about the peculiarities of the banking business. I have heard officials of the bank when I was beginning in the business rehearse the experiences in early banking in Virginia. As is well known, the residents of that state were not much given to business tactics. Whenever they had occasion to issue a note, and it was quite frequent, the bank officials had to drive around to the various farms, or to the place where the maker lived, and it was quite difficult to get them to sign the original, but much more so a renewal. Experts got so they could tell whether the note was renewed in the house or in the field, as they could tell whether it was written on the pommel of a saddle or at a regular desk."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Why He Didn't Shoot.

A man with a wife who has her own ways about doing things catches her now and then.

"My dear," he said the other morning as he was dressing, "I think you were right when you told me last night that there were burglars in the house."

"Why?" she asked nervously.

"Because all the money that was in my pockets when I went to bed is gone."

"Well," she said, with an I-told-you so air, "if you had been brave and got up and shot the wretch, you would have had your money this morning."

"Possibly, my dear, possibly," he said gingerly, "but I would have been a widower."

She laughed softly then and gave half of it back to him.—London Tit-Bits.

A MODEL KITCHEN.

The Illinois woman's exposition board will conduct a model kitchen in the Women's building. Mrs. Richard J. Oglesby has planned the work to illustrate the value of corn, one of the chief food products of Illinois. Lessons in the scientific and hygienic preparation of food will be given such as involves no loss of nutriment or useless expenditure of personal energy or fuel. All the modern contrivances for saving labor and annoyance will, as far as possible, be in actual use. It is believed a better knowledge of the nutritive properties of the cereal and the many excellent dishes which may be prepared from it will prove of great advantage to visitors.

The Whistling Tree.

A species of acacia, which grows very abundantly in Nubia and the Soudan, is also called the "whistling tree" by the natives. Its shoots are frequently, by the agency of the larvæ of insects, distorted in shape and swollen into a globular bladder from 1 to 2 inches in diameter. After the insect has emerged from a circular hole in the side of this swelling, the opening, played upon by the wind, becomes a musical instrument nearly equal in sound to a sweet toned flute.—New York Telegram.

Judge—Why, the man is deaf and dumb!

Prisoner—Well, why didn't he say so? —Schalk.

A curious box was recently found amid the ruins of Pompeii. The box was marble or alabaster, about 2 inches square and closely sealed. When opened, it was found to be full of pomatum or grease, hard, but very fragrant. The smell resembled somewhat that of the roses, but was much more fragrant.
