

MR. AND MRS. J. C. MACKINNON

Pretty Summer Wedding At Trinity United Church

A pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. C. R. Webber in Summerside Trinity United Church on June 27 at 2 p.m., when Joyce Elsie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Edwards, became the bride of James Colin MacKinnon, son of Mr. and Mrs. George MacKinnon, Summerside. Mrs. Eric Sheen was organist and accompanied Miss Ruth Ramsay, as she sang "O Perfect" previous to the ceremony and "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her princess styled wedding gown of white Chantilly lace and net over taffeta, floor length, featuring a fitted bodice with long tapering sleeves and a tiny stand-up collar with sequin trim. Her shoulder length veil of bridal illusion fell from a shirred band of tulle and she carried a cascade bouquet of Briarcliff roses. Miss Vivian Edwards, her sister's maid of honor, was gowned in yellow net over taffeta with matching headband and mits and carried a bouquet of Pink Delight roses. Miss Gwendolyn MacDonald, niece of the bride, as bridesmaid, was gowned in matine net over taffeta, with matching head-dress and mits and carried a nosegay of Queen Elizabeth roses. Donna MacKinnon, niece of the groom, as flower girl, was charming in a mint green dress with a border of white daisies, with white accessories and carried a basket of Queen Elizabeth roses. Mr. Ewen MacKinnon, brother-in-law, Messrs. Gordon Huestis and Elmer Crossman ushered the guests to the pews which were marked with white bows, centered with yellow mums. Mrs. Edwards chose for her daughter's wedding a flowered sheath - style dress, with tangerine duster and beige accessories. Her corsage was of white roses. The groom's mother was attired in a two - piece blue dress with black and white accessories and a corsage of white roses. A reception was held at Shinning Waters Lodge, Cavendish, where the bride's table, with its attractive arrangement of summer flowers and lighted tapers, centered a three - tier wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom. Miss Eunice Isman was in charge of the guest book. For the honeymoon trip through the Maritimes, the bride wore a two - piece beige dress with mint green and brown accessories and a corsage of Queen Elizabeth roses. Mr. and Mrs. MacKinnon will reside in Summerside. Previous to her marriage the bride was on the office staff of Steadman's Ltd. (Heckbert Studio)

ROLLO BAY WEST W. I.
Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Claude Dixon were joint hostesses to the members of the Rollo Bay West W.I. on Monday evening, July 13. Eight members and one visitor was present. The meeting opened by repeating the Creed in unison, followed by roll call. Minutes of last monthly meeting were read and approved. Reports of committees were heard. There was no correspondence. Three members collected for Retarded Children's fund and obtained the sum of $20.25. Government grant of $2.50 was received. A discussion took place on holding an ice cream and strawberry festival, it was moved by Mrs. Guy Coffin and seconded by Mrs. Major Reid that same be held in school on Wednesday evening July 22 at 7 p.m. Collection amounted to 90 cents. There being no August meeting the September meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Campbell. Meeting was then adjourned and a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, and a social hour followed.

CLYDE RIVER W.M.S.
The monthly meeting of the Clyde River Presbyterian W.M.S. was held on July 13 in the church, with an attendance of 22 members. The devotional leader was Mrs. Lorne MacNevin. The theme was "The Fruit of the Spirit is Goodness." Psalm selection 97 was sung. The scripture reading was taken from Hebrews 13, verses 1-21, followed by prayer by several members. Mrs. Killen gave an explanation of Matthew 26. Offering amounted to $5.20, and was dedicated by Mrs. Killen. The minutes of the last meeting were read followed by roll call answered with a verse containing word "spirit". Next meeting will be held in the church, roll call to be answered by verse containing word "faith". Mrs. Keith Young to be devotional leader. Meeting closed with hymn 496 followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Women

