The Ontario Elections.

The result of the Ontario elections is as shrewd observers anticipated. Intrenched behind the walls of the Government citadel, with the Grand Trunk Railway, the Catholics, and all the hard-and-fast Grits in solid array at his back, it was impossible to drive Mr. Mowat from office.

On the other hand, the event has proved that there is not a politician in Canada (except Sir John McDonald) who can play the cards in his hand to better advantage than Mr. Mowat.

The Practical in Education.

The Educational Journal for June contains an article on "The Practical in Education," which seems to be well worthy the attention of those who are interested in the young.

That the public schools, have, as a rule, done little in the past, in the way of training the hands of boys and girls for useful activities, is a fact too patent to need illustration.

In my first letter I merely stated that it struck me as strange to see Luther's doctrine cropping up here, propounded by one who had, evidently, never read one of his works.

Scripture is the servant of Christ, he who has Christ by Faith does with the servant as he likes, uses or dismisses her as he likes, at his option.

Now, let us return to the antithesis of justice and sin. How are we just before God? Solely because Christ was a sinner.

Are these extracts sufficient for "Observer," or must I invite his attention to still more? For, sad to say, there are yet others more horribly blasphemous even than these.

"Observer" is quite wrong in thinking I had any idea of "refuting his letter. Why should I even attempt to do so? He thinks, and I have no doubt honestly thinks, that he is capable of teaching me, while, on the other hand, I am convinced, with a profound and not less honest conviction, that I am much more capable to instruct him—and so, I fear, our difference is hopeless.

Is it not possible that there may be an authority to decide between us, whose decision would be binding upon me if it were decided that I am wrong, and whose judgment "Observer" would recognize? Would it not have been an immense, incalculable blessing to us poor, weak and erring mortals if it had pleased Almighty God to have vested such an authority somewhere? Is it not possible that He may have done so?

There is no reason why a thorough development of musical art should not take place in Charlottetown, the pleasant little capital of Prince Edward Island.

It should be remembered that vast wealth and a large population are not at all necessary to the happiness and best conditions of human existence and life in a small city where the inhabitants are well read, cultured in the arts and therefore necessarily refined in their feelings may be far more enjoyable than life in the bustle of enormous cities.

An opportunity to aid in the development of music in Charlottetown will be given to all citizens on Thursday next when Hayden's "Creation" will be performed by the Philharmonic Society.

A Washington despatch says the Secretary of State has received a despatch from the U. S. Legation, Rio de Janeiro, announcing that the cabinet had passed a resolution enthusiastically approving the action of the International American conference in recommending arbitration in all questions involving differences between the several governments in America.

Obituary.

A large number of relatives and friends assembled at the residence of the late John C. MacNeill, West River, (whose death was announced in our issue of the 5th inst.) to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased, who in every relation of life was highly esteemed in the community.

The Rev. George Steel.

At a meeting of the Methodist Preachers' Association, held in this city, on the 2nd inst., a well-deserved tribute, which we publish below, was paid to the Rev. Geo. Steel.

Resolved, unanimously: That this Association desires to place on record its highest appreciation of the devotion, ability and usefulness of the Rev. George Steel, of Pownal, who is about removing to St. John, N. B., and its deep sense of the loss sustained in his removal from this Island, where his valuable services and abundant labors for the past thirteen years, as a citizen, an advocate of temperance and a clergyman, have won for him not only the affection of the members of his congregations, but the highest respect and esteem of all classes of people.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Reply to "Observer."

SIR,— "Observer" entirely misunderstands the purport of my letter, and the object with which it was written. He says I "have gone to great trouble in searching for all the hard sayings and bad actions of the old Reformer to refute my letter."

But his letter only confirms the opinion I expressed—that he has never read Luther's works, and knows nothing of his opinions except by "tradition." If "Observer" feels he owes so much to Luther, what will he say to the following:

"Scripture is the servant of Christ, he who has Christ by Faith does with the servant as he likes, uses or dismisses her as he likes, at his option. If our adversaries bring Holy Scripture against Jesus Christ, we will crush Scripture with Christ."—Luther's Works, Ed. Walch, VIII., 2904.

In commenting on verse 21 of the 5th chapter of the 2nd Epistle to the Corinthians, he says:

"Now, let us return to the antithesis of justice and sin. How are we just before God? Solely because Christ was a sinner. Jesus Christ in His person must have been a murderer, indeed there cannot have been in all the world a worse assassin, murderer, thief, profane person and blasphemer than He. When He became the victim to expiate our sins, He was not any longer innocent and sinless, but He was the greatest of sinners—not because He personally had committed the acts, but because He bore sins in His Body."—Comm. in Gal. Ed. Irrmscher II, 31-32.

He thinks, and I have no doubt honestly thinks, that he is capable of teaching me, while, on the other hand, I am convinced, with a profound and not less honest conviction, that I am much more capable to instruct him—and so, I fear, our difference is hopeless.
