Strong Complaints Raised At School Unit Hearing Yesterday

When asked by Mr. Darby what he thought East Royalty should assume of the Unit debt, should be dissolved, Mr. Love replied $5,000 which he said was the amount it would have required to fix the old building. He said that the district had always had a good school and were always able to pay their own way. He felt that they should be allowed to resume the running of their own affairs.

U.S. Likely To Head Projects Hint At Vast Air Defence Buildup

By DAVE MCINTOSH Canadian Press Staff Writer OTTAWA (CP) - More clues to a coming vast air defence buildup in Canada have been divulged by officials here.

It appears likely that most of this buildup - airfields, control towers, hangars and housing for personnel - will be undertaken by the United States.

One authority said the Canadian government is anxious to have American servicemen, who probably will do the job, designated as forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This would partly get around the touchy, for the government, matter of Canadian sovereignty in regard to U.S. forces in this country.

The latest hints about the build-up came Wednesday at Montreal from Air Marshal Roy Siemon, chief of the air staff, and Air Vice-Marshal Larry Wray, chief of the air defence command.

are moving toward a completely unified North American air defence system with a single overall commander.

MILITARY THINKING In reply to a question about this in the Commons Thursday by Opposition Leader Druce, Defence Minister Campney said the air chief was not declaring government policy but "was simply stating a trend in military thinking."

Outside the Commons, officials said appointment of an over-all commander would have political ramifications, such as the probability that an American would be peacetime commander of Canadian armed forces.

They said there already is close integration of the two countries' air defence commands. Fighter planes closest to the point of an attack would go up to meet it, irrespective of which country they belonged to.

Air Vice-Marshal Wray said that because of the "somewhat startling advances of the U.S.S.R. recently, our position in the defence of the Western world has changed rapidly."

Urges Workable System Of Federal Aid For Education

FREDERICTON (CP) - An executive officer of the Canadian School Trustees' Association Thursday urged a system of federal aid to education that would not trespass on provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Bidlake said that the wealth and tax-paying ability of each province decides the amount to be expended on education.

"Because of foundation programs of all provinces will be of varying quality federal money is requested to set the programs at an acceptable Canadian standard," he said.

"We should all urge the Dominion government to inaugurate a system of federal aid to education in Canada while safeguarding the jurisdiction of the provinces over education within their own boundaries."

NO APOLOGIES "We must never be apologetic when we ask for money for education. With this thought in mind, we must avail ourselves of every opportunity of bringing the provision of federal aid for the provinces to those in authority."

Delegates from nine provinces organizations of parents and teachers are attending the convention which ends Friday. Newfoundland, the only area not organized on a provincial basis, is represented by two delegates.

Greetings were extended Thursday to the delegates by school superintendent Dr. F. E. MacDiarmid of Fredericton, on behalf of the Canadian Education Association; G. Forbes Elliott of Saint John, N. B., vice-president of the Canadian Teachers Federation and Mrs. J. C. Duckworth of Halifax, member of the council of the Canadian Association for Adult Education.

Mr. Loehart were also present and introduced.

At the afternoon session greetings were extended to Mr. W. C. McEachern, Regional Director of Maritimes, Mr. M. D. O'Brien, District Director of Nova Scotia; Mr. F. E. Ketchum, District Director of N.B.P.E.I. and Mr. F. A. Coyle, Area Superintendent.

Interesting figures in connection with family and allowance and old age security pension payments in the Maritimes was given in an address by Mr. A. S. Tait, Regional director of Family Aid.

Fifth Day Of Rail Strike Brings No Sign Of End

LONDON (Reuters) - Britons struggled through the fifth day of the national railroad strike Thursday with no end in sight and 1,000,000 jobs immediately imperilled.

All signs indicated that Britons - and Londoners, particularly - are learning to live with the near-paralysis of their nationalized railroads.

But the dispute involving 70,000 engineers, firemen and cleaners was still deadlocked Thursday night, despite all-day efforts of trade union leaders to find a settlement.

TRAFFIC MOVES WELL Thursday night, officials of the Trades Union Congress met with Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton to report on the strike situation, which threatens Britain's current wave of prosperity.

The heavy flow of road traffic moved more smoothly in and out of London Thursday, bringing from a traffic inspector the comment that "the public looks as if it has been putting up with a railway strike all its life."

Public buses ran only 15 minutes behind schedule, and an official of London Transport, which operates the buses and subways, observed that "the people have adjusted themselves to the situation."

In Devon, southwestern England, a number of strikers reported back to work, because, a railroad spokesman said, "they said their wives made things uncomfortable for them."

LAYOFFS LOOMING More business concerns warned that shortages of supplies would result in layoffs next week. It is estimated that the rising wave of unemployment may reach 1,000,000 by then.

After Thursday's meeting between the Trades Union Congress and officials of the striking Association of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, a statement said, "no progress has been made."

Russia And Yugoslavia Officially End Quarrel

By John Earle BELGRADE (Reuters) - President Tito of Yugoslavia joined with Soviet Premier Bulganin Thursday night in calling for an end to military power blocs and admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

The two Communist leaders, in a declaration setting forth the points of agreement between their countries after talks here lasting eight days, also called for "satisfaction of the legitimate rights of Communist China" over Formosa.

The two countries urged establishment of a system of European collective security based on a treaty, and asked for a solution of the German problem "in the interests of the German people and of general security."

The Russian and Yugoslav leaders also called, in their policy statement, for disarmament, development of the peaceful uses of nuclear energy and a ban on atomic weapons.

This was the first document signed jointly by leaders of the two countries since Yugoslavia was expelled in 1948 from the Cominform, a Soviet-dominated grouping of European Communist parties.

THUNDER ROLLS As Tito and Bulganin affixed their signatures, a violent thunderstorm broke. Flashes of lightning lit the windows of the ornate Hall of the Guards where the ceremony was held.

It was a dramatic finale to the seven years of bitter estrangement between the two Communist states.

President Tito leaned over to Bulganin and said in Russian, "Well, that's all, isn't it?" The document set out the terms of the new-style "coexistence" between Russia and Yugoslavia.