Lena Caroline McLure, Women's Editor, Phone 6508

The Guardian, Charlottetown, Sat., July 18, 1959. 7

Presentation Made To Valued Lodge Members

The Memorial Lodge, No. 266 met in the lodge room on July 11 with a good attendance. The W. M. Florence Gillespie was in the chair. Gladys Doiron was Deputy Mistress. The usual routine of opening was followed. Flags presented by Mrs. Earnest Bulman and Mrs. Fred Shaw. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the recording secretary, Jennie Beaton, and were approved. The financial secretary and treasurer were heard from. The business of the meeting finished, the highlight of the meeting was Sister Jessie Larter, the most Worshipful Grand Junior Deputy of British America, who has just returned from attending the Grand Lodge in Edmonton. She was brought before the Altar by the director of Ceremonies, Rena Murphy, and after receiving honors was presented with a gift by the W.M. on behalf of the members of the lodge. Sister Larter, taken by surprise, in a few well chosen words thanked the members. Later on in the evening another presentation was made by the Worthy Mistress to Edith Taylor who is leaving to make her home elsewhere. She spoke feelingly of her association with the lodge and thanked the members for the appreciation shown to her. A social hour was followed by a delicious lunch served by Mrs. Muttow, and Mrs. Pursey. At the previous meeting a presentation was made to the Rev. and Mrs. Forsythe of Covehead who are leaving for N.B. An address was read by Jennie Beaton and the W.M. presented with a gift. Both Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe thanked the lodge and expressed their regret on leaving.

Three months later, Harry proposed. When he told his sister, she stormed up to my apartment, crying, almost shrieking that he couldn't marry a penniless widow with a child; he hadn't enough money, his health wasn't good, what was I thinking of, etc.—all very astounding, as she had been fostering our romance previously. When Harry proposed, I had mentioned that Nora would be losing a lot, if he married; but he said no, that she had men friends and admirers, to take his place as her companion. (They go everywhere together, though living in separate apartments.)

SISTER SUGGESTS AFFAIR
A few days later, we three dined together. She sent Harry on an errand and suggested confidentially that I have an affair with him, and not marry—"a serious affair," she said, "as Harry would be very good to you, and faithful." I rejected this and she didn't argue. She contrived to break up his plan to have Thanksgiving lunch with my small family circle and inveigled him into a last-minute trip to her home state for the weekend. This led to two months' leave of absence from his work to settle a relatives' estate—a turn of events she narrated to me in tones of singing triumph. At Christmas, a widower, an old friend of my husband's, called bearing gifts, and asked me to marry him—saying he had thought it over for a year, and believed it would profit both of us. Harry was still away; and when he phoned—as he often did, to speak of his love for me—I asked when he'd be back. He was evasive and I feeling angry, said I was thinking of marrying someone else. Bang! That did it!

WIDOW ACCUSED
His sister came around to accuse me of "leading him on" and "playing with his love." She said he certainly always had wanted to marry me; but now they saw I had never wanted him! He wrote saying I had broken his heart—as if I had thrown him over! I do love him and was trying, of course, to bring him rushing back; but still he didn't come. I was a fool all along. I suppose. I imagine they thought I would fall for an affair. He returned in March and I saw them on the street. He looked at me as if I had stabbed him. She suggested we have dinner together. I excused myself. I want to see him but not that way. I feel I should forget him. Am I right? I mean, in thinking it will lead

Three Sisters Lodge at Borden and the Juvenile trophy went to Lady Margaret J.O.L. Beattie, for the second consecutive year. The trophies were presented during the sessions. Get Your Vacation Needs at Parkdale Pharmacy St. Peter's Rd. Dial 6822 Open Every Night Till 9 p.m. Sunday's 1:00 to 9:00 p.m. ● Smiles 'n' Chuckles ● Chocolates ● Prescriptions ● Sunglasses ● Color film ● Cameras

ADULT POLIO CLINIC
FOR 1st., 2nd., 3rd. INOCULATIONS FOR Borden and Surrounding Districts AT BORDEN LEGION HALL MONDAY, JULY 20th. 7 TO 9 P.M.

Just in time for the Ball...
1/2 PRICE SALE!!
• Capes and Stoles •
RUSSIAN MARMOT CLUTCH CAPE REG. $5.00 SALE 47.50
MUSKRAT STOLE AND CAPES (6 only) REG. 125.00 SALE 64.50
KOLINSKY TIE COLLARS (3 only) REG. 125.00 SALE 62.50
CHINA MINK STOLE (2 only) from SALE 94.50
RUSSIAN BROWN SQUIRREL Capes and Stoles (6 only) from 117.50
RANCH MINK STOLE (1 only) REG. 345.00 SALE 172.50
WILD MINK STOLE (1 only) REG. 325.00 SALE 192.50
SAPPHIRE MINK STOLE (1 only) REG. 460.00 SALE 230.00
DESERT GOLD MINK Shoulder Capes (2 only) REG. 255.00 SALE 127.50
DROPSKIN KOLINSKY Pocket Stole (1 only) REG. 325.00 SALE 162.50
CASH PRICES — NO RETURNS
ISLAND FURRIERS LTD.
79 GRAFTON ST. CHARLOTTETOWN DIAL 6923

