Tiny Feet Sho'd Out Fashion Is Good Sense

A quiet revolution in taste has shoe'd out the archaic notion that no foot is beautiful unless it is tiny.
Today's smart woman knows that fashion, above all, is good sense. Beauty is no longer in the size of a shoe, but in its materials and design. Shoes now are made in a wide variety of styles to flatter any foot, whether long or short, wide or narrow. Lightweight supple leathers are now being produced in a wide variety of grained, sueded and smooth leathers, which shoe manufacturers can fashion into the many styles and colors demanded by today's individualized tastes.

has helped banish the old addiction to tiny feet. The long slim line of this popular style has a slimming effect on the appearance — and a bracing effect on the morale — of the woman who is concerned about her real or apparent plumpness. She willingly adds a half-inch point to her shoe in order to gain the much more important advantage of a sleek, slim foot line, that carries out the vertical slim lines she wants in her clothing.
A shoe can be attractive no matter what the size, if it is the right shoe for the right occasion. For example, for the woman who has to walk or stand a lot, it is sensible and stylish to wear low-heeled shoes.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Farm Training So Good Do What's To Be Done

A day gently gray, this, dreamily misty, and lightly damp — "Tip the pail, Ellen—have you forgotten? There, that's better. And they do say it's better to keep it off the ground. No, don't take it away from him yet. I always like to see them lick up the last drop of it" James said this morning.

build barns for them in turn, "against a side-hill so to have an underground." At length choosing fine trees from the woodlands for "the rough lumber" required.

Because he has only one pair of hands and we had chanced to come to the back verandah when there were three breakfast-pails to be carried to a trio of calves in a shed, we had been pressed into his service.

The dwelling? He would help too with those, though certainly not with the concentration given to the barns. "It's the barns that give folks their living" he would say. "And besides it's not the house that makes the home."

Instances like this, when the housework too calls, makes us look with some degree of envy on the farmwife who has a number of sons to her credit, busy woman and sometimes overwhelmed in her role though she may be when they are young, but how soon they grow into help on the farm.

Not with the land calling to its own. The grandchildren? The land... yes, the land. "Mack has the makings of a good farmer" he smiled at dinner. "He has a good way with the stock."

If we had a dozen instead of a bare pair, what help James would have had then about! And true, chores for all! How then our fields would be rounded out with herds and flocks.

"He has a leaning to the law" we said chuckling over an episode of the morning. "He can argue neatly."

In time stumplings would be cleared, pieces of new land brought into production. And what a busy and kindly father to all he would have been—planning whilst they were still young to

It happened the small wheelbarrow which carries wood to the houses had been carelessly left in the yard in the path of machines. We had drawn Mack's attention to this oversight as he clipped his schoolbag to the carrier on his bicycle, about to set out to school.

"Who left it there?" we asked. He shrugged. "I can't say. It is not my day to bring in the wood."

"Well, you could have put it in the shed where it belongs, couldn't you?"
"Put it in the shed!" he exclaimed, "and if another person's work? No!"

"On a farm we're supposed to do whatever we see need to be done—and no questions asked." "Oh yes!" with sarcasm. "And let someone impose more and more on you? That's an idea for the birds—yes, strictly for the birds! Let whoever left it there, put it away, I say."

Cattle were carried off today in the little truck in an initial enodus to "the grass." And seeing "this is the day," we beamed. "Until tomorrow — — — Dairy Good-night."

MR. AND MRS. H. D. MACKENZIE A Very Pretty Wedding Is Held At East Baltic

On Thursday evening, April 23rd, at 8 o'clock, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Garrett, East Baltic, was the scene of a pretty wedding when their eldest daughter, Norma Elaine, became the bride of Harold Douglas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon MacKenzie, Rollo Bay.

As "Meditation" and Lohengrin's bridal Chorus were played by Samira MacGregor, the bridal party took their place beneath an arch of pink and white streamers and bells tastefully decorated for the occasion.

The ceremony was performed by a former pastor Rev. H. R. Bell in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties, during the signing of the register, Largo was softly played by the organist.

The bride was very becomingly attired in a suit of pink tweed with matching accessories. She was attended by her sister, Rose, who wore a Navy blue dress suit with white accessories.

The groom was ably supported by his brother Eric. The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a two-piece dress of Melon linen. The groom's mother wore a dress of Royal Blue taffeta.

After the ceremony a Buffet lunch was served by Eileen Robertson, Mrs. Alvin Rose and Sandra MacGregor, girl friends of the bride.

The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom and flanked on either side with white candles in glass holders.

During the course of the evening much merriment was caused by the arrival of a gay company of serenaders who concluded their hilarity by bouncing the groom.
