APRIL 10, 1884.

Disgraceful Tactics.

The Opposition in the House of Assembly have, since the beginning of the session, been courteously treated by the Government. In debating the different measures they were allowed more than ordinary latitude. Nevertheless, it appears, the forbearance of the Government is not appreciated, and the time when "patience ceases to be a virtue" is never looked forward to by the Opposition. Uncivilized tribes, if treated kindly by the state, will not fail in time to make a suitable return; but how different do we see Grit Oppositions acting.

The budget speech was delivered on Monday night. It was debated by the Assembly until last night at eleven o'clock, when the House went into Committee of Supply. The Opposition then seized on every opportunity to embarrass the Government. Irrelevant speeches were indulged in, and nonsensical motions were tabled. Few have any idea of the stupidity and puerility displayed by what is misnamed Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition. Item after item in the estimates were objected to and opposed inch by inch. Even salaries regulated by statute, the Attorney-General's for instance, were made the subject of "speeches against time," by some of the incapables who occupy the Opposition benches. In this manner the Assembly was turned into a bear garden, and the wisdom of the Province was for one night denied the privilege of paying tribute to Morpheus. Not until one o'clock to-day did the Assembly adjourn, and the business transacted up to that time, owing to a factious Opposition, was trifling.

We hope that in future the Opposition will endeavor to act more wisely than they have in the past. That Mr. Yeo should allow his followers to go beyond the limits of all decency, we are surprised. He has borne an excellent reputation for political deportment, and why he should assist, in or even give countenance to, the ridiculous actions of his followers last night and to-day, is beyond our comprehension.

Prince Leopold's Funeral.

The New York Tribune's cable says the funeral of Prince Leopold was conducted in great part as a private ceremony. Foreign ambassadors and ministers were not invited officially. The manifestations of grief and respect in London were of the most marked kind. Another correspondent says the Queen maintains good health, despite the shock caused by the death of Prince Leopold. Her medical advisers insist upon the necessity of outdoor exercise. In consequence of this, she drives daily about the private grounds at Windsor. Arrangements for the funeral, down to the most minute details, were made under her personal directions. It was first ordered that the duke should be buried in the mausoleum at Frogmore, and that the ceremony of interment should be quite private. But the duchess informed the Queen that her husband had expressed a desire to be buried in St. George's chapel, so the funeral was held there and the same ceremony was observed at the funeral of the Prince Consort. From a pecuniary point of view, the duchess is left in a very comfortable position. She has a dowry by parliament which amounts to six thousand pounds a year. The duke was very careful in the management of his financial affairs, so that he was enabled to settle upon the duchess by his will a further yearly sum of two thousand pounds, and to leave her also a sufficient sum for the keeping up of Claremont house. Letters from Cannes states that the duke's death was hastened by the fast pace of his life at Nice and Monaco. The day before his death he spent four hours at the Monaco gaming tables, where he suffered heavy losses. The atmosphere was stifling, the crowd dense and excited. The duke was pressed upon and shoved about by the throng and became greatly excited. Social dissipation of this nature was new to him. A reaction set in in the evening of the night in which the fatal attack occurred.

Injustice to Ireland.

A parliamentary return has been issued at the request of Mr. Sexton, M. P. for Sligo, which shows the strong partisan character of Irish magistracy. Out of 5,613 justices of the peace, only 1,014 are Roman Catholics. In the counties there are 4,228 Protestant to 869 Catholic magistrates. On this return was founded Justin McCarthy's motion which was debated Friday, and which the New York Tribune's correspondent states brought out the existence of what Mr. Trevelyan admitted to be a grievance. The system of appointing Irish magistrates neither the Roman Catholics nor the Presbyterians have a fair share. He promised some reforms. The divergence in policy between the Davitt and Parnellite members of Parliament in regard to the coming election campaign increase. Davitt has written O'Brien, M. P., editor of United Ireland, complaining that efforts are being made to prejudice certain nationalists in England against persons active in Irish politics, who are trying to keep the national cause more before Irishmen than the Parliament policy. He refers to certain parliamentary candidates as "carpet baggers" from England and as "adventurers who have no claim upon the suffrages of Irish nationalist electors." O'Brien requests Davitt to state his objection to the Irish parliamentary party and its policy, and blames him for distilling distrust into the public mind. A circular letter has been sent out by the Catholic bishop of Arghagh to the priests of county Longford, requesting them to inform their congregations that a dissolution of Parliament will shortly occur. The bishop furthermore invites the priests and people to a conference for the purpose of selecting a suitable candidate.

At the meeting of the Marine Board held in Halifax this week, Edward Kennedy of Souris, passed as mate.

From the "Northern Light."