MARY HAWORTH

Matrimonial Interest Sister Sabotages This

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a self-supporting widow, 46, with a daughter, 13. Last summer we vacationed at a seaside resort, where we were introduced to a charming brother and sister—be, 56; she, 52—from the city in which we live. My daughter gravitated to children's play and I saw a good deal of this pair. Three months later, Harry proposed. When he told his sister, she stormed up to my apartment, crying, almost shrieking that he couldn't marry a penniless widow with a child; he hadn't enough money, his health wasn't good, what was I thinking of, etc.—all very astounding, as she had been fostering our romance previously. When Harry proposed, I had mentioned that Nora would be losing a lot, if he married; but he said no, that she had men friends and admirers, to take his place as her companion. (They go everywhere together, though living in separate apartments.)

SISTER SUGGESTS AFFAIR
A few days later, we three dined together. She sent Harry on an errand and suggested confidentially that I have an affair with him, and not marry—"a serious affair," she said, "as Harry would be very good to you, and faithful." I rejected this and she didn't argue. She contrived to break up his plan to have Thanksgiving lunch with my small family circle and inveigled him into a last-minute trip to her home state for the weekend. This led to two months' leave of absence from his work to settle a relatives' estate—a turn of events she narrated to me in tones of singing triumph. At Christmas, a widower, an old friend of my husband's, called bearing gifts, and asked me to marry him—saying he had thought it over for a year, and believed it would profit both of us. Harry was still away; and when he phoned—as he often did, to speak of his love for me—I asked when he'd be back. He was evasive and I feeling angry, said I was thinking of marrying someone else. Bang! That did it!

WIDOW ACCUSED
His sister came around to accuse me of "leading him on" and "playing with his love." She said he certainly always had wanted to marry me; but now they saw I had never wanted him! He wrote saying I had broken his heart—as if I had thrown him over! I do love him and was trying, of course, to bring him rushing back; but still he didn't come. I was a fool all along. I suppose. I imagine they thought I would fall for an affair. He returned in March and I saw them on the street. He looked at me as if I had stabbed him. She suggested we have dinner together. I excused myself. I want to see him but not that way. I feel I should forget him. Am I right? I mean, in thinking it will lead

So, sensing the attraction between Harry and you, at the seaside resort last summer, she went into her act of promoting a romance—partly as excuse to stay in the picture as a manipulative agent in the courting situation. Had she been sincere, in fanning interest, Harry might be married to you by now. Or he might not. Even he wouldn't know, because he moved by events; he does not rule himself.

CLOSE THE BOOK
As it turns out, she strangled his proposal—at birth; you might say—and alertly twisted things around to wreck the friendship, meanwhile pretending for Harry's benefit in his presence, that she is amiably disposed towards you. (For instance, in asking you to dine with them just lately; after "doing you in," figuratively speaking.) You are right indeed to recognize that they spell trouble and nothing else, where you are concerned. Ring down the curtain on

SINCE 1882 Funeral Service IN NEW ENGLAND
Our Athol D. MacLeod is familiar with your funeral problems for New England. Contact him for prompt and efficient service. SERVICE IS A "LONG" WORD
A. E. Long & Son, Inc.
1979 Massachusetts Avenue CAMBRIDGE 40, MASS.
Tel. Thro-bridge 6-5080

MARY HAWORTH

Matrimonial Interest Sister Sabotages This

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a self-supporting widow, 46, with a daughter, 13. Last summer we vacationed at a seaside resort, where we were introduced to a charming brother and sister—be, 56; she, 52—from the city in which we live. My daughter gravitated to children's play and I saw a good deal of this pair. Three months later, Harry proposed. When he told his sister, she stormed up to my apartment, crying, almost shrieking that he couldn't marry a penniless widow with a child; he hadn't enough money, his health wasn't good, what was I thinking of, etc.—all very astounding, as she had been fostering our romance previously. When Harry proposed, I had mentioned that Nora would be losing a lot, if he married; but he said no, that she had men friends and admirers, to take his place as her companion. (They go everywhere together, though living in separate apartments.)

