Poetry.

ELLEN.

(From the Daily Colonist.)

"Where is my Ellen? can no one tell?"

Parent—Mysterious thought! to think of thee!
O, Death! then what art thou?
For thou hast borne my dear from me;
Oh! where is Ellen now?

Death—Oh! sigh not, fond parent, nor ask me where
The joys of a spirit, or how she fares;
Her body thou knowest now lies in the grave,
Her soul is with Jesus, who surely will save.

Parent—Her face had lost the happy smile,
She in thy grasp was weak,
Her cheeks were red, her lips were pale,
Yet she was mild and meek.

Death—Though her hand in my grasp, was trembling and weak,
And the bright lovely smile had gone from her cheek,
Like a rose she was plac'd in the "land of the blest."
To bloom ever fair, where the weary have rest.

Parent—But she was blooming here below,
In virtue's wildest grace;
Then why not leave the rose to blow
In its own native place?

Death—Although for a while unto you she was given,
This was but her dwelling, her home was in heaven;
And those who are found in the strait narrow road
I only relieve from an earthly abode.

Parent—Thou could'st have left her to partake
Of joys and pleasures here,
For why should she soon forsake
Her friends and kindred dear.

Death—With friends, and with kindred she could not remain,
And thy loss by my hand is her infinite gain;
Prepare then to meet her in heaven above,
And spend an eternity with her in love.

Parent—Is this thine errand then, O, Death!
No terror shall I feel,
Though thou did'st take away her breath;
This thought the wound shall heal.

Death—Yes, this is my errand, for my great power is gone,
No longer I hold my poor victims unknown;
But quickly, and widely, I wander abroad,
The stern, unsurrendering servant of God!

WORK, NOT WAIT.

BY G. HOOPER.

Wait a little longer."—Street Song.

Full long the promise has gone forth,
Of better times and better days,
When honor shall attend on worth,
And meet reward on honest ways,
The people have been told to wait
Until this golden age appears;
To wait! Why, that has been their fate
For some six thousand years.

To wait is good, to wait is brave?
To wait, it is the hero's part;
But waiting never freed one slave,
Nor healed one single wounded heart.
O Poet, write thy work for Wait,
In humble faith and active deed!
The worker is thy lord of fate;
The man who waits still fails at need.

THE DANCE OF DEATH AT 'AN ALSATIAN WEDDING.—At length, in every body has danced enough, when some have got quite drunk, and others have fought, till they are half or wholly dead, after the girls have changed their tumbled and dusty clothes, the dance of death and resurrection begins. It is executed as follows:—A tree is planted at one side of a dancing floor in the open air, and upon it is fixed a burning candle in a lantern, the size of which is determined by the will of the groomsman or by the state of the weather. In the centre of the dancing floor stands a table with a few chairs upon it for the musicians. All the young men and girls who have taken part in the festivity assemble round the tree, where the newly married pair also stand. The music strikes up in a carnival from the groomsmen, who lead out the bride. They are followed by the bridegroom with the bridesmaid, and then by all the other couples in succession. The waltz tune proper to this occasion is plaintive, languishing, and quiet. At every third turn, the dancers change partners; that is the man steps, leaves his partner, and offers his arm to the next following girl, while his partner passes on to the young man immediately preceding her. Only the bridegroom must on no account dance with the bride; when her turn comes, he makes her a bow and passes on to the next. Nor may any one dance faster or slower than the rest, because usually various objects, such as watches, kerchiefs, and the like, are the prizes of the couples first in due succession. This dance continues under the control of a strong-fisted master of the ceremonies until the taper is burnt out. The purpose of this dance is, that the married couple should now for the last time dance with others. The moment the taper goes out, the leader gives a loud "Dead!" the music ceases, and the partners bow and curtsey to each other. A gallopade strikes up, and the bridegroom kisses his partner three times, as often as they pass the tree. The bride is treated in like manner by her partner. After a certain time, the tune suddenly changes, the bridegroom embraces his partner, and the bride is embraced by hers, and both couples bid each other an eternal farewell, and this is to be the last kiss that man or wife is ever to receive from strange lips. The kissed pair—that is to say, the lucky youth who is now dancing with the bride, and the pair who was waltzing with the bridegroom when the taper went out—are attended to their homes by the company and the music; and it frequently happens, that they really become a pair by marriage in due time. This is the dance of death, to which I shall have occasion to revert at the close of my tale.—Village Tales from Alsatia.

THE ARMIES OF EUROPE.—A late London letter says:—We have very good authority for stating that in 1851 there was no less than 2,773,823 men under arms in Europe as regular soldiers, and if to this number be added the various corps of volunteers, national guards, &c., the aggregate would swell up to 3,000,000—the population of Europe was then estimated at 271,403,000. According to the usual ratio of calculation, one person out of every twenty of the adult population of Europe was then a soldier. Besides this immense army, there was an aggregate fleet of 2,763 vessels, carrying 14,105 guns, manned by at least 150,000 seamen. We cannot compare these figures with any previous statements, but we feel warranted in saying, that never since the commencement of the peace movement, did the face of Europe present so belligerent an appearance.