JOHN HUGHES, Esq., of this city, was one of the passengers who left the "Northern Light" yesterday. He arrived here this morning from Georgetown. From him we learn the steamer left Pictou at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning. At 10.50 a. m., off Pictou Island Light, she encountered heavy ice. At noon the wind blew from the northeast, and drove the ice into the bay between Pictou Island and the Light. The steamer was obliged to lay to during the day and night, and on Monday morning she was carried close to Merigonish. About midnight on Monday steam was put on and the boat was, at 11 o'clock on Tuesday, worked two miles west of Pictou Island. There she remained. On Tuesday evening the wind blew light from the southwest, and so continued until ten o'clock on Wednesday forenoon when it turned to the northeast again, thus adding fresh difficulties to a passage. At 1.30 p. m., on Wednesday, Mr. Hughes was, by Captain Finlayson, placed in charge of a boat, and, with the gentlemen named below, started for the island. They encountered heavy ice and little water, and landed about a mile west of Mr. John Cairns' lobster factory, at 4.38 o'clock yesterday evening. They then proceeded to Georgetown. Mr. Hughes informs us that previous to his departure the Pilot looked from the mast-head of the steamer, but he could not see open water in any direction.

Following is a list of the passengers who came from the steamer. About seventy-eight remain on board:—George Shearer, Georgetown; Matthew McDonald, Souris; Geo. Yeo, Charlottetown; Wm. Pope, do; P. M. Callaghan, Pisiquid; Jas. M. Williams, do; B. J. Callaghan, Rollo Bay; J. E. Baldwin, do; A. J. McLeod, do; Wm. Campbell, do; E. M. Ely, Providence; P. Reilly, do; M. Kennedy, Allan Hunter, Angus Levingston, Eldon; W. C. Harris, Jr., Charlottetown; W. H. Avery, Boston; Rev. Mr. Stewart, Montreal; Rev. Mr. Leech, Ontario; J. Dunn, Charlottetown; Jas. Caughan, Wm. Jewers.

Contraction of the Foot in the Horse.

To my mind there can be no question as to the alternative expansion and contraction of the posterior portions of the hoof during progression, and this fact can be easily demonstrated. But the amount of expansion will depend upon the application of the shoe, if the bearing surface of the shoe at the heels is thicker on the outside than it is on the inside, or if the shoe be nailed too far back (as is usually the case) no expansion can take place; on the contrary, the heels are constantly forced towards each other every time the horse puts his feet to the ground. This can be easily proven by the shoe being polished in an inward direction, clearly showing by the friction at the heels of the shoe, that the motion has been in an inward direction; and if such a method of shoeing is persisted in the horse will go lame. Bad shoeing is not the only cause of contracted feet, as allowing the shoes to remain on the feet too long without being removed, as well as letting the horse stand on a dry plank floor, are often causes of contraction, and sometimes it is due to metastasis, a transmission of disease from some organ to the feet themselves; but from whatever cause contraction may proceed, it is a very serious defect in an otherwise good horse, as it causes pressure on the navicular bone, the flexor pedis perforans, and the stellar ligament, producing bi-lateral corn and other mischief, therefore the wise man will look well to his horses' feet, as it is an old and a true saying, "No foot no horse."

JOHN M. WHITMAN, V. S.

The Political Situation in England.

The record of actual business accomplished in parliament presents the usual blank. The debate on the reform bill makes some progress. The chief speech of the week being Mr. Forster's. He is equally emphatic on the necessity for extending the franchise to Ireland and the necessity for diminishing the excessive number of representatives in parliament. Forster affirms what no other leading statesman in England has so explicitly stated; namely, the principle of population as the sole and proper basis for representation. The division will take place on Monday. The efforts to effect a compromise on the merchant shipping bill between Chamberlain and the ship owners, have failed, the latter insisting arrogantly on the withdrawal of the bill and the introduction of a new measure dictated by them. Chamberlain will endeavor to press the original bill with some modification.

Sturgeon Notes.

The roads are getting bad. There is a fine prospect of an early spring. The people of Sturgeon were greatly surprised on the 26th ult., by the sudden death of Mr. Matthew Young, one of the pioneers of Sturgeon. He took his tea about four o'clock, and died before five the same evening. He was seventy-two years of age. Mr. William H. Creed met with the misfortune of having his leg broken, while hauling mud from Sturgeon River, a short time ago; but is now recovering under the skilful treatment of Dr. Robertson. The scarlet fever has been prevailing in Albion during the last six weeks, but parties afflicted with it are now recovering. Having visited the Albion School a few days ago I find the pupils are advancing rapidly. Mr. Lavers leaves nothing undone that will tend to promote their efficiency. A fine schoolhouse is in course of erection in that district. Mr. Geo. A. Thompson is the contractor, and I have no doubt when completed it will be a very creditable building. The bridge at the Albion Mills is now being re-built, and will be ready for traffic about the middle of May. Mr. James W. Young is the contractor.

The Albion Mills are kept going very steadily. They are stocked with the best of French and Scotch machinery, and seem to give general satisfaction. The wild geese are very plentiful in the channel. Several sportsmen from the city are trying their aim at them with success.—COM.

Dominion Political News.

