

HEALTH REPORT

City of Fredericton, N. B., Showing Marked Decrease in Deaths from Kidney Diseases.

Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Bladder and Urinary Complaints, Woman's Weakness, Blood Disorders—All Kidney Diseases—Decreasing—Dodd's Kidney Pills the Cause.

FR. DERICTON, N. B., Dec 1.—There has been a decided falling off in deaths from the various forms of Kidney Disease in this city of late. This decrease can only be ascribed to Dodd's Kidney Pills, the wonderful remedy so much used throughout the Maritime Provinces, and the whole of Canada, this last ten years.

Deaths from Bright's Disease are now-a-days very rare. Formerly death was certain to follow in the due course of the disease. There was positively no cure. Dodd's Kidney Pills was absolutely the first remedy discovered for Bright's Disease.

Similarly there are few if any deaths from Diabetes now-a-days. Diabetes was a so incurable not such a great while ago. Dodd's Kidney Pills was the first medicine to reach it, and up to date it is the only one, though there are worthless imitations of it.

Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Bladder and Urinary Complaints, Female Weakness and Blood Disorders—all forms of Kidney Disease—rarely develop into a dangerous stage owing to the universal use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

AN ODD EXPERIENCE.

THE STORY OF A STRANGE MISSION TO A DESERT ISLAND.

In the Queer Business Figured a Big Coffin and a Dead Chinese Mandarin Who May Not Have Been a Dead Chinaman After All.

"I've spent a good many years round these islands," said the night watch on a yacht in the Santa Barbara channel, "and I've had some singular experiences. Last winter I spent in Santa Barbara, only coming to the island occasionally. One day a Chinaman came to my lodgings and asked me if I knew San Nicolas, the bleakest and windiest of all the California islands. I said I did.

"You know mandarin?" he asked. "Lung Kow allee samee mandarin; he go San Nicolas; allee samee dead man. You sabe?"

"In short, the Chinaman was a representative of the Six Companies of San Francisco, and the mandarin, Lung Kow, had taken a trip for his health to the island with a party of abalone hunters and had died on the desolate spot. He was a big man, and so a delegation of Chinamen had been sent to Santa Barbara to charter a vessel to go to San Nicolas to bring him to mainland. We soon struck a bargain and set sail. The island lies well out to sea, where it blows half a gale nearly all the time, and there are no safe harbors. My schooner was a little fore and after, with a small cockpit and cabin, which just about held the four Chinamen, while cross deck, amidships, they stowed a bronze coffin. The men, as near as I could make out, seemed to be priests of rank and went on regular watch duty from the time they started. They crowded into the cabin and lit their pipes and kept them going all the way over. As soon as we got under sail one of them threw a lot of paper into the air, repeating something in Chinese. This was to give the vessel good luck. The others burned punk in the cabin.

"We reached the island one night when it was blowing furiously, and we lay on the edge of the kelp till morning. The landing was through a channel about 20 feet wide, with a wall of rock on each side. When you got in it was all right.

A WRONG IDEA OF... DYSPEPSIA

Throws all the Blame on the Stomach—The Real Seat of Trouble is the Intestines—The Permanent Cure is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is an old idea long since exploded that digestion is confined to the stomach. No modern scientist denies that by far the greater part of digestion and the more difficult part takes place in the intestines. This explains why dyspepsia is never really cured by preparations which merely aid stomach digestion and act only on the stomach.

This fact also explains why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been so remarkably successful as a cure for the worst forms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act directly on the kidneys, liver and bowels, and give new tone and vigor to the intestines, and make them able to perform their work of digesting the substances on which the stomach has no effect.

Stomach treatment may do well enough for slight indigestion, but if you have chronic indigestion or dyspepsia of a serious nature you can profit by the experience of scores of thousands who have been permanently cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

as there was a cove and sandy beach. The Chinamen had brought one of their boats, a clumsy affair, and we all put off in her with the heavy coffin lashed to the seats. The sea was still high, and while we rowed the Chinamen threw paper and waved their punk sticks. I was looking for trouble, and just as we reached the narrow channel the sea dropped away from the bow, the stern flew up in the air, and a big wave struck the flat bottom of the boat, sending her stern over bow into the cove, and spilling every one into the water. When the Chinamen recovered from their fright they rushed for the boat, and, hauling her up, unfastened the coffin and laid it on the beach. The abalone hunters met us, and there was more bowing and more punk burned, and then the men took the coffin on their shoulders and we followed the abalone hunters.

Well, my partner and I took turns at carrying the coffin with the Chinamen, and for several miles followed the abalone men over the hills and sand to a remote spot where the grave was pointed out. Now came the funny part of it. Naturally you would think they would do all the work of taking up the body, but they indicated that they expected us to do it, and as we had been paid to do the work there was no backing out. The Chinamen thrust lighted punk in the sand all about and went through many postulations while we dug. The Mandarin had simply been laid in the sand with his robes about him and his red-buttoned hat on. We got him up, put him in the coffin and bolted it down. Then the Chinamen threw handfuls of papers in the air, uttering cries and bowing to the body, to the east and west.

"We finally got the coffin tripped to two long poles and began the march back. I've taken some hard and curious tramps in my time, but that discounted them all. The Chinamen were thoroughly frightened—you know they think the wind is a living thing, and when it began to howl and roar and fill the air with stones and dirt they would stop and point at the black fog bank that looked like a big dragon, then start off again, plowing through the drifting sand, sometimes almost losing sight of the guide ahead. Finally we reached the beach. The yacht was lying on the edge of the kelp, about 200 yards off shore and riding on a pretty good swell that set in from the west, but the junkboat came in all right and we hauled her up, high and dry.

"Remembering their experience, the Chinamen wanted us to wait until the sea went down; but we explained that there was always a sea running, so they consented to try it. They evidently were determined to take no chances, as they first placed the heavy coffin, now heavier than ever, amidships, and lashed it in, then put my partner and me at the oars, while the dead Chinaman took his place in the boat with his hand on the coffin.

After much excitement we got the coffin in the falls and landed it on deck, putting it across the house. That night the only dry place was the coffin, so I piled my blankets on top of it and was fast asleep on top of the Mandarin when I felt some one pulling at me and found the whole party about me. They had a sort of hourly service and had formed in a procession in the cockpit, and, when they reached the coffin, were horrified to find me there. Their peculiar rites were kept up during the entire trip, and it was months before we got rid of the smell of opium and punk. The body was shipped to San Francisco under the same guard."

"And that was the last of Lung Kow?" asked one of the yachtsmen. "I don't know about that," replied the sailor. "The next week we saw in a San Francisco paper that a lot of smuggled opium had been captured in a coffin, and we began to think that the Mandarin was just an ordinary dummy Chinaman, packed with opium cases, which had been landed at San Nicolas and taken away by us. It looked that way."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.
