

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JUNE 20, 1884.

James G. Blaine.

It is to be regretted that many journals, including a large number of those published in Canada, are misrepresenting and maligning the nominee of the Republicans for the office of President.

That Mr. Blaine was the choice of the great mass of the Republican party is evident, and it is admitted he did not seek the nomination. It was distinctly understood that he had no desire for the honor.

Training of Active Militia. The Active Militia of this Military District will perform their annual training in Brigade Camp, at Hunter River, commencing 1st July next.

An American paper, a firm and ardent supporter of Mr. Blaine, says of him: "Mr. Blaine is now in his 55th year. Although above medium height, he is so compactly built that he scarcely seems tall."

gestures are full of grace and fire; his self-possession is never lost. He has appeared on the stump in almost every Northern State, and is an exceedingly popular and affectionate campaign orator.

Mr. Blaine is the possessor of a handsome fortune, acquired through shrewd and prudent management of a valuable coal tract in Pennsylvania, which he has owned for the last twenty years.
