A TERRAPIN'S LOVE OF HOME.

One Caught in 1840, Marked and Released, Returns Three Different Times.

The devotion of a land terrapin to its home is well illustrated by a story from Paoli, Ind. In 1840 Miss Elsie Peck, of that city, was ten years old. While in the woods one day she came upon one of these creatures, and took it home. Its name she gave her name on the shell.

She did this, adding the date. The little animal was let go. The married couple were then in the village where she had first discovered the terrapin. To her great surprise she again found the little fellow within a few feet of where she first saw it. Her name and the date were as plain as when she put them there. The terrapin was again made prisoner to show her friends the marvel of its return.

Again tracing her new name on the shell, she released her captive. The date, 1850, was put on.

After many years Mrs. Willie became a widow, removing to Hutchinson, Kan. There she married Dr. McKinley and still resides there.

In the summer of 1873 Mrs. McKinley visited her son, John, who was then in Paoli. A search again revealed the terrapin at its first abode. Again she carved her changed name on the shell. It was the talk of the little town.

Returning to her Western home Mrs. McKinley thought little of her terrapin until a friend in 1895 sent her a copy of a local paper containing the facts. The terrapin had been again found and the date 1895 carved on its back. It was found right where it had been first discovered by Miss Peck. Each time it has been released near the center of the little town and had found its way to its original home.

World's Increasing Population.

The astonishing growth of European cities in the last twenty years is but part of a movement in population which is general throughout civilized countries. It is certainly unprecedented in history.

In this country the increase from 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 in less than two decades is paralleled by Germany, which has increased from 30,000,000 to 52,000,000 since the Franco-Prussian war. England shows a like increase, confined to the island of Great Britain, Italy and Spain are not so responsive to the movement, it is for causes too well understood to make their cases seem exceptional.

SOLD HIS SECRET CHEAP.

It Often Happens That the Discoverer Keeps Little Monetary Advantage.

The leather industry of the country has taken on a decided boom during the last few years, mainly through the adoption of a new process of tanning invented by an old German named August Schultz. The inventor secured scarcely $20,000 from the sale of his patent, while several manufacturers have gathered in large fortunes by means of it.

Schultz was a chemist and had absolutely no knowledge of the tanning business. However, he had an idea for the improvement of the tanning process in vogue in the various establishments of the country, and he sought to enlist the interest of the big tanners.

He finally attracted the attention of Blumenthal & Co., of New York, who closed a deal with him. He sold his patents outright to this firm for about $20,000, and with the money bought a little property at Manhattan, where he settled down. He is out of it all now, but many men are making fortunes from the application of his discovery.

Blumenthal & Co. sent out to Beebe & Forester of Philadelphia, who organized the Patent Tanning Company, with works at West Shore Lane and Coral Street, Frankfort, Ky.

The secret of Schultz' secret, or at least of the chrome tanning process, which is practically the same thing, has been sufficiently demonstrated in the report generally circulated in leather circles that Forester has made several million dollars during the last five years.

What Language Did Christ Speak?

This much-discussed question has a deeper interest than that of mere curiosity. It has practical bearings on problems of biblical interpretation, and the verbal inspiration of the Scriptures. It is an old question, but one that is constantly new in its interests, as is seen from the repeated discussions it has elicited in recent years. The latest and possibly the most recent opinion was that the Lord had employed the "Syriac" as his vernacular, which term was used interchangeably with "Hebrew" and "Chaldee." This became the settled tradition of the Church down to the Reformation and later, and when in 1555 Widmanstadt published the first edition of the New Testament in Syriac, this work was greeted with a warm welcome on the ground that now the Church possessed the very words of the Lord as he had spoken them in his own language.

The question as to the language spoken by Jesus did not particularly interest the earliest Church fathers. They confined themselves in this regard to the question as to the original language employed by Matthew in the preparation of his gospel, which, Papias declares, was "Hebrew." The current opinion was that the Lord had employed the "Syriac" as his vernacular, which term was used interchangeably with "Hebrew" and "Chaldee." This became the settled tradition of the Church down to the Reformation and later, and when in 1555 Widmanstadt published the first edition of the New Testament in Syriac, this work was greeted with a warm welcome on the ground that now the Church possessed the very words of the Lord as he had spoken them in his own language.

The facts in the case, especially as seen in the words of the New Testament and other Greek writings of Israel and the official Bible of the Roman Catholic Church, was also written in the Latin language. On the other hand, Protestant scholars began to maintain that Jesus spoke Greek, the language of the New Testament. So good an authority as the late Prof. Deitzsch believed that Christ spoke a relatively pure Hebrew.

The study of this language having been rightly taught in the schools of Palestine.