OTTAWA, April 9. The House met at 3.30. After the presentation of several reports Sir Leonard, in answer to a question stated that it was not the intention of the Government to bring down a measure during the present session for the appointment of inspectors to supervise the returns of banks in the Dominion. Sir John refused to accept the amendment, and, on a vote, Blake's amendment was lost—yeas, 59; nays, 17. Mr. Fisher moved to strike out the first section of the bill, which was lost on the same division, and the third reading was carried on the same division. The House then engaged in consideration of supplies. At six o'clock Sir John stated the House would prorogue on Wednesday or Thursday.

Sir Charles Tupper will move consideration of the railway subsidy resolutions to-morrow. On motion for the third reading of the Bill respecting the independence of Parliament, Mr. Clarke moved in amendment that the Bill be re-committed for the purpose of amending the same by inserting a clause limiting the indemnity and qualification to sit in the case of Sir Charles Tupper to the present session. The House spent the evening in concurrence on the item of salary for the new deputy fisheries.

Mr. Mitchell spoke about the importance of the position and trusted that the appointment to be made be filled by a man thoroughly competent, especially in view of the fact that Lord Derby had given notice through Lord Lansdowne that Canada would soon have the fisheries treaty with the United States repealed.

Anniversary of New Glasgow Division.

A public temperance meeting was held on the 3rd inst., in the Presbyterian Church for the purpose of celebrating the twenty-first anniversary of New Glasgow Division, S. of T. The following programme was carried out in a very satisfactory manner: Singing by the choir, "The half has never been told;" Prayer by Elder D. Crawford; Speech by the chairman, Rev. W. P. Archibald; Recitation, Nelson McCoubrey; Singing, "Go feel what I have felt;" Speech by Elder D. Crawford; Recitation, Herbert Bradshaw; Singing, "Strike for the cause of freedom;" Speech by Geo. Smith, Esq.; Recitation, Lestock Gregor; Singing, "Do they pray for me at home;" Speech by James Dickieson; Recitation, Henry McInnis; Singing, "Bringing in the Sheaves;" Speech by William Laird, Esq.; Recitation, Frank Orr; Singing, "Dash it Down;" Recitation, Willie Bulman; Singing, "Along the River;" Recitation, James Colsting. The speeches were all listened to attentively and applauded by the audience. The recitations were all bearing on temperance, and were all delivered by young members of the Order. Too much praise cannot be given to Miss Zilla Gregor for the able manner in which she presided at the organ, which was kindly furnished for the occasion by Arthur B. Dickieson, Esq., under whose direction the musical part of the programme was intrusted, and with the assistance of Miss Mattie and Bessie Stevenson, Miss Stanford Clarke, Miss Ida May Stevenson and Messrs. Benjamin and Lorenzo Stevenson, was rendered in a most excellent manner, which proved that they possess a musical talent of a very high order.

The meeting, which was very orderly, closed at ten o'clock by singing the Doxology, after which all returned to their respective homes well pleased with their evening's entertainment. ON LOOKER, New Glasgow, April 5th, 1884.

MISS FORTESCUE received £3 per week for her engagement to Lord Garmoyie. She now receives £15 per week. The engagement has, therefore, been worth £12 per week to her already. [ad 2]

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Wiggins and his Prophecies.

Sir,—Your correspondent "B" is down on Wiggins' prophecies, but for what reason he does not know. "B" says Wiggins always fixes his storms about the equinoxes when storms always happen. Well, they did not "happen" this March, for there was not a high wind or anything approaching it from the 7th to the 27th, when Wiggins said his great storm would begin to cross the meridian of Halifax. He warned us of the storm of Feb. 27th, by far the heaviest this winter, and that was over three weeks before the equinox. Then he warned us of the heavy storm of Dec. 2nd last, in which the government steamer "Princess Louise" was lost, and that was nearly three months after the equinox. Wiggins' storm, which began on March 28th, the most destructive in the history of the United States, was over a week after the equinox, so it seems to me that "B's" arguments won't hold water. Wiggins predicted nearly two years ago that the atmosphere would be very dense during 1883 and 1884, and the bright sunset last fall and winter show that he was right. He said this would be caused by the four great planets Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune being near their perihelia. I also read some time ago that the burning hydrogen in the corona of the solar orb had disappeared, which he says is owing to these great planets being so near the sun. Surely these planets, which we may regard as particles of the solar system, being so many millions of miles nearer together, must make that system more dense, so to speak, in the same way that the particles in a piece of iron squeezed into half its ordinary size would be much heavier than before. What "B" says about the lava veins is very foolish, for we do know these veins exist. Wiggins predicted that a volcano would break out near the Island of Java during his storm in March 1883, for the moon was in conjunction with the sun over that meridian, and he was right, for immediately after the Java volcano broke out in one of the grandest eruptions ever known. "B" should take a few more lessons before discussing a subject he knows little or nothing about. He will have Wiggins at him some of these days and there will be nothing left of him but a "grease spot." A.
