For The Children

A Boy's Promise

The school was out, and down the street
A noisy crowd came thronging;
The hue of health and gladness sweet,
To every face belonging.

Among them strode a little lad,
Who listened to another,
And mildly said, half grave half sad:
"I can't—I promised mother."

A shout went up—a ringing shout
Of boisterous derision;
But not one moment left in doubt
That manly, brave decision.

"Go where you please; do what you will,"
He calmly told the others:
"But I shall keep my word, boys, still:
I can't—I promised mother."

Ah! who could doubt the future course
Of one who thus had spoken?
Through manhood's struggle gain or loss,
Could faith like this be broken?

God's blessing on that steadfast will,
Unyielding to another,
That bears all jeers and laughter still,
Because he promised mother.

George Cooper.

A very subdued-looking boy of about thirteen years, with a long scratch on his nose and an air of general dejection, came to his teacher in one of the Boston public schools and handed her a note before taking his seat and becoming deeply absorbed in his book. The note read as follows:

"Miss B.—Please excuse James for not being there yesterday. He played trooant, but I guess you don't need to lick him for it, as the boy he played trooant with an' him fell out, an' the boy licked him, an' a man they sassed caught him an' licked him, an' the driver of a sled they hung on to licked him also. Then his pa licked him, an' I had to give him another one for sassing me for telling his pa, so you need not lick him until next time. I guess he thinks he better keep in school hereafter."—Harper's Bazar.

"They all Stumbled and Slept."

Years ago, when school readers were not so plentiful as now, it was the custom in many homes to have the children read a chapter or two in the New Testament as a reading lesson. Little 6-year-old Jimmie was noted for his ludicrous mistakes in reading, and his older brother and sister were equally noted for their tendency to laugh at his blunders. The lesson was the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew. The fifth verse reads, "While the bridegroom tarried they all slumbered and slept." Little Jimmie fearful of mistakes, attacked the verse and read it, "While the bridegroom tarried they all stumbled and slept." Then the laugh and the customary spanking by mother.—Exchange.

A Spoiled Girl.

Miss Dorothy Drew is a much advertised little person. Apart from being the spoiled granddaughter of the late Mr. Gladstone, she is also quite a well-known personality with the public, who have the opportunity of admiring her portrait in all the photographers' shop windows. She recently went on a visit to the Queen, at Windsor Castle, and this is how she describes her visit: "An Indian man whom the queen likes very much, was at the door. Next moment, we stood before the great Queen, whom grandpapa served for sixty years. She was just another woman like grandmamma, with a white cap on her head. I courted and kissed her, and told her my name, Dorsie, and talked of grandpapa and all our pet names at Hawarden Castle. The Queen put on her glasses and asked me to go to the other side of the room, so she could see me better. Then she took a little jewel case and said: 'This is for you.' I opened it and saw a darling little brooch, with a diamond "R" and a turquoise "I," and a little crown on the top made of red enamel. I courted and kissed her hand, and said: 'Thank you very much.' She looked very nice and kind and I liked her very much. The Queen kissed me again and mother and I went away."

A Quarrel.

There's a knowing little proverb,
From the sunny land of Spain;
But in Northland, as in Southland,
Is its meaning clear and plain.
Lock it up within your heart;
Neither lose or lend it—
Two it takes to make a quarrel,
One can always end it.

Try it well in every way,
Still you'll find it true,
In a fight without a foe,
Pray, what could you do?
If the wrath is yours alone,
Soon you will expend it,
Two it takes to make a quarrel;
One can always end it.

Let's suppose that both are wroth,
And the strife begun,
If one voice shall cry for "Peace,"
Soon it will be done;
If but one shall span the breach,
He will quickly mend it,
Two it takes to make a quarrel;
One can always end it.

Tailor-Made vs. Factory-Made!

Take up the printed announcements of makers and importers of ready-made clothing, and when they strive to give emphasis to the alleged merits of their clothing they invariably tell how nearly they approach to tailor-made. Here are some quotations—

"Elegantly tailored"
Cut and finished equal to ordered work," equal in quality, fit, and finish to suits made to order, or similar statements.

Then tailor-made clothes are different to imported factory-made, otherwise there would be no need to make comparisons. If tailor-made were not the better clothes they would not be held up as the ideal to which the ready-made strive to reach

The fact is there is a great deal of difference between a factory-made imported suit and a tailor-made in style and durability.

The man that is indifferent as to the appearance of his clothes when he buys them and when worn a month, may be satisfied with a factory-made, but if he has regard to looks and economy, he will buy tailor-made garments.

For those who are not disposed to give the prices usually paid for clothes made to special order, and are not satisfied with the imported ready-made clothing, we have made, and are daily adding, Suits and Overcoats of superior workmanship that we are selling as low in price as imported makes of inferior quality.
