A dinner meeting of the Summerside Business and Professional Women's Club was held last night at Mulberry Lodge with the president, Miss Jessie Fraser, presiding.

It was a routine business meeting and plans were discussed to have the members attend the provincial conference to be held in Charlottetown on Wednesday, October 12th, at the Charlottetown Hotel. Also it is hoped that the club will be represented at the New Brunswick provincial conference to be held October 14-15-16th in Saint John. In July 1956 the Congress of International Federation of B. and P. Women will be held in Montreal. Let's Talk It Over by "d"

Agriculture has long been a substantial and profitable industry on its continued progress in production, its leaders have created a fine program of promotional activities. From a few scattered rural exhibits of livestock, flowers, fruit, etc. The movement has developed into large annual fall fairs, and as separate and distinct show, displays of unbelievably lovely flowers. Friendly competition is the keynote of all these exhibitions, and the desire to excel has led to a great impetus in producing the best possible product.

Plowing matches are now held annually, and these competitions are attracting more interest every year. The young people have organized 4-H Clubs and they hold an "achievement day" when there is competition in livestock, poultry and other exhibits. They also hold public speaking competitions for they realize that in this modern world farm folk must be articulate; must be able to explain their problems and assert their rights. These competitive get-togethers perform the double function of fostering agricutural progress and a healthful happy community fife.

but declined to estimate what the health plan and other benefits would cost. No wage increase was included—or requested—in the current contract agreed upon by the railways and the unions only after prolonged conciliation and arbitration and signed by the union after being faced by a federal government intention to call an emergency sitting of Parliament to prevent a strike. The current contract expires at the end of the year.

STRIKE BIG ISSUE

A burning issue with the railwaymen is their right to strike. Representatives of the running trades joined the 105-man general conference to discuss this question in the talks just ended. But the running trades—whose contracts do not expire until next year—did not take part in the wage discussions.

All the unions are demanding a speed-up in conciliation procedure. which has dragged in recent years.

Mr. Hall, stating "we are opposed to compulsory arbitration," said the joint meetings discussed recommendations for possible amendment of the Industrial Disputes Act and "we will be continuing these discussions when we get around to it."

TELEGRAPHERS ADDED

He referred repeatedly to an arbitration board report earlier this year by Chief Justice Gordon Sloan of the British Columbia Appeals Court. This report had noted a "disparity of working conditions" among railwaymen as compared to other industrial workers.

Mr. Justice Sloan—who gave the workers part of their demands—threw in, as a side suggestion, the idea that the railways should be helped from the treasury because of their loss of potential revenue in the low statutory Crowsnest pass rates under which export-destined grain is carried to the West.

The current contract expires at the end of the year. It was negotiated by 14 unions—one less than now involved. The Order of Railway Telegraphers (AFL), with some 6,000 members, rejoined the group after negotiating separately during a study of the status of dispatchers, Mr. Hall said.

INFORMATION BUREAU CLOSES

Miss Mary Cameron, reception-ist at the Tourist Bureau operated by the Summerside Board of Trade at Read's Corner, two mi[illegible] east of Summerside seen above beside the register in which the names of about 5,000 visitors to the information center, which closed last evening, were recorded during its three months of operation.

Registrations were as many as a hundred a day during the peak season, and, as in general, only one occupant of each car signed the register, is is estimated that from 20,000 to 25,000 tourists benefited from the maps, literature, and information with which Miss Cameron provided them.

Miss Cameron is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Cameron, Summerside and will be leaving for Charlottetown shortly where she is a student in arts at St. Dunstan's University.

See Stop-Gap Potato Tariff Move Unlikely

OTTAWA (CP) — It is unlikely that any stop-gap action will be taken by the federal government now to curtail imports of United States potatoes reported flooding the British Columbia market.

Officials commenting on a Ladner, B. C., report Tuesday night said the tariff board currently is studying the whole potato industry.

It would be "somewhat unusual" if the government took action before it heard the board's findings, one official said.

The board's report on potatoes is expected to be in Finance Minister Harris' hands about the end of this month.

The Ladner report said more than 200 potato growers have demanded some immediate temporary measure to protect their local market until Parliament could remedy the situation permanently with legislation at the next session.

Council Ponder Stadium Deal

It was learned yesterday that the Summerside Town Council is giving consideration to the purchase of the equity of the Summerside Trotting Association in the Summerside Stadium and on a portion of the grounds surrounding the rink for parking purposes.

It is understood that when the Council meets in special meeting in a few days that the matter will be given consideration as well as the question of installing an artificial ice plant in the rink.

The matter under consideration is the outcome of a letter read at the regular meeting of the Council on Monday night, from the Raceway officials, which offered to sell the Stadium to the Town if the Town would assume the responsibility of the amounts owing to the Robb Steel Co., Ltd., and the M. F. Schurman Co., Ltd. The letter did not state the amount of these liabilities nor what arrangements could be made for sufficient ground adjoining the rink to be used as parking space.—S.