LOVE.—The following, which we clip from an exchange, is a capital hit on the "love we hear about."

A very pleasing thing is love, as we see it portrayed in books. A tender-hearted swain, without one penny to bless himself withal, is of a sudden put off in a blaze with "a swan-like neck" and "silken eye-lashes." They are immediately seized with a mutual presentiment that they were made for each other, and after a few lonely walks by moonlight, they elude the vigilance of the "stony-hearted father," and are solemnly married, without the least regard to expense. The romancer never tells his reader, how the happy pair get their bread and butter, after marriage, but contents himself with a glowing account of impassioned vows and delightful anticipation, which can only be expressed by the most tender words in the language. The characters are rendered as free from worldly cares, as were our ancestors during the early part of their residence in the Garden of Eden.

HERE IS YOUR REMEDY!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

A MOST MIRACULOUS CURE OF BAD LEGS, AFTER 43 YEARS' SUFFERING.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. William Galpin, of 70, Saint Mary's Street, Weymouth, dated May 15, 1851.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—At the age of 18 my wife (who is now 61) caught a violent cold, which settled in her legs, and ever since that time they have been more or less sore, and greatly inflamed. Her agonies were distracting, and for months together she was deprived entirely of rest and sleep. Every remedy that medical men could advise was tried, but without effect; her health suffered severely, and the state of her legs was such as terrified. I had often read your Advertisements, and advised her to try your Pills and Ointment; and, as a last resource, after every other remedy had proved useless, she consented to do so. She commenced six weeks ago, and, strange to relate, is now in good health. Her legs are painless, without sore or scar, and her sleep sound and undisturbed. Could you have witnessed the sufferings of my wife during the last 43 years, and contrast them with her present enjoyment of health, you would indeed feel delighted in having been the means of so greatly alleviating the sufferings of a fellow creature.

(Signed) WILLIAM GALPIN.

A PERSON 70 YEARS OF AGE CURED OF A BAD LEG, OF THIRTY YEARS' STANDING.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Wm. Abbs, Builder of Gas Ovens, of Rucksiefe, near Huddersfield, dated May 31, 1851.

To Professor HOLLOWAY.

SIR,—I suffered for a period of thirty years from a bad leg, the result of two or three different accidents of a severe nature, accompanied by scorbutic symptoms. I had recourse to a variety of medical advice, without deriving any benefit, and was even told that the leg must be amputated; yes, in spite of this, your Pills and Ointment have effected a complete cure in so short a time, that few who had not witnessed it would credit the fact.

(Signed) WILLIAM ABBS.

The truth of this statement can be verified by Mr. W. P. England, Chemist, 13, Market Street, Huddersfield.

A DREADFUL BAD BREAST CURED IN ONE MONTH.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Frederick Turner, of Penshurst, Kent, dated December 13, 1850.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

DEAR SIR,—My wife had suffered from Bad Breasts for more than six months, and during the whole period had the best medical attendance, but all to no use. Having before healed an ugly wound in my own leg by your unrivalled medicine, I determined again to use your Pills and Ointment, and therefore gave them a trial in her case, and fortunate it was, I did so, for in less than a month a perfect cure was effected, and the benefit that various other branches of my family have derived from their use is really astonishing. I now strongly recommend them to all my friends.

(Signed) FREDRICK TURNER.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF A DANGEROUS SWELLING OF THE KNEE.

Copy of a letter from John Porfar, an Agriculturist, residing at Wrenbrough, near Hexham, dated May 15, 1850.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—I was afflicted with a swelling on each side of the leg, rather above the knee, for nearly two years, which increased to a great size. I had the advice of three different Surgeons, who gave me to understand the Newcastle infirmary for four weeks. After various modes of treatment had been tried, I was discharged as incurable, having heard so much of your Pills and Ointment, I determined to try them, and in less than a month, I was completely cured. What is more remarkable I was engaged twelve hours a day in the Hay Harvest, and although I have followed my laborious occupation throughout the winter, I have had no return whatever of my complaint.

(Signed) JOHN FORFAR.

AN INFLAMMATION IN THE SIDE PERFECTLY CURED.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Francis Arnot, of Breahouse, Lothian Road, Edinbro', dated April 29th, 1851.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—For more than twenty years my wife has been subject, from time to time, to attacks of inflammation in the side, for which she was bled and blistered to a great extent; still the pain could not be removed. About four years ago, she saw in the papers, the wonderful cures effected by your Pills and Ointment, and thought she would give them a trial. To her great astonishment and delight, she got immediate relief from their use, and after persevering for three weeks, the pain in her side was completely cured, and she has enjoyed the best health for the last four years.

(Signed) FRANCIS ARNOT.
