"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs", Disney Musical, Claims New Honors

GUEST. The beloved heroine of Walt Disney's re-issued "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" find hospitality in the home of the dwarfs and their woodland friends.

High drama, pathos, excitement and music are woven into Walt Disney's feature-length production, the famous "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" which is now being welcomed back to the screen to repeat its triumphs of several seasons ago. The story is that of the oppressed heroine of the Grimm Brothers' fairy tale, of whose beauty the Queen is so jealous that she retreats to her dungeon laboratory to brew spells against Snow White. Then in the guise of a Witch, she makes a victim of Snow White after tracing her to her refuge among the hospitable Seven Dwarfs. Excitement becomes redoubled when the dwarfs (Dopey, Sleepy, Grumpy, Bashful, Happy, Sneezy and Doc) chase the Witch into the mountains where, just as she is about to roll a great boulder down upon them, a bolt of lightning takes care of the situation. The Dwarfs, believing Snow White is dead after her experience with the Queen, build a glass coffin for their friend, small animals and birds taking turns guarding it. But romance comes along in the person of a young Prince. He kisses Snow White, breaks the spell, and the two ride away to happiness. All the original hit songs, remain in this big feature production which is re-released via RKO Radio and in color by Technicolor. The numbers are: "Some Day My Prince Will Come," "Snow White," "I'm Wishing," "Whistle While You Work," "One Song," "Heigh-Ho," "The Dwarfs' Yodel Song," "Bluddle-Uddie-Um-Dum" and "With a Smile and a Song."

...The Canadian National Institute for the Blind employs more blind people than any other agency in America, if not in the whole world," said Mr. C. R. White, Provincial Field Secretary of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

C.N.I.B. Employs Many Blind People

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind employs more blind people than any other agency in America, if not in the whole world," said Mr. C. R. White, Provincial Field Secretary of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind. "It is not a government organization but it is recognized by the Dominion Government and the Provincial Governments and given some financial support. The main bulk of the revenue required by the Institute comes from public subscriptions. The policies and financial set-up of the Institute are in the hands of elected boards, none of whom are employees of the Institute.

In this Province for example, an Advisory Board, with representation from all parts of the Province, guides and assists the Field Secretary in his work, approves the annual budget and takes a leading part in the Campaign to raise funds to meet this budget. The Managing Director is blind. He is as a matter of fact, one of the best known Canadians, Colonel E. A. Baker, O. B. E., M. C. Croix de Guerre.

There are many other blind people employed by the Institute in executive positions. The guiding principle of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is that, if a competent blind person is given some assistance and a measure of well-directed co-operation, he can take his place along side his sighted fellows in many occupations and positions.

In its 34 years experience it has proved that the principle is sound. When it is considered that there are approximately nineteen thousand blind people in Canada," concluded Mrs. J. A. B. MacConnell, secretary, "the work undertaken by the Institute can be appreciated. To carry on its great task it needs funds, and the people of Prince Edward Island are asked to support the current financial Campaign generously."

marriage that gave every prospect of being successful, falls. Many of these can be salvaged through a marriage counselor, some are doomed to failure, but the failures are few, and could be much fewer. "Forethought" is the key word here, not "trial."

DEAR MISS DIX: A very fine boy I recently met comes from a nice family, but when he was younger traveled in a fast crowd. I have heard that he was in reform school. He has a good job now and I'm sure he is sorry for the past. He has asked me to go out with him, but my family is dead set against it. B. D.

ANSWER: Parents have a grave obligation to their children which includes guarding them from any influences that may be harmful. This is undoubtedly how your folks feel, and their only reason for forbidding you to go with the boy is to protect your own reputation. It is only fair of them, however, to make inquiries concerning him to ascertain if he is now established as a reputable, responsible young man. Many, many people make mistakes in youth that are regretted, and atoned for, later. Your young man seems to be in this category and I feel he is entitled to a chance to prove himself.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 20, and in love with a boy the same age who has eyes only for the girl next door to me. He likes me and comes to me with all his problems. BARBARA

ANSWER: Just hope that your own sterling qualities will prove superior to the flirtatious ways of the other girl in attracting the boy. Miss Nilsen cannot reply personally to readers but will answer problems of general interest through this column.
