THE ROAD TO HEALTH! HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. CURE OF A DISORDERED LIVER AND BAD DIGESTION.

COPY of a Letter from Mr. R. W. Kirkus, Chemist, 1 Presco Street, London, England, dated 6th June, 1851.

To Professor Holloway. I have been suffering from a violent bilious fever for upwards of 12 months, which has entirely deprived me of the use of my limbs; during this period, I have been under the care of the most eminent medical men in London, but have not obtained any permanent relief. I have since been prevailed upon to try Holloway's celebrated Pills, which I commenced to do, and in an incredible manner, I have been cured of my attack was so alarming, and the inflammation set in so severely, that I was unable to get up, and I was obliged to lie in bed for several days. I was so much relieved that I was induced to try your Pills, and the inform me that after the first, and each successive dose, I had great relief. She continued to take them, and although she used the pills, she was in the enjoyment of perfect health. I could have seen you many more cases, but from the severity of the attack, and the speedy cure, I think, speaks much in favor of your astonishing Pills. (Signed) R. W. KIRKUS.

EMIGRANT'S GLANCE HOMOWARD.

Far, far from those tender watchings broad my eye,
Far from the hedge-row haunts that pleased my youth;
Far from the friends whose gentle teachings led me
To the land of my birth, and the truth;
Even from my peculiar Northern Star,
From every childhood memory I am far!

Perchance so many may meet my foreign ear,
That I should be glad to be invited;
A mother's voice no more may call me dear,
In the fond language only mothers own;
And she, whose name I never can forget,
The loved, the forgotten—where is she!

Ye! I am happy in my distant home;
A sunny sky smiles over me;
And what will I not do for a better pleasure come,
My friend, my husband, I have always there;
And glory, our, our laughing treasury plays,
And the winds are wailing in my ways.

I never can be lonely, Where I go
With these, is home; but yearnings fond and land
For those departed days, when all things glow
With life and glory from that far-off land,
Wind round my heart, with a magic chain,
Which I must kiss ere I can gain.

Oh days of yore gone—far so fair!
Fair recollections glow in my heart,
Are ye not ever near, though you are far,
One heartful, by devoted to your prayer?
But not the days of an emigrant's life,
Could give me back the days when I was young.

The kindly hands which mine with love would press,
The beaming eyes that with affection shone,
The lips, whose words were ever so sweet,
Still marked how kind that young beloved one,
England among my hopeful eyes may see,
But these can never be the same to me.

Far, far from those tender watchings broad my eye,
Far from the hedge-row haunts that pleased my youth;
Far from the friends whose gentle teachings led me
To the land of my birth, and the truth;
Even from my peculiar Northern Star,
From every childhood memory, I am far!
