LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Reply to Dr. Macleod.

Sir,—My letter in your issue of the 10th inst. was a criticism of Dr. Macleod's address, as reported in your paper the following day. I will not again discuss the question whether nature or education organizes brain and nerve tissue, but will leave it to the reader to judge.

I cannot, however, refrain from saying that it is surprising that the Dr. should so far forget himself, as to insinuate that I am in favor of the cramming process in schools. I have said nothing which can warrant such an insinuation. Here are my words—"The plan of study which I recommend accomplishes the double purpose, which is so desirable, viz., the development of the brain and nerve tissue and the imparting of useful knowledge." The following are Dr. Macleod's words—"My idea is that only such knowledge of facts is useful in the highest and best sense which subserves the organization of brain and thought." This last is but a repetition of the old philosophy which was in its glory 2000 years ago, which flourished extensively up to within a few hundred years ago, and even now exists, although in a languishing state. It has received its death blow, but still has its advocates.

The professors of this old philosophy not only did not and do not aim at the education of the mind with a view to the increase of power and means for the relief of the necessities, and the increase of the comfort of the masses, but they openly and ostentatiously repudiated any such aim. A few men there were, who being highly intellectual, possessed of a poetic temperament, and trained under this philosophy became almost gorgeously grand, by as much as anything, being placed in contrast with the ignorance and intellectual abasement of the masses around them. Dr. Macleod's philosophy, being of a similar kind, must produce similar results—the formation of three classes of men, viz., a few magnificent impractical scholars, a larger number of impractical, unproductive professional loungers—and a great mass of men who have not the taste nor opportunity to ally themselves with either of the two former, and who yet must become altogether inefficient, because they never can have imparted to them a knowledge or even a taste for practical science or scientific labor.

The old dreamers met their foe at last. A deliverer came. Lord Bacon (quoted by Dr. Macleod) appeared and announced his new gospel—"I meditate the inauguration of a philosophy which has nothing of a fruitless impractical nature, and which avowedly tends to improve the conditions of human life." The new philosophy rapidly spread, the masses at once became interested, and the results are to be seen to-day all over the world in the development of the arts and sciences and the improvement of the means of comfort and happiness of men.

The old faith, however, is not yet extinct, of which we have proof even among ourselves. In this country we have made some changes, but a great deal still remains to be done. Some of our educational officials should be sent abroad to catch the spirit of improvement and learn the new methods. Our old teachers will, of course, oppose any radical change, as this will be against their cherished convictions and habits, and will necessitate increased labor on their part.

I feel strongly on this matter. When I left College, the last of the educational series, I knew nothing, for I had heard nothing of the natural sciences, of the most rudimentary principles of mechanics and such like; and when asked about these matters, I had to confess, to my shame, my total ignorance. The damage to me is irreparable. I had learned something of abstract principles which probably "did" observe the organization of brain and thought," but as I thought of being something else than an angel while in this world, it did not suffice. I had heard quite a lot about the wives, and loves, and hates, and vengeful ire, and drunken revels, and paternal solicitude of the heathen gods and goddesses, but all these things avail me but little.

A great part of our revenues, both country and civic, is spent in educational matter. It is the duty of our statesmen to see that it is spent to a far better purpose than it is at present, and this cannot be done too soon.

A Citizen's Complaint

Sir,—I received the following letter through the mail, and as it shows the feeling of some of the working class of men towards our City Fathers, I wish you would be kind enough to publish it.

C. HEARTZ.

Mr. Hartz, please rite another letter against the disgraceful reform city council—not a bit of work done in ward 5 and so many poor men idle, every one of the city men dressed like gentlemen, and poor honest men looking for work, and your friend McKinnon of the foundry wants to close all the pumps and give poor peop'e no water. Dont spare this fellow the next time you write for the paper, A WORK MAN.

Three dog kennelwood rods, bankrupt stock, bought cheap, will be sold low. Call and see them at Reddin Bros.

Fish tackle—all the latest flies in stock at Reddin Bros.

Paris green, insect powder, hellebore, cheap at Reddin Bros.

Do You Like Fun?

Real, good, solid fun? If you don't you must be sick and require some medicine (probably Everybody's Pills) but if you do you ought to have a camera. You can then have lots of fun taking pictures, and live it all over again when showing them to your friends. In either case call. We can supply the medicine or the camera. Illustrated catalogue and price list on application.

1893 SWIFT!

THAT the "SWIFT" is the best wheel made in ENGLAND, and that it is second to none in AMERICA, any unprejudiced wheelman will say after a fair test of this Machine's powers.

Here are a few plain reasons why the SWIFT, made by the Coventry Machinists' Company, Coventry, England, the oldest Cycle Manufacturers in the world, is the acme of all that is great and good in a strictly high grade wheel.

BECAUSE it is simple, and the adjustment and bearings accurate.

BECAUSE it is light and strong—correct proportions not weight give strength.

BECAUSE its roller forged chain reduces friction to a minimum.

BECAUSE it is not possible to make a better wheel.

Many more equally strong reasons can be given why the "SWIFT" is THE wheel. I will have a sample wheel here in a few days. Hold your orders until you have seen it. Now is the time to buy the "SWIFT."