SISTER SUGGESTS AFFAIR
A few days later, we three dined together. She sent Harry on an errand and suggested confidentially that I have an affair with him, and not marry—"a serious affair," she said, "as Harry would be very good to you, and faithful." I rejected this and she didn't argue. She contrived to break up his plan to have Thanksgiving lunch with my small family circle and inveigled him into a last-minute trip to her home state for the weekend. This led to two months' leave of absence from his work to settle a relatives' estate—a turn of events she narrated to me in tones of singing triumph. At Christmas, a widower, an old friend of my husband's, called bearing gifts, and asked me to marry him—saying he had thought it over for a year, and believed it would profit both of us. Harry was still away; and when he phoned—as he often did, to speak of his love for me—I asked when he'd be back. He was evasive and I feeling angry, said I was thinking of marrying someone else. Bang! That did it!

WIDOW ACCUSED
His sister came around to accuse me of "leading him on" and "playing with his love." She said he certainly always had wanted to marry me; but now they saw I had never wanted him! He wrote saying I had broken his heart—as if I had thrown him over! I do love him and was trying, of course, to bring him rushing back; but still he didn't come. I was a fool all along. I suppose. I imagine they thought I would fall for an affair. He returned in March and I saw them on the street. He looked at me as if I had stabbed him. She suggested we have dinner together. I excused myself. I want to see him but not that way. I feel I should forget him. Am I right? I mean, in thinking it will lead

So, sensing the attraction between Harry and you, at the seaside resort last summer, she went into her act of promoting a romance—partly as excuse to stay in the picture as a manipulative agent in the courting situation. Had she been sincere, in fanning interest, Harry might be married to you by now. Or he might not. Even he wouldn't know, because he moved by events; he does not rule himself.

CLOSE THE BOOK
As it turns out, she strangled his proposal—at birth; you might say—and alertly twisted things around to wreck the friendship, meanwhile pretending for Harry's benefit in his presence, that she is amiably disposed towards you. (For instance, in asking you to dine with them just lately; after "doing you in," figuratively speaking.) You are right indeed to recognize that they spell trouble and nothing else, where you are concerned. Ring down the curtain on

SINCE 1882 Funeral Service IN NEW ENGLAND
Our Athol D. MacLeod is familiar with your funeral problems for New England. Contact him for prompt and efficient service. SERVICE IS A "LONG" WORD
A. E. Long & Son, Inc.
1979 Massachusetts Avenue CAMBRIDGE 40, MASS.
Tel. Thro-bridge 6-5080

MARY HAWORTH

Matrimonial Interest Sister Sabotages This

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a self-supporting widow, 46, with a daughter, 13. Last summer we vacationed at a seaside resort, where we were introduced to a charming brother and sister—be, 56; she, 52—from the city in which we live. My daughter gravitated to children's play and I saw a good deal of this pair. Three months later, Harry proposed. When he told his sister, she stormed up to my apartment, crying, almost shrieking that he couldn't marry a penniless widow with a child; he hadn't enough money, his health wasn't good, what was I thinking of, etc.—all very astounding, as she had been fostering our romance previously. When Harry proposed, I had mentioned that Nora would be losing a lot, if he married; but he said no, that she had men friends and admirers, to take his place as her companion. (They go everywhere together, though living in separate apartments.)

SISTER SUGGESTS AFFAIR
A few days later, we three dined together. She sent Harry on an errand and suggested confidentially that I have an affair with him, and not marry—"a serious affair," she said, "as Harry would be very good to you, and faithful." I rejected this and she didn't argue. She contrived to break up his plan to have Thanksgiving lunch with my small family circle and inveigled him into a last-minute trip to her home state for the weekend. This led to two months' leave of absence from his work to settle a relatives' estate—a turn of events she narrated to me in tones of singing triumph. At Christmas, a widower, an old friend of my husband's, called bearing gifts, and asked me to marry him—saying he had thought it over for a year, and believed it would profit both of us. Harry was still away; and when he phoned—as he often did, to speak of his love for me—I asked when he'd be back. He was evasive and I feeling angry, said I was thinking of marrying someone else. Bang! That did it!

WIDOW ACCUSED
His sister came around to accuse me of "leading him on" and "playing with his love." She said he certainly always had wanted to marry me; but now they saw I had never wanted him! He wrote saying I had broken his heart—as if I had thrown him over! I do love him and was trying, of course, to bring him rushing back; but still he didn't come. I was a fool all along. I suppose. I imagine they thought I would fall for an affair. He returned in March and I saw them on the street. He looked at me as if I had stabbed him. She suggested we have dinner together. I excused myself. I want to see him but not that way. I feel I should forget him. Am I right? I mean, in thinking it will lead

So, sensing the attraction between Harry and you, at the seaside resort last summer, she went into her act of promoting a romance—partly as excuse to stay in the picture as a manipulative agent in the courting situation. Had she been sincere, in fanning interest, Harry might be married to you by now. Or he might not. Even he wouldn't know, because he moved by events; he does not rule himself.

