Double Ring Ceremony Unites Happy Couple

Trinity United Church, Charlottetown, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, June 7, 1958, when Susan Joan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, Mt. Edward Road and Heber Stewart MacPhail, grandson of Mrs. Oliver MacPhail, Appin Road, were united in marriage.

Rev. Howard Christie performed the double ring ceremony. The bride given in marriage by her father looked charming in a strapless white length gown of white nylon net over satin topped with a bolero of matching lace over net. The long sleeves came to a point at the wrist. Her veil was held in place by a Queen Ann headdress. She carried a white Bible.

Mrs. Angus Geldert was her sister's bridesmaid, and wore a maize and white nylon dress with matching headdress and mitts. She carried a yellow bouquet.

Mr. Angus Geldert was best man.

The guests were ushered to their seats by Mr. Reid MacKenna and Mr. John Condon, friends of the groom. Mr. Royston F. Muford was organist.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home for sixty guests. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. James McGague and was fittingly responded to by the groom.

Following the reception the young couple left on a motoring trip to points of interest on the Island. The bride chose for travelling a beige dress and black duster-coat and white accessories.

Upon their return they are residing on the St. Peter's Road.

Prior to her marriage the employees of F.W. Woolworth's tendered her a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Margaret Perry where she was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts. On June 12, the couple were tendered a shower at the home of Mrs. James Farrah, Appin Road, where they again received many gifts.

ELLEN'S DIARY

This Farm-Life Classic Elevates Our Thinking

"I'd like to farm" a recent city-visitor to Alderlea commented with some longing in his voice. "You know there's something about it that 'gets' a fellow. One works for other folks—makes nice pay too, but after all to me it's only a job. On a farm...well, it's one's own work."

"There's mighty slim pickin' sometimes", James, twinkled, "and often no end to a day!"

"I know that," the visitor agreed, "but as I said, there's still that about it that bolsters a man's ego. It's the independence of it, I guess. By nature a man is an independent creature."

"It does give a man a nice feeling to look out over the fields and know that they are his", James smiled. "And not only that but to know that they need him. There is an inter-dependence between the farmer and his land."

"I like stock too", the visitor offered.

"And that's what a real farmer sees," James nodded, "yes, a liking for his stock. In today's farming we sometimes see a lack of this. There was a time when every farmer was a stockman—good and perhaps not so good. He had to take care of his horses for they were his farm-power and his cows because they were among the main sources of his income.

But with the machinery of now, the youngsters growing up and indeed some of their elders take little interest in stock-raising. I know of some, who for the life of them couldn't harness or hitch and drive a horse. Just think of that!" James observed.

There is many a nicety about the farming we find.

"I like the thousand little things about the farm, which can stop a man's heart in mid-beat and make him remember ever after" H. Gordon Green says in an extremely interesting article in a recent issue of a farm paper, entitled "Why I Still Do The Chores". He continues: "the trust of well-fed animals. The soft neighing of a mare to her exploring colt.

The way a dog looks up at you from the writhing mass of her first litter, as if to ask you how in the world it ever happened. The sound of the woods on the wild spring nights at maple time, and the smell of the fire-pink steam which lifts from the boiling sap.

The child-like swelling of pride which you can't quite hold back when one of your gleaming animals wins the judge's nod and a bright ribbon at the fair. The sight of lambs at play on a May-green pasture.

The small of man in a small boy's hair at berry-picking time. The delighted crier of a little girl in a spring orchard as she peeks through clenched fingers at a bright bug or a tree toad or some other trophy of a child's eternal quest for something younger than itself."

Yes, many a touching incident, many a memory is ours to gather. And over this farm of ours at Alderlea, over the roof-tops, over the children and chicks the night now spreads quiet wings. How peaceful it is. Hushed and as sweet as the little perfumed wind that stirs gently the curtains beside us.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary Good-night.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Looking for some inexpensive throw rugs? Try the bathroom supply department of your stores. Bathroom rugs have the dual advantage of being ultra-washable as well as generally less expensive.

If your child picks at his food without much of an appetite, the trouble may be nervous tension. Try giving him a warm bath just before dinner time.

JUDGES HIGHLAND DANCING

Margaret Rose Rhynes, Charlottetown, was invited to Dartmouth, N.S., to judge the Highland dancing at the Dartmouth Highland Games which event took place on Saturday.

Margaret has been a notable figure at the Highland games in P.E.I. and has held the championship here in previous years.

Duffy-Johnston Wedding Is An Event Of Interest

KINKORA — Members of two well known Prince Edward Island families were united, Monday, with the wedding of Clara Elizabeth Johnston and Joseph St. Clair Duffy.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnston of Bedeque and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Duffy of Kinkora.

The ceremony was performed in St. Malachy's Roman Catholic Church by Rev. Regis Duffy of St. Dunstan's University, a brother of the groom. It was the first wedding of Father Duffy who was recently ordained and who is now at Fordham University, New York, taking a year's post-graduate study in chemistry. The altar boys were Robert Johnston, a brother of the bride and Patrick Duffy, a brother of the groom. Present in the sanctuary were Rev. Richard Johnston, S. J., of Loyola College, Montreal, an uncle of the bride and Rev. Harold Croken, P.P., of St. Malachy's.

The bride was escorted into the church by her father.

She wore a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over satin. The long torso bodice extended into a front panel. It had small cap sleeves and a portrait neckline edged with tiny seed pearls.

The bouffant skirt of nylon tulle started at a panel. It had a row of appliqued leaves at the hipline and flowed into a chapel train.

She wore a bandeau headdress trimmed with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Her shoulder-length veil was of tulle illusion. She carried a bouquet of mums and shasta daisies.

Attending Miss Johnston were her sister Frances as maid of honor and Genevieve Duffy, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid.

They were dressed in identical ballet-length gowns of turquoise nylon chiffon. They wore portrait hats and shoes matching their gowns. Each carried a nosegay of yellow roses.

The groom was attended by his brother Desmond Duffy, a seminarian at Scarborough Foreign Missions, Toronto, and the ushers, Sub. Lieut. Gerald Kilbride, RCN and Louis McKeever of Borden.

Music for the wedding and nuptial mass was provided by Kinkora Convent choir with Mrs. Ray Smith as organist. The choir sang "Oh Lord I Am Not Worthy," "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother" and "Salve Regina".

A dinner was held following the ceremonies at the Birch Hill Tourist Lodge in Summerside.

The wedding party was assisted in receiving by parents of the bride and groom.