CLOSE THE BOOK
As it turns out, she strangled his proposal—at birth; you might say—and alertly twisted things around to wreck the friendship, meanwhile pretending for Harry's benefit in his presence, that she is amiably disposed towards you. (For instance, in asking you to dine with them just lately; after "doing you in," figuratively speaking.) You are right indeed to recognize that they spell trouble and nothing else, where you are concerned. Ring down the curtain on

SINCE 1882 Funeral Service IN NEW ENGLAND
Our Athol D. MacLeod is familiar with your funeral problems for New England. Contact him for prompt and efficient service. SERVICE IS A "LONG" WORD
A. E. Long & Son, Inc.
1979 Massachusetts Avenue CAMBRIDGE 40, MASS.
Tel. Thro-bridge 6-5080

MARY HAWORTH

Matrimonial Interest Sister Sabotages This

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a self-supporting widow, 46, with a daughter, 13. Last summer we vacationed at a seaside resort, where we were introduced to a charming brother and sister—be, 56; she, 52—from the city in which we live. My daughter gravitated to children's play and I saw a good deal of this pair. Three months later, Harry proposed. When he told his sister, she stormed up to my apartment, crying, almost shrieking that he couldn't marry a penniless widow with a child; he hadn't enough money, his health wasn't good, what was I thinking of, etc.—all very astounding, as she had been fostering our romance previously. When Harry proposed, I had mentioned that Nora would be losing a lot, if he married; but he said no, that she had men friends and admirers, to take his place as her companion. (They go everywhere together, though living in separate apartments.)

SISTER SUGGESTS AFFAIR
A few days later, we three dined together. She sent Harry on an errand and suggested confidentially that I have an affair with him, and not marry—"a serious affair," she said, "as Harry would be very good to you, and faithful." I rejected this and she didn't argue. She contrived to break up his plan to have Thanksgiving lunch with my small family circle and inveigled him into a last-minute trip to her home state for the weekend. This led to two months' leave of absence from his work to settle a relatives' estate—a turn of events she narrated to me in tones of singing triumph. At Christmas, a widower, an old friend of my husband's, called bearing gifts, and asked me to marry him—saying he had thought it over for a year, and believed it would profit both of us. Harry was still away; and when he phoned—as he often did, to speak of his love for me—I asked when he'd be back. He was evasive and I feeling angry, said I was thinking of marrying someone else. Bang! That did it!

WIDOW ACCUSED
His sister came around to accuse me of "leading him on" and "playing with his love." She said he certainly always had wanted to marry me; but now they saw I had never wanted him! He wrote saying I had broken his heart—as if I had thrown him over! I do love him and was trying, of course, to bring him rushing back; but still he didn't come. I was a fool all along. I suppose. I imagine they thought I would fall for an affair. He returned in March and I saw them on the street. He looked at me as if I had stabbed him. She suggested we have dinner together. I excused myself. I want to see him but not that way. I feel I should forget him. Am I right? I mean, in thinking it will lead

So, sensing the attraction between Harry and you, at the seaside resort last summer, she went into her act of promoting a romance—partly as excuse to stay in the picture as a manipulative agent in the courting situation. Had she been sincere, in fanning interest, Harry might be married to you by now. Or he might not. Even he wouldn't know, because he moved by events; he does not rule himself.

CLOSE THE BOOK
As it turns out, she strangled his proposal—at birth; you might say—and alertly twisted things around to wreck the friendship, meanwhile pretending for Harry's benefit in his presence, that she is amiably disposed towards you. (For instance, in asking you to dine with them just lately; after "doing you in," figuratively speaking.) You are right indeed to recognize that they spell trouble and nothing else, where you are concerned. Ring down the curtain on

SINCE 1882 Funeral Service IN NEW ENGLAND
Our Athol D. MacLeod is familiar with your funeral problems for New England. Contact him for prompt and efficient service. SERVICE IS A "LONG" WORD
A. E. Long & Son, Inc.
1979 Massachusetts Avenue CAMBRIDGE 40, MASS.
Tel. Thro-bridge 6-5080

MARY HAWORTH

Matrimonial Interest Sister Sabotages This

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a self-supporting widow, 46, with a daughter, 13. Last summer we vacationed at a seaside resort, where we were introduced to a charming brother and sister—be, 56; she, 52—from the city in which we live. My daughter gravitated to children's play and I saw a good deal of this pair. Three months later, Harry proposed. When he told his sister, she stormed up to my apartment, crying, almost shrieking that he couldn't marry a penniless widow with a child; he hadn't enough money, his health wasn't good, what was I thinking of, etc.—all very astounding, as she had been fostering our romance previously. When Harry proposed, I had mentioned that Nora would be losing a lot, if he married; but he said no, that she had men friends and admirers, to take his place as her companion. (They go everywhere together, though living in separate apartments.)

SISTER SUGGESTS AFFAIR
A few days later, we three dined together. She sent Harry on an errand and suggested confidentially that I have an affair with him, and not marry—"a serious affair," she said, "as Harry would be very good to you, and faithful." I rejected this and she didn't argue. She contrived to break up his plan to have Thanksgiving lunch with my small family circle and inveigled him into a last-minute trip to her home state for the weekend. This led to two months' leave of absence from his work to settle a relatives' estate—a turn of events she narrated to me in tones of singing triumph. At Christmas, a widower, an old friend of my husband's, called bearing gifts, and asked me to marry him—saying he had thought it over for a year, and believed it would profit both of us. Harry was still away; and when he phoned—as he often did, to speak of his love for me—I asked when he'd be back. He was evasive and I feeling angry, said I was thinking of marrying someone else. Bang! That did it!

WIDOW ACCUSED
His sister came around to accuse me of "leading him on" and "playing with his love." She said he certainly always had wanted to marry me; but now they saw I had never wanted him! He wrote saying I had broken his heart—as if I had thrown him over! I do love him and was trying, of course, to bring him rushing back; but still he didn't come. I was a fool all along. I suppose. I imagine they thought I would fall for an affair. He returned in March and I saw them on the street. He looked at me as if I had stabbed him. She suggested we have dinner together. I excused myself. I want to see him but not that way. I feel I should forget him. Am I right? I mean, in thinking it will lead

So, sensing the attraction between Harry and you, at the seaside resort last summer, she went into her act of promoting a romance—partly as excuse to stay in the picture as a manipulative agent in the courting situation. Had she been sincere, in fanning interest, Harry might be married to you by now. Or he might not. Even he wouldn't know, because he moved by events; he does not rule himself.

CLOSE THE BOOK
As it turns out, she strangled his proposal—at birth; you might say—and alertly twisted things around to wreck the friendship, meanwhile pretending for Harry's benefit in his presence, that she is amiably disposed towards you. (For instance, in asking you to dine with them just lately; after "doing you in," figuratively speaking.) You are right indeed to recognize that they spell trouble and nothing else, where you are concerned. Ring down the curtain on

SINCE 1882 Funeral Service IN NEW ENGLAND
Our Athol D. MacLeod is familiar with your funeral problems for New England. Contact him for prompt and efficient service. SERVICE IS A "LONG" WORD
A. E. Long & Son, Inc.
1979 Massachusetts Avenue CAMBRIDGE 40, MASS.
Tel. Thro-bridge 6-5080

Covehead Congregational Tea
The annual Covehead Congregational Tea will be held on the grounds of
WEST COVEHEAD CHURCH
WEDNESDAY, JULY 22
EVERYONE WELCOME!

Kings College School
A RESIDENTIAL SCHOOL FOR BOYS
GRADE V TO MATRICULATION
Four Square Education and development for your son
1. Emphasis is on sound academic training, hard work and high standards. Small classes permit personal attention for each boy.
2. The school provides religious instruction and the opportunity for daily worship.
3. Every boy who is physically fit is required to take part in games, cadets and school activities.
4. The school exercises careful supervision with discipline. Maximum attention is given to round development.
Well equipped residences; an ideal atmosphere for development of character and personality; free from outside distractions. Applications now being received for SEPTEMBER 1959. For details apply to:
WINDSOR, NOVA SCOTIA
L. R. GESNER, B.A., Dip. Ed., Headmaster.

CARNIVAL CLIMAX!
Many of The Memorable Events of Summerside's Lobster Carnival Will Be Made Easy To Remember in
THE EVENING PATRIOT'S PICTURE REPORT
... A Special Saturday Feature of July 18th!
The Evening Patriot is a daily newspaper tailored to the tastes of urban readers ... and presents frequent picture reports upon the most interesting aspects of Island living. The fine picture report from Summerside's Lobster Carnival, one of the highlights of the summer season in Prince Edward Island, is typical of Patriot services.
Watch For The Carnival Picture Report This Saturday
The Guardian - The Evening Patriot